LYLE FLAYS MAYOR'S RECORD

RELIEF CRITICS ABOUT FACE AND BACK PROGRAM

Arkansas Senators Praise Hoover.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The now famous $20,000,000 compromise agreement for loans and credit in the drought area came before the senate today, and those who have sat and listened to the criticisms and the epithets hurled at the administration throughout the long controversy over relief looked on at a scene strange and dramatic.

SENATOR J. T. ROBINSON.

For they saw and heard Joseph T. Robinson, minority leader, and Thaddeus H. Caraway, Arkansas' two Democratic senators, defend President Hoover, express confidence in Secretary of Agriculture Hyde and applaud the work of the Red Cross.

The two men who have led the fight for relief, who have been critical to the point of bitterness, led the fight today for the adoption of the compromise. They urged the passage of a measure which, by common consent, spelled a victory for President Hoover and his policy.

Turn Complete Somersault.

It was a complete somersault for the Arkansas senators. Their arguments, in the light of what they said before, brought, at times, derisive titters from the galleries.

But through it all ran a tragic thread, that, in defeat, they had to shoulder the burden, stand up under words of blame, applaud the half loaf, as if they had won the whole.

They got little help and plenty of criticism.

For Senator Robinson it is a test of his leadership and the day gave proof that he is herding an unruly flock. From this Democrat and that came interjections of censure. Senators Glass of Virginia, Barkley of Kentucky, McKellar of Tennessee, and Wheeler of Montana plainly showed their disapproval, and from the other side of the aisle, from such insurgents as Senators La Follette of Wisconsin and Norris of Nebraska, and from Minnesota's Farmer-Laborite, Senator Shipstead, came objections that were foreshadowings of the fight which the relief agreement has before it.

G. O. P. Regulars Silent.

No Republican regular lifted his voice to help out in the long, uphill explanation of why the compromise had been necessary. It was Senator Robinson's job, with Senator Caraway's shoulder on some of the stiffer grades, to tell the cohorts he has stormed at and exhorted why it was necessary to lay down arms and sign an armistice.

He had to explain why he hadn't stuck to his threat to force an extra session if the $25,000,000 Red Cross appropriation and a $15,000,000 food loan appropriation weren't passed.

"I realize," he began, "that if we close we could perpetuate the controversy involved in the $25,000,000 appropriation, and that, in all probability, an extra session could be forced; but it is necessary that whatever is done be done as promptly as possible. The season when arrangements must be made for crop production is already at hand, and it will be too late, if we wait until an extra session of congress, to afford any relief whatever."

Nature Against Him.

It was Nature, herself, not just the President, that was against him. The President could delay a call for an extra session until June. By June it would be too late.

He wasn't trying to save his face, he said. He honestly believed that the compromise agreement would do what was necessary.

Under the agreement the requirements for a loan for seed, feed, and fertilizer under the $45,000,000 bill, passed a month ago, would be made less stringent. Feed could be bought for all live stock, not just work stock. Restrictions as to security would be loosened.

The new $20,000,000 fund would be used in extending credit to farmers' credit associations and for direct loans for crop production and rehabilitation. A farmer would, of course, have to give a lien on his crop or some other security. The senate and the galleries had been waiting for the first intermission and now it came—from San-

BLAST SHAKES LARGE SECTION OF SOUTH SIDE

With a reverberation heard within an area of four square miles, a dynamite bomb burst last night at the Lakeside Press, south side plant of R. R. Donnelley & Sons company, one of the largest open shop printing companies in the country. The plant covers nearly the entire block bounded by 21st and 22d streets, Calumet avenue, and the Illinois Central tracks.

The blast gouged a large chunk out of the solid concrete foundation at the northwest corner of the building, bent steel window frames inwards, and shattered hundreds of panes of glass to a distance half way up the eight story structure. The steel-concrete construction of the plant is believed to have curtailed the damage, which was estimated at $5,000.

400 Employés in Peril.

About 3,500 workers of the printing and allied trades are employed at the Lakeside Press. The night shift of 400 men and women, at work on the second and third floors when the blast occurred, was thrown into momentary panic, some being jolted off their feet.

One employé, Lee Barnes, 22 years old, 2821 Eastwood avenue, who was operating a bindery machine on the second floor just above the cache of the bomb, was knocked to the floor by a falling window pane. The breaking glass inflicted gashes on his forehead and chest. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital.

The bomb burst about 9:45 p. m. A flivver squad, cruising past the plant five minutes earlier, had seen nothing suspicious. When the blast occurred a detective bureau squad commanded by Sergt. Ernest Sloey was cruising in Prairie avenue between 21st and 22d streets, a few blocks distant.

Believed Time Device.

The squad car was rocked by the concussion. Immediately surmising the location of the blast, the squadmen reached the scene within three minutes, but saw no one. The proximity of the two squads and absence of suspicious characters in the vicinity led the police to conclude that the bomb was a timed device.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock, confronted with the bombing of four leading mercantile establishments of the city in the last three months, was notified of the latest outrage at his home. The commissioner made the startling announcement that he expects further bombings of the same sort within the next few weeks.

"I'm not surprised," said Alcock. "There'll probably be a couple of more of the same sort soon. Let 'em come. I'll catch up with them yet."

Damage to Other Buildings.

Damage was not confined to the printing plant. In a number of adjoining rooming houses and industrial plants windows were shattered. Scores of sleepers, awakened by the blast, found bits of glass scattered about their rooms.

Until midnight the disturbed residents could be seen outside their homes, boarding up the windows to keep out the cold. James Cook and his wife, basement tenants at 2100 Calumet avenue, were having a late supper. The blast showered their table with glass and knocked a coffee cup from Cook's hand.

Residents of the Lexington hotel and patients at Michael Reese hospital were alarmed. Some of the patients, awakened from sleep by a reverberation which rattled the window panes, telephoned the hospital switchboard in the frightened belief that the boilers had burst.

Officials Know No Motive.

Officials of the printing company said they were at a loss to explain the bomb. Thomas E. Donnelley, president of the company, was reported away from home, but C. G. Littell, vice president and general manager, assured the police that the company had discharged no men recently nor had it received any threats.

One of Mr. Littell's subordinates suggested that the capture of some large printing contract from a union shop might have inspired animus against the Donnelley plant.

Reuben H. Donnelley, late vice president of the company, had been a champion of the open shop for two decades prior to his death in February, 1929. He left a fortune in excess of $10,000,000. He had once been chairman of the Landis award committee.

FRATERNITIES AT KANSAS U. AGREE TO BECOME DRY

Lawrence, Kas., Feb. 10 [Tuesday].—The University of Kansas today looked ahead to what it yearned for—an era of unprecedented student dryness.

Last night in individual meetings 35 fraternities, embracing 1,400 students, voted unanimously to approve a resolution banning absolutely all forms of intoxicating beverages not only during the school year, as had previously been in effect but not effective, but also carrying house rules over into vacation periods and between semester holidays. Drinking among the students has been an increasing embarrassment to dry Kansas.

Approval of the action by Attorney General Roland Boynton was expected today to close the investigation. Aside from the charges against George Tooley Jr. and E. E. Tate, both of Kansas City, who are held on transportation as well as possession counts, there are no counts now being held against any students enrolled in the university last semester. Charges against six expelled University of Kansas students at Topeka have either been dismissed or closed with administration of fines.

Violation of the resolution adopted by the fraternities would mean the probable closing of the doors of the fraternities under the public nuisance law, it was pointed out. The legislature is in session and the university is fearful that the drinking scandal will affect appropriations.

REALTY DEALER AND INSURANCE MAN END LIVES

John V. Kavan, 52 years old, 137 South Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, a real estate dealer with offices at 1852 South Racine avenue, hanged himself in a garage near his home last night while his wife and their two children, John, 19 years old, and Alvine, 17 years old, were at the Oak Park club, where the son and daughter were rehearsing for their parts in the "Oak Park Follies" to be played on Feb. 13 and 14.

James M. Smith, 54 years old, an insurance agent residing at the Southland hotel, 1330 Hyde Park boulevard, swallowed poison in his room early this morning and died within a few minutes. He left a note, addressed to his wife, now in Duluth, Minn. The note assured her of his affection for her and his daughter and explained that financial troubles drove him to suicide.

Russian Coup Upsets Europe Wheat Market

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Feb. 9.—Russia completely upset the central European wheat market today when her commercial representative here, operating from his newly purchased seat on the Vienna stock exchange, began to offer Russian wheat at prices as much as 25 per cent lower than those quoted by competitors.

The seat was purchased some weeks ago, but only today did its occupant show his hand. He offered best quality Russian wheat at 22 Austrian schillings ($3.08) per 100 kilograms (220 pounds), as compared to 29 schillings ($4.06) demanded for Manitoba hard wheat and 24 schillings ($3.36) for Hungarian wheat.

It is understood Russia plans to ship wheat from Russian Black sea ports up the Danube in order to compete in central European markets with grain from Hungary, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia. This fact is likely to have political as well as economic repercussions.

Presents New Obstacle.

It will increase the difficulties which have already presented themselves to the effort to form an agricultural bloc of central European agrarian states, which seek to negotiate a preferential agreement with European industrial nations.

It was suggested today that this was one of the motives which inspired Russia's intervention as a competitor in central European grain markets. By still further decreasing the demand for Rumanian wheat, the soviets, it is argued, hope to increase already dangerous discontent among Rumanian farmers.

A more immediate effect of the new move will be to disturb negotiations which will begin Friday in Budapest for a new Austro-Hungarian trade treaty. To escape having to give other countries, including the United States, similar benefits under the most favored nation treaties, the negotiators will discuss the question of reciprocal quotas under which Austria would agree to import Hungarian wheat against Hungarian importation of the equivalent in Austrian manufactures. An alternative system of export credits will be considered. The new factor created by flooding of the Austrian market with cheap Russian wheat will embarrass discussion of both these schemes.

Jugo-Slavia Doubles Duty.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A decree was promulgated today for double duty on imported wheat, flour and corn. The measure was said to have been framed to combat soviet dumping into Jugo-Slavia and American competition in the grain market.

Figures on British Import.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Replying to a question in the house of commons today, Walter Robert Smith, parliamentary secretary to the Board of Trade, said the quantity of wheat imported by the United Kingdom from Russia in 1930 was nearly 35,466,000 bushels.

STOCKS SUDDENLY BOUNCE UPWARD ON GOTHAM EXCHANGE

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—After idling in a narrow rut for weeks, the stock market turned sharply upward today, sending a tardy bear contingent into retreat all along the line and instilling new courage into the bull ranks.

More than 4,000,000 shares changed hands on the New York Stock exchange in the biggest trading day since last Dec. 17, when the market touched bottom on its last major downswing. Virtually the whole list participated in the upswing and gains at the close ranged from $1 to $18 a share.

RICH CANADIAN DROWNS AT SEA; SOLD RUM TO U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 9. — James Cooper of Walkerville, who started exporting liquor from Canada to the United States soon after America adopted prohibition and made millions out of it, has been drowned at sea. A cablegram received this evening in Belle River from Mrs. Cooper, who is in Switzerland, states that Cooper fell off the liner Deutschland four days out from New York.

Cooper started life as a newspaper vendor on the old Grand Trunk railway line between London and Detroit. He moved to the border cities when America adopted prohibition, established an agency in Detroit, took orders for liquor and had it shipped from Quebec. He is credited with having piled up at one time twenty million dollars profits.

Learns Beggar Is Former Professor, Remits the Fine

A fifty dollar fine for begging imposed upon Victor Bruder, 40 years old, was suspended by Judge Leon Edelman in the Town Hall court yesterday when he learned that Bruder was formerly a professor in the Illinois Wesleyan university in Bloomington. David Cohn of the Triangle Electric company, who interceded on Bruder's behalf, took him out to buy a suit of clothes and look for work.

Jobless Crisis Is Main Issue, Cermak Holds

"There will be fewer $100 a day jobs for experts and more $5 a day jobs for real workers when I am elected mayor," Anton J. Cermak, Democratic mayoralty candidate, declared yesterday in starting the last two weeks' drive before the primary. He spoke at a luncheon at the Steuben club and at four meetings last night in north side wards.

"The Republicans can't fool the people with their full dinner pail cry this time because the dinner pails are empty," Cermak said. "And the Republican party is all cut up and dirtied up.

Cites Three Big Issues.

"Those thousands of voters who left the Republican party last fall will not go back and they will remain Democrats because they are protesting against the failures of the Republican governments at Washington, Springfield and here at home. There were three big issues then and we still have the three—unemployment, personal liberty and high taxes.

"I am leaving for Springfield tonight to ask the legislature to authorize Cook county to issue $2,000,000 in bonds with which to feed the starving people. I use the word starving advisedly. Judging by what we have spent before the $2,000,000 will be spent by June if conditions do not improve. Cook county is now spending more in a month on relief for the poor than we use to spend in a year.

"Certainly the people will not give a vote of confidence to any of the Republican administration. Therefore we should get them out to vote in the Democratic primary, even though we have no contest. We should roll up such a vote that it will be heard in Washington and regarded as our protest against 'Hoover prosperity.'

Turning to Democratic Party.

"The people are turning to the Democratic party for guidance and they see that the only chance there is of any progress being made in Chicago depends upon the election of a man in whom the people have confidence. With such a mayor, building will be resumed, business enterprises set on foot and employment provided for many now out of work. The election of such a mayor will be a guarantee of future employment. A vote against him is a vote for the present industrial stagnation and a vote to keep the man who casts it out of work. When I am elected mayor I will deal immediately with the unemployment problem, as I am dealing now with the relief problems."

At the luncheon, at which Clayton F. Smith presided and Ald. John S. Clark and Sanitary Trustee Ross A. Woodhull were speakers, two veteran Democrats were introduced. They were Ernst Hummel, 87 years old, former city treasurer, and John Fitzsimmons, 86 years old, who was a Democratic ward committeeman in 1874 and secretary to the first Mayor Carter H. Harrison in 1880.

COLD WAVE AND SNOW FLURRIES RESTORE WINTER

A cold wave swept down from the north last evening, breaking the premature spring weather and promising to send the mercury down around 10 degrees above zero by this morning, according to the forecast of C. A. Donnel, the government meteorologist.

Snow flurries accompanied the blast from the north, but Forecaster Donnel held out no hopes of a sufficient fall to benefit the farmers in the drought stricken areas. The forecast called for fair and moderately cold weather today, with increasing cloudiness and rising temperatures tomorrow.

JUDGE RIPS INTO GUTTER TACTICS OF CITY HALL

Loop Crowd Cheers His Onslaught.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Judge Lyle flayed Mayor Thompson last night as he never had been flayed before in any of his previous campaigns.

Bringing his campaign into the loop and raising it to its full pitch, the man who attracted national attention by his fight against gangsters and gunmen tore into his principal opponent with a force and fury that astounded those who had listened to his conservative, restrained speeches of recent weeks.

He told a packed house at the Apollo theater that he had hoped to go ahead until primary day discussing constructively his plans and hopes for Chicago and that it was only the "gutter tactics" of Thompson that had forced him to change his policy and to go after the enemy as though he were meeting him face to face under that enemy's own rules.

Calls Mayor Quack.

"I charge that Jumbo, the Flood-Relief-Quack," he said in one typical outburst, "cannot and dare not explain what he has done with more than $100,000 contributed by citizens of Chicago, much of it by school children and teachers in dimes, nickels and pennies, for the Mississippi flood sufferers four years ago, money that was needed—every dollar of it—and should have been used at once for food, clothing, shelter and medicine."

This was the first campaign reference to a suit now pending in the Superior court seeking to compel Thompson and some of his associates to account for the 1927 flood relief fund, to repay money expended from that trust fund for improper purposes, and to turn all that remains over to the Red Cross for relief of the drought stricken areas.

Crowd Yells at Sally.

In that suit it is charged that Thompson sent only about $18,500 into the flooded areas of 1927 and that he has diverted "many thousands of dollars" to his prosperity coupon scheme, his flood control conference, and other purposes of his present campaign.

Judge Lyle held his crowd, which also jammed the theater lobby where an amplifier had been placed, until 11 o'clock. He had been preceded by E. F. Mansure, chairman of the business men's committee in charge of the meeting, and the Rev. R. A. White of the People's Liberal church. The minister spoke at length in praise of Judge Lyle whose residence is across from the street from his church.

Lyle's reference to "Jumbo, the flood relief quack," made the crowd yell, but the noise scarcely exceeded the racket that resounded at various other times through this part of his speech:

"The people have grown tired of this blubbering jungle hippopotamus defending his gangsters and crooked contractors and lazy, blood sucking jobbers by slobbering insults against the people of Chicago.

"A Charitable Epithet."

"He calls me looney. Did you ever see a lurching, shambling imbecile with the flabby jowls of a barnyard hog whose diseased brain didn't defend its own lunacy by snarling at others?

"Why does he babble so much about insanity?" asked Lyle, pausing a moment.

"To refer to him as a blubbering charlatan whose befuddled mind totters on the border line of lunacy perhaps is charitable. Even a lunatic may not be charged with complete mental bankruptcy—with a total lack of initiative.

"Once every four years during a campaign he rouses his sluggish being long enough to concoct some circus display and to vilify any one who stands in his path, but what does he do the balance of the time? Let us look.

Office Record Recounted.

"He became mayor in April, 1927. During that year he was in his office at the city hall three times—three times in nine months. For his inauguration he showed up for 1½ hours.

"When Col. Lindbergh came to Chicago he was there ½ hour.

"When Prince William of Sweden arrived he was compelled to spend another ½ hour in his office.

"He was there for the first full half day on May 3, 1928, thirteen months after his election.

"And if he ever spent one full eight hour day in his office, looking after the city's business, nobody ever heard about it.

"Where was he? Where was he while the gangsters and hoodlums overran Chicago? Where was he while public improvements slowed down and stopped? Where was he while municipal finances collapsed?

"Where was he while his subordinates loaded their pay rolls with loafers and worse? Where was he while taxes piled up and up until taxpayers are about to start a revolution?

"Where was he?

"Well, we know that during 1927 he took fourteen trips out of town and that during 1928 he took eight trips out of town.

"While he was in Chicago his headquarters were in a hotel room where he spent much of his time playing checkers with a policeman, but what else he did there nobody but a few of his closest cronies know. Certainly he never gave the slightest sign of activity on behalf of the city.

Fading Out of Picture.

"An Eskimo at the north pole or a Hottentot in darkest Africa might as well have been mayor for all the good the city got out of him. He was asleep at the switch—a mental vacuum with the municipal government toppling about his ears. Nero fiddled while Rome burned, but Thompson didn't even fiddle while Chicago's affairs went to smash. He simply faded out of the picture.

"Drunk with power, he celebrated his election by snoring in abject forgetfulness until another election year rolled around.

"This is the man you have for your mayor. Look at him. It is charitable, I say, to call him a lunatic or an imbecile. He is worse than that. Except at election time he is a complete loss, the essence of nothingness—two jackass ears on the side, a cowboy hat on top, and an empty space in between.

Using His Own Weapons.

"I did not wish to engage in personalities. But I have decided to whip this absentee mayor with his own weapons. I'm going to put this scramble-brained demagogue where he belongs. I'm going to picture him as he is, and when I get through the people of Chicago on Feb. 24 are going to kick what remains of him out of municipal affairs forever."

Judge Lyle read a large part of his speech carefully and painstakingly. He opened it with a calm statement that he had hoped to conduct it entirely as a discussion of service to the people of Chicago, especially in relation to the crime problem. He said he was confident the next mayor would not be selected by his ability as a blackguard.

"On the other hand," he continued, "there has been a deliberate conspiracy to destroy me, a conspiracy involving the criminals I have fought, the panders, robbers, and murderers whose reign of terror I have shown can be broken, and by the financial and political beneficiaries of this criminal underworld.

"There is an organized effort to break the force of my assault by destroying my character through vicious, lying stories, whispers, and insinuations.

Tells of Vituperation.

"Partly in public but more frequently by whispers, I have been charged with insincerity, with falsification of records, with perjury; my parentage has been questioned; stories that I am morally unfit have been hinted or whispered; I have been called a pander, an insane man, and a wife murderer.

"This goes beyond political license, and is a deliberate conspiracy upon the part of the Capones, the Morans, the Druggans, the unspeakable Gusiks, thieves, brothel keepers, jail birds, extortionists, racketeers, and murderers, to destroy the man who has shown the way and the courage to drive them out of Chicago. And to his everlasting disgrace the present mayor, by choice or by compulsion, becomes the public mouthpiece for this foul conspiracy.

Branded as Lies.

"I once and for all brand all of these charges, stories, and whispers as filthy lies, circulated with the hope of protecting criminals against the rising wrath of an outraged citizenship.

"These men and their political protectors have searched every act of my

If anybody is in the market for a smokestack, he probably can get it at 95th street near Stony Island avenue, provided he agrees to remove it. How to get rid of it is a problem that citizens of the district cannot solve, having failed in efforts to get the city administration to do the job for them.

The stack stands in the pathway of the proposed 100 foot Van Vlissingen road, which will carry traffic from Stony Island avenue to Luella avenue at 103d street.

The stack is a relic of an incinerator partially built and then abandoned by the city in 1914. Recently, at the insistence of Ald. W. A. Rowan [10th], the city got a private contractor to demolish the framework of the incinerator, but he left the smokestack standing alone, described by the residents of South Chicago as a monument to municipal waste.

of my family, searching for scandal, and found nothing.

"And so instead of open and direct assault upon me, criminals and their political ally and mouthpiece are paying hired slanderers who by telephone and from door to door carry these filthy suggestions, insinuations, and whispered stories; human jackals that feast in rottenness and live by lying.

"An Underworld Alliance."

"In this campaign I have assailed no opponent, but the campaign of whispered slander which has become an organized effort to mislead the citizens of Chicago forces me to this direct reply. Whether the present mayor is playing his part willingly or whether he is so obligated, financially and politically, to the lords of the underworld as to be acting under compulsion, I do not know.

"I deeply regret that it has become necessary to refer to rot and filth in this campaign, but the only way to meet a whispering campaign of such abominable character is by open, plain and unafraid reply.

"I have nothing to be ashamed of in my record as a man, as a citizen, and as a public official, and the foul emanations of professional criminals or of diseased minds cannot destroy a character builded up in a lifetime of decent living and honest service."

M'GOORTY URGES MENTAL CLINIC AT BUDGET HEARING

Chief Justice McGoorty of the Criminal court appeared before the county board yesterday to plead again for an appropriation to finance the proposed psychopathic clinic as an adjunct of the Criminal court. Judge McGoorty pointed out that the original request of $30,000 had been cut to $20,000 in view of the stringent financial situation.

The commissioners, however, refused to pledge themselves but said they would take the request under advisement. A sum of $30,000 was appropriated tentatively for the office of public defender pending a written opinion from the judges as to the legality of the department. The board's financial experts continued study of the tentative budget which will be presented to the board tomorrow.

President Cermak appointed a committee to investigate charges of the Chicago Federation of Labor that the Oak Forest infirmary is not kept clean and that the inmates are poorly fed.

Brothers' Attorney to File New Plea for Witness List

Attorney Tyrrell Krum, one of the four lawyers representing Leo V. Brothers, announced yesterday that he is going to file new motions for a list of state witnesses, and for records in possession of the state's attorney's office. He said he would appear before Chief Justice John P. McGoorty this morning. Judge John Prystalski indicated that he would deny similar motions made before him and then the attorneys took a change of venue and the case was transferred to Judge Joseph Sabath. Brothers, who was indicted for the murder of Alfred Lingle, charged that Judge Prystaski was prejudiced against him.

WOLFE SERVED WITH SUMMONS IN FLOOD SUIT

Must Make Deposition Before Master.

Commissioner of Public Works Richard W. Wolfe was served with a subpoena yesterday calling upon him to appear before a master in chancery and make a deposition regarding charges that funds contributed by school children, city employés and others for the relief of Mississippi valley flood sufferers in 1927 were diverted for other purposes.

Wolfe is an appointee of Mayor Thompson and was treasurer of the relief fund. He was named as a defendant with Thompson and others in a bill of complaint filed in Superior court on Saturday alleging that $103,855 of the $139,772 contributed never reached the flood victims.

Lawyer Tells of Summons.

Attorney F. O. Mason of the law firm of Miller, Gorham & Wales, which is representing the complainant, Charles S. Smith, made the announcement that Wolfe had been summoned. Subpoenas have been issued for several others, he said, and their names will be made public when service is obtained.

The Wolfe summons was made returnable at 10 o'clock next Monday morning before Master in Chancery Harry Smitz, 145 North Clark street. Mr. Wolfe will be called upon to make a deposition telling what he knows about the handling of the fund.

"What my client wants to find out is why this money didn't go for the immediate relief of flood sufferers," Mason said. "The facts in the case are perfectly clear. It's up to the defendants to explain them."

Wolfe Again Refuses Comment.

Commissioner Wolfe yesterday failed to elaborate upon his statement of Sunday that he didn't know a thing about the affair and that "it is all in the hands of the mayor." Wolfe hurried back from his summer estate in southern Michigan, however, and conferred with Thompson at a meeting of the city council.

Attorney Mason indicated that he would not seek to subpoena George K. Schmidt, former city controller and president of the Prudential State Savings bank, from which the fund was withdrawn, but that Schmidt would appear in court as a witness. He said he had advised Schmidt not to discuss the case.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward C. Higgins, representing Thompson, yesterday filed in the Superior court the praecipe of a suit asking $100,000 damages from the Chicago Daily News in connection with its account on Saturday of the filing of the Smith suit.

Statement from Thompson.

At the same time John M. Kelly, secretary to Thompson, issued the following statement: "The mayor has ordered the corporation counsel to proceed with a suit against the Daily News for $100,000 for libel because of the falsehoods in their statements which they printed on Saturday, Feb. 7, 1931, in regard to the misappropriation of a trust fund."

Asked if he is acting for Thompson as an assistant corporation counsel, Higgins declared that he was not. He said he would represent Thompson in his "private capacity." He added that he probably would handle Thompson's defense in the Smith suit. Although other newspapers printed accounts of the filing of the Smith bill of complaint, Higgins said he had been instructed to take action only against the Daily News.

CHICAGO TAXES CRAMP INDUSTRY, ALBERT CHARGES

Candidate Says Waste Is Injuring City.

In his mayoralty campaign speeches last night Ald. Arthur F. Albert, Deneen entry, pointed out that excessive taxes are a serious injury to the city as a whole.

"A recent survey has shown," he said, "that Chicago is losing industries almost every day because the heads of these businesses refuse to remain in a community where taxes form so huge a portion of the operating expenses.

Chicago's Double Loss.

"Within the last year there have been nearly 300 industries which have locked their doors in Chicago and moved to other localities. These removals, throwing many out of employment, have formed a considerable portion of the causes of existing want and poverty here.

"Also migrating industries took their best employés with them, the hard working, thrifty, honest, conscientious, expert artisans and their families, leaving only the less desirable of the employés."

Thompson's Show Goes On.

There were no major activities by Mayor Thompson or his cohorts during the day. It was said they had staked much of this week's hope of vote getting on the opening of a continuous vaudeville show on the Cort theater built up around Thompson's "jackass show" as he calls it.

The first day was a disappointment. The house was not filled even for the first performance during the noon hour. Later audiences were even thinner. The Thompson moving pictures —like the "jackass show" presented on the streets for a week—and some street carnival acts constitute the program.

Thompson headquarters announced that Emil C. Wetten, who had mayoralty aspirations of his own two months ago, had joined their forces and will speak at a noon meeting tomorrow.

CRITICISM IN COUNCIL

Failure of the city administration to ask for competitive bids for the disposal of garbage and refuse was criticized at yesterday's council session by Ald. Arthur F. Albert [43d]. The council authorized the extension of existing disposal contracts for 90 days.

Ald. Albert recalled that two years ago the city failed to take up an option on a dumping site, the purchase of which would have reduced the cost of disposal for some wards from 50 cents a cubic yard to 10 cents.

The council also extended for 90 days contracts entered into last year by Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works, for the purchase of paving materials and other supplies. Under the extensions Wolfe can spend $231,000 without advertising for new bids.

ACCUSED OF CARRYING A GUN.

Sol Feinberg, 29 years old, owner of a grocery store at 2454 Indiana avenue, was charged with carrying a concealed weapon yesterday by police, who found a pistol in Feinberg's car.

Patrolman, on Force One Day, Makes Capture.

Two armed thieves were shot and killed, and seven others were captured in a series of encounters with police beginning early yesterday and ending last evening. On the other hand, one bandit victim was slightly wounded, and another, shot last week, died of his wounds.

Late in the day a gunman was arrested by a recruit patrolman completing his first day of duty, and three of the outlaw's comrades were arrested by other policemen after they had attempted a jewelry store holdup in which a clerk was shot. Shortly before 5 o'clock four men entered the jewelry store of Nathan Kahn at 2508 West Division street, and, posing as patrons, examined a tray of gems. Suddenly the quartet whipped out revolvers and commanded Kahn, his son, Robert, and several customers to hold up their hands. They then ordered the victims to step into a rear room.

Wounded by Robber.

As the Kahns tried to carry out the order they stumbled against a rear door, and one of the robbers, evidently mistaking the accident as a move to entrap them, fired wildly. The bullet grazed the forehead of Robert Kahn, and the gunmen fled empty handed.

As they passed out the door one of the men felled N. Jacobs, 3242 Cortez street, a patron, with the butt of his revolver. Then three of the bandits leaped into their automobile, while the fourth fled in Division street. A crowd followed him and Policeman John McAllister, the recruit, joined the chase and fired several shots at the gunman. At Cortez street and Washtenaw avenue the robber surrendered.

He identified himself as Thomas Armstrong, 24 years old, 718 North Clark street. At the West North avenue station he named his accomplices. Detectives Peter Pacelli and Thomas Markous arrested the trio at 3740 Lake Park avenue. They are William Lauane, 26 years old, 718 North Clark street; Melville Fowler, 29 years old, 1140 South Maple avenue, Berwyn, and George Farrell, 29 years old, of the Lake Park address. Like Armstrong, they are former taxi drivers.

Two Robbers Slain.

In the day's initial robber-police battle, Roy Walsh, 30 years old, and George Bertocchine, 32, were shot and killed. Their companion, Edward Wolf, 38 years old, 2146 South 58th court, Cicero, was captured. Wolf is a former convict, the police say.

The trio had broken into a United Cigar store at 4002 West 26th street. As Patrolman Emil Hrabec of the Lawndale station walked past he heard the jingle of a cash register. He looked through the window and saw three men. Hrabec crept toward the rear of the building. As he did so he noticed Detectives James Kehoe and Francis O'Malley of his station approach in their flivver.

Hrabec walked to the front of the store. Kehoe and O'Malley went to the rear. The burglar trio, with their loot, consisting of cigarets and cigars, prepared to emerge. The two policemen commanded them to surrender. One of the bandits, later slain, raised a pistol, and cried out to his companions: "Let 'em have it." Before they could fire, Kehoe and O'Malley fired their shotguns.

Bertocchine and Walsh fell dead. Kehoe then overpowered Wolf. The identities of the slain outlaws were established later through fingerprints. Bertocchine, it was learned, had served 60 days for burglary in 1927. Walsh was placed on probation in 1929 after pleading guilty to burglary.

Caught After Battle.

In the afternoon three men broke into the home of Mrs. Josephine Matricle, 45 years old, at 727 West Ohio street. One escaped, and the other two were captured after a running revolver fight with police. The prisoners are James Kelly and Peter La Vorde, both 21 years old.

Mrs. Matricle was alone in her home when the men entered. She fought and screamed, and smashed a window. Neighbors, hearing the window smashing, summoned police, and a radio alarm was sounded. Sergt. Leo Madden and his squad reached the scene in time to see the trio fleeing. La Vorde and Kelly ran to a nearby junk yard, exchanging shots with the policemen. Their guns empty, the two finally surrendered with pleas of "Don't shoot."

A diamond ring, three smaller rings, and two watches valued in all at $600, were taken yesterday in a daylight burglary of the apartment of John Seager, Evanston city building inspector, at 714 Mulford avenue. The Seagers were visiting a friend in a hospital at the time.

Doctor Dies of Wounds.

Dr. George Laing, 62 years old, 2232 South 50th avenue, Cicero, was the victim who died of bandit bullet wounds. He died in St. Anthony's hospital.

The doctor was shot twice by one of two gunmen who held him up in his office Thursday night. The bandits took $11 from him, and $6 from Miss Laisette Jacklin, 3745 West 28th street, a patient. As the robbers searched Miss Jacklin, Dr. Laing reached for a revolver in his desk. One of the robbers fired as the doctor seized the weapon. One of the holdup men, who was shot in the shoulder by the doctor, was captured later. He gave his name as Fred Nelson, 26 years old, of 37 North Halsted street. Nelson will be charged with murder, according to police. His companion, known as "Jensen," is still at large.

6 NEGROES DOOMED TO ELECTRIC CHAIR SINGING SPIRITUALS

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—From a squat, red-bricked building at the state's penitentiary today floated strains of a plaintive Negro spiritual.

The building—the death house.

The tune—"Trouble."

And the song was:

I'm in trouble about my soul,
I'm in trouble about my soul,
As soon as my feet strike Zion
I won't be troubled no more.

They were spending their first day in the death house.

Nineteen days from today they must file one-by-one to an adjoining chamber where the electric chair awaits them.

Tillman Poozer was convicted of the murder of C. D. Mills, a night watchman. The other five, Ernest Thomas, James Hickman, Robert Eldredge, John Ackwright and George Byrd, were convicted of slaying B. W. Hendrix, merchant, in an attempted holdup.

"PLOT TO KILL" PRIEST IS ONLY PARISH QUARREL

A sensational story, in which eight ousted trustees of St. Mary's Russian Orthodox church, 4945 South Seeley avenue, were described as having plotted to disrupt the congregation and assassinate the pastor, was reduced by the statements of the police last night to a trivial case of malicious mischief.

As the published story was told, the Rev. Milan Hranilovich, coming from Cleveland as pastor of the Chicago church a year ago, proved the old trustees guilty of mismanaging the congregation's finances, ousted them, and so aroused their wrath that they paid a young beer hustler, George Sutko, $300 to slay the priest. Becoming conscience stricken, the youth went to the priest, handed over the gun, and confessed all, according to the story.

In reality, the New City police say, the eight ousted trustees paid young Sutko the $300 to shatter windows in the homes of the new trustees, provoke fights at the parish social affairs, and write the Rev. Mr. Hranilovich threatening letters. Instead of confessing to the priest, Sutko boasted of his prowess to a girl, who, unknown to him, was the daughter of a trustee, at whose home he had tossed bricks. Sutko is to be arraigned today before Judge Howard Hayes on a charge of malicious mischief. The trustees, booked for disorderly conduct, demanded a jury trial and will be arraigned on Feb. 9.

Only Aviation Fund Kept at Old Total.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—A marked reduction in the size of the American naval establishment is provided in the 1932 naval appropriations bill, reported to the house today. As recommended by the house appropriations committee, the measure carries 344 million dollars, a slash of $36,310,000 below expenditures allowed for the current year.

The measure would reduce the United States fleet to its lowest level in a decade. It provides for fewer ships in commission, reduces the enlisted personnel of both the navy and the marine corps, diminishes funds for new warships and decreases the size of the Naval academy classes at Annapolis. Officer strength is maintained at the same level.

Personnel Reduced.

The naval establishment for the 1932 fiscal year, as provided by the measure on which general debate began today, will have 79,800 enlisted men, as compared to 84,500 the current year; 276 seagoing vessels, including combat ships, compared to 321 ships the current year, and 232 vessels in reserve, compared to 296 this year. The source of officer personnel would be reduced by limiting the number of appointments to Annapolis from four to three for each member of congress.

Last year's appropriation for construction of new ships was more than $70,000,000, counting holdover funds. The amount carried in the present bill is $28,550,000. This, added to $25,000,000 not expended during the current year, due to London naval conference delays, brings the amount available for building cruisers, aircraft carriers and submarines up to above $50,000,000.

Still Smaller in 1933.

In event the $74,000,000 warship authorization bill, now before congress, fails of passage, the 1932 reduced naval establishment will be followed by a still smaller one in 1933. Figures made public by the Navy League of the United States disclose that unless new warships are added to those now under construction, this country, in 1936, will have less than one-half the modern cruiser, submarine, destroyer and aircraft carrier tonnage permitted by the London treaty.

Chairman Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] announced efforts today to enact the $74,000,000 measure, which provides one cruiser, four submarines and an aircraft carrier. He will ask a special rule next week to get the bill up in the house. Chairman Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.] of the senate committee will offer the bill in the senate as soon as the major appropriation bills are passed. If the Hale-Britten warship bill becomes law and the pending $30,000,000 battleship modernization bill is passed, the navy will ask for $34,000,000 additional to the naval appropriation bill or a deficiency bill.

Aviation Fund Is Kept.

While the bill itself represents a reduction of about $3,000,000 below budget estimates sent to congress, the house committee makes no cut in the appropriation for aviation. The sum of $11,800,000 is provided for purchase of new aircraft. This is expected to give the navy 1,000 serviceable planes during the 1932 fiscal year. The committee recommends against American participation in international competitions such as the Schneider cup speed races. Such a move, the committee said, would place too heavy a draft upon experimental funds.

KILLS SELF AT OAK FOREST.

A Night Letter from Ring Lardner

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The nation is all agrog over the hymeneal nuptials of Roger Wolfe Kahn and Miss Hannah Williams and George Putnam and Amelia Earhart. Mr. Kahn is a musician and an aviator and the new Mrs. Kahn a song bird, whereas Mr. Putnam publishes books and the new Mrs. Putnam is an aviatrix. It is too late now to forbid the banns, but wouldn't it have been more sensible to change partners, so that when Mr. Kahn was piloting his plane and suddenly had an overwhelming desire to play the saxophone his life companion could have taken the stick and made a safe landing instead of singing Tosti's Good-by while they did the nose dive?

TELLS JURY HOW HE KILLED WIFE, RETURNED TO BED

Charles Micelli, 35 years old, a tailor, 1632 Julian street, yesterday was ordered held to the grand jury on a charge of murder, by a coroner's jury investigating the death of his wife, Frances, 30. Mrs. Micelli was shot to death Sunday morning at the door of her apartment.

Micelli told the jury that after a quiet evening at home Saturday night, in which he played bunco with his wife's parents and a guest, he had a couple of drinks, went to bed, arose at 11:30 and had two more drinks. For a week, he said, he had planned to kill his wife. He hid behind the front door at midnight. His wife returned at 12:30 o'clock, he shot her as she was opening the door, and, leaving her there, cleaned his gun and went to bed, he testified.

Two reasons prompted the slaying, he testified: He thought that his wife was receiving attentions from other men; and he suspected her of being the author of several letters sent to the husband of Mrs. Gertrude Krutz, 3454 North Irving avenue. In the letters Mr. Krutz was warned that his wife was going with a married man. Mrs. Krutz informed Micelli, according to the testimony.

City Now Hunts Buyers for Warrants.

Three ordinances levying a total tax on property within the city of $174,845,055 were passed yesterday by the city council. Following the passage the council authorized City Controller Peterson to sell warrants in anticipation of the collection of this amount to finance the city during 1931.

The levy of $174,845,055 covers only a part of the estimated expenditures of the city this year, the total appropriations for all branches of the municipal government being $276,558,151. The difference between the amounts appropriated and the amounts to be raised by taxes will be derived from miscellaneous revenues and the proceeds of bond issues.

$85,581,248 for School Board.

The tax levy ordinances provide for the levying of $85,581,248 for the school board and of $85,263,807 for the city's corporate fund, the public library, the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium, pension funds, and for the payments of judgments and interest and principal on bond issues. In addition, $4,000,000 was levied for the working cash fund of the city.

The council also authorized the transfer of $3,348,084 in the working cash fund to the corporate fund, out of which salaries are paid. This amount, according to the aldermen, will take up the overdraft on the corporate fund caused by the payment of salaries while the fund was depleted and take care of city employes' salaries for most of this month.

Depend on Warrant Sales.

After the amount in the working cash fund is exhausted the city will be dependent on the sale of tax warrants for money for salaries and other operating expenses. Peterson, according to reports, will start today to find a purchaser for the city warrants. Against the levy of $50,009,810 for the corporate fund the city can sell 75 per cent or $37,507,357 in warrants to banks and an additional 15 per cent to its working cash fund.

In a hearing before County Judge Jarecki on objections of property owners to their taxes, Assistant State's Attorney Hayden Bell suggested that one of the property owners, representing all the others, appeal to the Supreme court for a mandamus compelling the board of review to hear the objections.

The suggestion was in line with the ruling of Judge Jarecki recently that he has no jurisdiction to hear the objections until the original source of relief for the property owners, the board of review, has been exhausted.

JUDGE FAVORS GUARDIAN FOR BRIDEGROOM, 91

Unless attorneys for Theodore Wells, 91 years old, and his younger brother, Herbert, 87, reach an agreement today about having the former examined for his sanity, Judge Daniel P. Trude indicated last night that he will appoint a conservator for the estate of $30,000 left the older man by his first wife. When Theodore married his nurse, Mrs. Ann Naylor, 47, two months after death culminated his sixty-five years of matrimony with his first mate, Herbert Wells, Kingston, R. I., banker, referred to as "the kid brother," brought suit to have the marriage annulled.

Judge Trude intimated last night a sympathetic attitude with the plea of "the kid brother," who claims that his new sister-in-law had mercenary motives in marrying a man whose life expectancy was necessarily brief. Attorney Sidney Gorham argued for the defendant and his wife that the second Mrs. Wells had not been extravagant with her mate's income, but Judge Trude agreed with Attorney Melvin Griffith that $2,000 was a considerable sum for her to have expended for furniture for an apartment to which she removed Theodore, who had been a patient in a sanitarium. A decision will be given this morning.

MOVE TO UNITE REALTY OWNERS FOR TAX REFORM

Seek 45,000 Members to Aid in Fight.

A fight against increased taxation, the waste of public funds by local spending bodies, and for relief of tax burdened real estate owners, was begun last night by the Chicago real estate board. The move for a change in taxation will be carried out by a property owners' division of the board, which is still to be organized. This will give a voting and lobbying organization of about 45,000 owners. The fight is the outgrowth of the constantly increasing taxes on real estate.

At "an extraordinary meeting" of the entire board, members were told of the plans for the new division. The object of the division is to unite all property owners in a demand for a change in tax levying, a consolidation of assessing and levying boards, the prevention of waste in local governing groups, and the obtaining of some new form of taxation which will spread the expense of government over a greater number of citizens.

Seek All Realty Owners.

The members of the board unanimously pledged themselves to bring all real estate owners in the metropolitan area into the new division within the next ten weeks.

"We are calling on all of Chicago to get behind this movement," said Albert T. Swayne, who is to be chairman of the new division. "High taxes, although borne directly by only 10 per cent of the population, fall indirectly on every one. A new form of taxation does not solve the entire problem. Waste, shown by the fact that 417 tax levying bodies spend our money, must be eliminated. Several property owners during the last four years thought they had taken care of it by seeing some one at the city hall. Now we clearly see that we have just been supporting a supermachine."

The Chicago property owners will be connected directly with state and national organizations. Speakers pointed out that national problems which were beyond the control of local groups affect local tax rates and tax spending. Officials of the state and national real estate boards were introduced at the meeting and promised the cooperation of their organizations.

Explains Tax Reform Systems.

Herbert U. Nelson, executive secretary of the national board, told of work done by property owners divisions in other cities. Detroit was cited as an example. Detroit is expected to adopt the Toronto plan, whereby the yearly tax bill is paid in monthly installments and the taxpayer is paid interest if he pays the taxes before they are due.

A threefold platform, indorsed by the national real estate board and now in use in 82 major cities having property owners' divisions, was explained by Mr. Nelson. This plan embraces the simplification of government by the reduction of tax spending bodies and the inauguration of a main budget passing committee for all bodies, creation of agencies of fiscal control to investigate governmental bodies and to serve as a reviewing court for taxpayers, and the spreading of tax burdens on a more equitable basis.

At present a research committee headed by Prof. S. E. Leland of the University of Chicago is investigating the local problem. Four immediate problems are being studied by this committee: Income taxes, spending of fiscal income, tax exemptions, and a reduction and simplification of local budgets. As soon as the committee has reported, Mr. Swayne said, the program will be placed before the legislature at Springfield. Headquarters of the new division, all expenses of which are borne by the Chicago board, are at 127 North Dearborn street.

PRINCE OF WALES AND PARTY MOTOR DOWN COAST OF NORTH PERU

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The prince of Wales, Prince George and their party moved partly by steamer and partly by motor car down the Peruvian coast today. They arrived at Casa Blanca, far on the northern coast of Peru at 8:45 o'clock this morning and entered motor cars to take a rest from shipboard life and at the same time see something of this country.

Shortly afterward they left for Talara and reached that city by midafternoon, passing through Lobitos and Negritos en route. At 4:30 p. m., they again went aboard their ship, the Oropesa, and reached Payta at 7 o'clock tonight.

The prince had a great time playing the rôle of barber in shipboard festivities attendant upon crossing the equator as the Oropesa plowed southward. King Neptune duly arrived at the ship's swimming pool and presided over the ceremonies.

The prince of Wales was the barber, entitled "Scrape 'Em." He wore a striped red and blue bathing suit, with blue shorts, and a yellow and green bathing cap. He wielded an enormous wooden razor. He had the evident satisfaction of shaving his brother, Prince George, and later pushing him into the swimming pool.

Demands Accounting by Board of Trade

A bill for an accounting by the Chicago Board of Trade was filed yesterday in the Superior court by Isaac W. C. Soloway and Soloway, Mills & Co., grain brokers of Toronto, Ont. The bill alleges that Soloway sold his seat on the exchange for $16,500 but that officials of the Board of Trade have failed to turn the money over to him on the grounds that Riordan, Martin & Co., commission merchants, 141 West Jackson boulevard, held a claim against the Toronto concern. Soloway denies that his company was indebted to the other company.

WIFE OF CYRUS M'CORMICK JR. GETS DIVORCE

Tells of Cruelty in Court.

Mrs. Dorothy Linn McCormick, 900 North Michigan avenue, was yesterday granted a divorce from Cyrus McCormick Jr., vice president of the International Harvester company. The decree was granted by Superior Judge John J. Sullivan on grounds of cruelty.

Mrs. McCormick appeared in court during the noon hour, accompanied by her attorney, Frederick C. Hack, and two witnesses, Howard Linn, a brother, and Miss Mary Staley, her secretary. Mr. McCormick, who is en route to Europe, did not contest his wife's suit.

A property settlement, the amount of which was not disclosed, has been arranged out of court, Mrs. McCormick told the judge. Mrs. McCormick, a daughter of W. R. Linn, retired grain operator, was given permission to resume her maiden name.

Cites Acts of Cruelty.

Three acts of cruelty on the part of her husband were detailed by Mrs. McCormick. On Jan. 10, 1930, she said, he shoved her into a crowd attending a dance when she suggested that they go home. While at the Ambassador hotel in New York a few months later, she testified, her husband twisted her arm because she asked him where he had been when he returned to the hotel after being out all night.

The third act of cruelty occurred on Jan. 18 of this year, Mrs. McCormick testified, although her divorce bill gave the date of separation as last May 26. On that day, she said, she was talking to her secretary when her husband asked her to come and see some guests who had arrived. Mrs. McCormick said she replied that she was busy, whereupon her husband struck her on the shoulder, knocking her over a chair.

Witnesses Support Testimony.

Her testimony was corroborated by her brother and her secretary. Mr. Linn testified that Mrs. McCormick had been a perfect wife to Mr. McCormick.

Mr. McCormick is a grandson of one of the founders of the International Harvester company and is the son of Cyrus Hall McCormick, chairman of the board of the company. The couple were married Feb. 13, 1915.

Killing in Robbery Battle Is Justified by Jury

A coroner's jury investigating the fatal shooting of Herbert Tholl, 27 years old, 1220 Roscoe street, shot Sunday night in an attempted saloon holdup at 1417 Fullerton avenues, yesterday returned a verdict of justifiable homicide. Tholl was shot by his companion, Frank Groja, 2618 Ward street, in a struggle for the revolver when Tholl, after a couple of drinks, suddenly announced he was going to rob the place.

RECEIVER GETZ SEEKS TO SELL CHICAGO POST

Approached on Deal for Paper, He Says.

George F. Getz, coal magnate, appointed receiver of the Chicago Evening Post yesterday, announced last night that he will try to effect an early sale of the newspaper and said that he will appear shortly before Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan, who appointed, him, with a recommendation that the court authorize him to sell the property.

The Post was placed in receivership by Judge Sullivan earlier in the day following the granting of a judgment for $491 against the newspaper in favor of the Arthur Dixon Transfer company. John C. Shaffer on Saturday announced his retirement as owner and publisher of the Post.

Mr. Getz said he would continue to operate the property until final disposition of the paper is accomplished, assuring its perpetuation. Throughout the period of receivership, he said, the policies of the paper will continue and the staff will be retained.

Acts to Continue Publication.

Mr. Getz said he stepped into the picture when it became apparent that the newspaper would suspend publication and, by the lapse in publication, suffer a loss of value to the property, especially in the value of the Associated Press franchise, which he said would be permanently lost unless the paper is published continuously.

"We don't want this newspaper or any other Chicago newspaper to suspend publication, so we are going to run it," said Mr. Getz. "I cannot at this time discuss reorganization, more than to say that I have been approached from many different sources on that subject and have just completed a long distance conversation with New York. It is our hope and belief that the Post will pass into the control of strong and courageous ownership."

Liabilities Set at $2,000,000.

The bill for receivership set forth that the newspaper has liabilities of $2,000,000 and assets less than that amount; that there was no hope of continuing publication without a reorganization; that, if creditors should levy on the newspaper, publication would be stopped.

In his statement last night Mr. Getz set forth the principal assets as follows:

The respect and good will of the community; irreplaceable rights of privileges to news stands, news circulation, local newsgathering, and local news transmission facilities; an Associated Press membership; a 25 year lease on the entire 19 floor Post building at 211 West Wacker drive, which contains a complete modern newspaper plant as well as stores and office floors.

145 TONS of BOSTON BAKED BEANS

Served at Pixley and Ehlers in 1930.

There must be a mighty good reason. Of course there is! Ask the patrons who have consistently ordered Boston Baked Beans during the thirty-two years of P & E service to Chicagoans. These beans have a goodness that's different—a flavor—a juiciness—an appetite appeal that's irresistible. There's an explanation of this excellence, too. Grown in Michigan where Mother Nature provides the right soil, heat and moisture, the beans are hand picked, clean and rich in vitamins. But in the transition from the bean in the pod to the bean in the pot lies the real secret.

P & E beans are baked in stone crocks and especially constructed ovens—with a large piece of pork bubbling and lending its rich flavor. After baking slowly for twenty hours to break down the starch content and make them easy to digest, they come from the ovens steaming and golden brown—a dish fit for a King or a Chicagoan. Science has proven that in no other form can so much nutriment be obtained at so low a price. In no other restaurant are the Boston Baked Beans so temptingly good.

Tune in WGN at 9 o'clock tonight and every Tuesday night at this hour for Pixley and Ehlers' musical treat. This pleasant half hour is an expression of our appreciation for the generous patronage we have enjoyed.

ILLINOIS HOUSE ABOUT TO VOTE FOR DRY REPEAL

Measure May Meet Hard Going in Senate.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The O'Grady bill No. 1 to repeal the Illinois prohibition law and the search and seizure act is set for passage tomorrow in the house. After a checkup, liberals tonight figure that 95 votes are in sight, with possibilities that a bandwagon may roll it up perhaps to 100 votes. Seventy-seven is a majority.

Meanwhile some of the Republican leaders tonight were manifesting perturbation over the possibility that the repealer may find hard going in the senate. Many link up the fate of the O'Grady bill with the destines of the Republican party. They are declaring tonight that if Republican senators try to block the bill when it reaches the senate and "evade the mandate," the Republican state and local tickets will be up against hard sledding in the campaign of 1932.

Bare Majority in Sight.

The senate is on a holiday until Feb. 17, many of the members being in Florida under the cocoanut palms. Some of the leaders of the upper house machine whose ditsricts went wet by large majorities on the November referendum are still talking of voting dry as of old. Liberals say 26 votes—a bare majority—are lined up for the repealer in the senate with two more in prospect, and the Anti-Saloon league and dry letter writers are concentrating upon the senate.

House Republicans who are for repeal, looking ahead to 1932, are gloomily drawing contrasts between dry Republicans from wet districts who are lined up with the drys and dry Democrats from wet districts who are now supporting the repealer. In the speech-making tomorrow some utterances are in prospect to the effect that the attitude of the Republican party in the legislature towards the prohibition mandate is likely to impinge directly on the vote in Illinois on the presidency and state officials in 1932.

Dry Voter Turns Wet.

Representative Truman A. Snell, Democrat of Carlinville, who has in other sessions voted dry, this time is one of the strong supporters of the repealer, his district having gone wet. Typical of the talk among the Republicans tonight is the comment of Representative Sol P. Broderick of Chicago, a Republican.

"The Democrats," remarked Mr. Roderick, "as exemplified by Judge Snell, are sticking to their platform pledges. On the other hand many Republicans are prohibitionists first and Republicans afterwards, and a party pledge seems to mean nothing to them even when backed up by a popular mandate and a Democratic landslide, if it goes up against their political dryness. A blind man ought to be able to see that when Republican legislators from repeal districts line up against repeal and against the mandate, they are dragging the party away from the people, and no party can survive that. They are committing hari-kari for the party—it means defeat and perhaps extinction. A Republican ought not to be an Anti-Saloon leaguer first and a Republican afterwards, but a Republican first."

Some Republican members, too, are protesting that pressure has been directed at them by threats to discipline them by chloroforming their bills, if in tomorrow's utterances they continue to hammer away on the argument they did two weeks ago, that Republicans from wet voting districts are under a moral obligation to follow the mandate.

All told, some pungent remarks are looked for when members rise to explain their votes, although the talk is not likely to affect the voting.

Proposals for revenue reform in Chicago and Cook county are to be given an open hearing tomorrow afternoon in the house revenue committee. The Schnackenberg bills, which contemplate the abolition of the board of assessors, the board of review, and the township assessors in the country towns of Cook, are to be argued pro and con. Some of the 38 officials whose jobs it is proposed to wipe out are to be heard and so are representatives of civic organizations and bodies which are especially concerned in taxation.

Taxes Long Overdue.

The Cook county reforms have a direct downstate interest this time, for the muddle in Cook county and the delay in collecting taxes has depleted state tax funds. Gov. Emmerson has pointed out that Cook county now owes the state $17,000,000 in taxes long overdue, and departments at the state house are facing prospects of no funds by April 1 with which to meet pay rolls.

On Wednesday a hearing is to be held on the Barr senate resolution for a commission of nine to study the twenty year old question of reapportionment. Opposition is looked for from Cook county members who maintain that twenty years of study ought to be enough.

Fire swept through a three story brick structure at 1121 West Washington boulevard last evening, destroyed the equipment of two light manufacturing tenants and drove 100 employés, most of them girls, to the street. The owners estimated their loss at $40,000.

In another blaze during the forenoon, a two story warehouse of Z. R. Carter & Brother, hay and feed dealers at 16th street and Newberry avenue, was demolished by flames. A fireman, Maurice Sullivan of truck 4, was caught in the débris of a toppling wall and seriously injured.

The Washington street blaze broke out about 5:30 p. m. in the boiler room of the basement, which, together with the first floor, was occupied by the Flexo Products company, manufacturers of mica and parchment lamp shades. The concern had tons of highly combustible materials stored in the basement.

Warns Employés to Flee.

Seeing wisps of smoke issuing from cracks in the walls and floor, Carl Johnson, vice president, and Kay Frost, superintendent of the company, tried to combat the blaze with hand extinguishers. The smoke grew denser and, while Johnson telephoned the fire department, Frost ran through the plant, warning the employés of both the Apex concern and the D. F. Heag- any Manufacturing company, occupying the second and third floors.

The last of the girls had just scampered down the stairs when, with a puff, the boxed mica and waxed paper in the basement caught fire and the flames spurted out the windows, licking the walls to the roof.

The blaze was under control within half an hour, but only the brick shell of the building remained.

Firemen Seriously Hurt.

Spontaneous combustion was blamed by firemen for the blaze which destroyed the hay and feed warehouse. A dozen horses had been led safely from their stable and the flames were under control when Fireman Sullivan and three others of his company were ordered to the roof of an adjoining one story building to chop holes to release the pent-up smoke. Sullivan was injured by brick which fell from an adjacent wall.

OFFERS TO GIVE JURY EVIDENCE OF CORRUPTION

Witnesses Are Heard in Police Inquiry.

E. J. Davis, Elmer Williams, and the Rev. Philip Yarrow of the Illinois Vigilance association were witnesses yesterday before the special grand jury investigating police conditions.

Davis demanded that Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller, who is in charge of the investigation, and a court reporter, be excluded from the jury room while he read a speech. For a time they were excluded, and later, upon Mr. Mueller's return, he discovered that Davis had not been sworn.

Explains Ouster of Policeman.

Davis, asked for evidence of corruption, declared that a policeman named Ira E. Findley had been discharged without notice and without a trial because he raided a disorderly house. Prosecutor Mueller sent for the civil service records after Davis had departed and found a letter on file showing that he [Mueller], as acting first assistant state's attorney, had recommended the discharge of Findley.

"Findley was driving his automobile and he had a collision with a car driven by Jerry Sullivan, 6154 Wentworth avenue," Mr. Mueller said. "Findley was at fault, but he threatened to arrest Sullivan unless the latter paid for the damage to his car. Under threats Sullivan signed an agreement to pay after being forced to accompany the policeman to a garage. Sullivan came to the state's attorney's office and complained and I sent a letter to the police commissioner.

Recommends a Trial.

"The next day Mrs. Sullivan called me on the telephone and said Policeman Findley had taken her husband from his home and locked him in a cell at the Englewood station because he had complained to the state's attorney. I recommended the filing of charges against Findley. The record shows that Findley received a copy of the charges, appeared for trial, and was present when the commission found him guilty and ordered his dismissal.

"That was part of Mr. Davis' testimony."

Davis offered to produce evidence for the grand jury provided that body would recommend that State's Attorney Swanson delegate power to him and that Sheriff Meyering be instructed to assign reliable deputies to him who would serve his subpoenaes on every speakeasy owner in the city. He proposed that every policeman be forced to testify; that the jury's police inquiry be sidetracked and that contracts on public work be investigated.

Davis also suggested that the newspapers be asked to withdraw reporters and photographers and print nothing about the activities of the jury.

Yarrow Asks Spiritual Revival.

Mr. Yarrow asserted that the city needs a spiritual revival.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and founder of the "Secret Six" committee, told the jury that the committee, with its investigators, had no evidence of police corruption. The committee was formed to aid the state's attorney and the United States district attorney, Col. Randolph said.

Gordon Hostetter, executive secretary of the Employers' association, said his organization had no evidence of police grafting, adding that investigating police is not his field. His job concerns racketeering against legitimate business concerns, he said.

A mysterious witness appeared before the jury and at his request the prosecutor and court reporter were again excluded from the room. The man covered his face with his coat when leaving the jury room and sought to conceal his identity. A photograph of him, however, was identified as that of Sol Frankel of Cicero, son of a dry goods store proprietor at 5111 West 25th street.

Five women were impaneled yesterday on a jury in Judge John K. Newhall's court at Geneva to try a suit in which Joseph Friedman of Aurora, a retired candy manufacturer of Chicago, asks $123,000 from the State Life Insurance company of Indianapolis.

The five women, the first to serve on a jury in Kane county, are Mrs. Lee Mighell, wife of an Aurora attorney; Mrs. Joseph Heitkotter, Mrs. Matthew Millen, and Mrs. Olive Briggs of Aurora and Mrs. G. Walter Rollins of Cedar Grove. Three others, Mrs. Margaret Ames of Aurora, Mrs. Irma Knecht and Mrs. Edith Norton of Elgin, were excused to care for their families.

In Waukegan this morning the first women jurors of the Lake county court will report to Judge Perry L. Person. They include Mrs. Jeanette Alken, who is a candidate for supervisor of Benton township.

RELIEF CRITICS ABOUT FACE AND BACK PROGRAM

Arkansas' Two Senators Praise Hoover.

ator Barkley, some of whose constituents, on farms and back in the mountains, are in as dire straits as some of Senator Robinson's constituents down in Arkahnas.

"How," demanded Senator Barkley, "are the small farmers who have no security, but who are just as hungry as those who do have security, going to be able to secure any loan under the provisions of this amendment?"

Where people had nothing with which to secure a loan, Senator Robinson answered, the Red Cross would have to take care of them. He was quiet and explicit about it, his sentences, as always, a bit ponderous and thoughtfully uttered:

"There is no provision whatever in the bill that contemplates the giving of money or anything else of value to any person anywhere. The whole compromise is based on loans."

Security May Be Small.

"Mr. President——" Senator Caraway was coming to his colleague's assistance, was demanding the floor. "Secretary Hyde, who will administer the loan fund, would have discretion to accept even a very small amount as security," said Senator Caraway.

But Senator Barkley was not satisfied. He at least hadn't changed his opinions concerning Mr. Hyde.

"In view of the harsh, arbitrary, and, in my judgment, brutal regulations which have been prescribed for the loaning of the $45,000,000 which we have already provided," he demanded, "what sort of security does the senator think the secretary of agriculture would require of any farmer who might need money?"

"I know that he has promised that he is going to give us a sympathetic and liberal interpretation."

The Same Caraway Speaks.

People looked to see whether it was the same Caraway. Same southern drawl, same broad shoulders, hunched ear high, same hands in same pockets. But a short week ago who would have dreamed that Caraway of Arkansas would one day say that a member of Mr. Hoover's cabinet, and Mr. Hyde at that, could be sympathetic or liberal?

"In view of the fact that when we had up the other bill the same promise was made, which was denied almost before the ink was dry on the President's signature, I am wondering about that," said Senator Barkley.

"I am relying upon the President to see that this legislation does get a liberal and sympathetic interpretation," Senator Caraway's voice went gently on. "It may not get it, but after all, that is all we can do. We are going to put in the hands of the President the money, with the authorization to use it. We are going to put into his hands a million starving, hungry, ragged human beings. He has said: 'I am going to treat them with sympathy and liberality.'"

"Provided"—Senator Barkley's voice was not gentle—"they have security."

Senator Wheeler cut in. He saw no loophole to permit a farmer to give other than full and adequate security.

It was Senator George of Georgia who answered him. One Democrat at least would side with Arkansas.

In the seed loans to southeastern states in 1929 and 1930, language almost identical to that in the present measure had been liberally construed.

Then Senator Robinson played his trump card—a letter from President Hoover, with whom he had conferred earlier. This was his trump card:

"My Dear Senator: As to our conversation this morning I am glad to confirm at once that the proposed additional relief measure was suggested for the purpose of real aid to the weakened credit situation in the drought area, and that in the administration of it the secretary of agriculture assures me he has no other intention and that he will interpret it fairly and sympathetically.

"Yours faithfully,

"HERBERT HOOVER."

"It does," said Senator Robinson hopefully, "commit the executive to a fair and sympathetic interpretation of the provisions of the act."

Senator McKellar was less hopeful. He recalled a "harsh interpretation" of the $45,000,000 act. Senator Glass also did some recalling. Senator Robinson had to admit that Secretary Hyde had not lived up to the senate's expectation. He had ruled out food loans.

"That is true," said Senator Robinson. "I myself have made reference to that in other addresses."

Doorkeepers Call for Order.

That was one of the places where the galleries snickered so loudly that doorkeepers "shushed" for order. Yes, indeed, Senator Robinson had referred to it.

The interruptions began to come faster. Now it was Senator Norris, troubled over the people who had no way of furnishing security. Senator Caraway answered him. Men who had security would negotiate the loan and finance those in want. Plantation owners would obtain the credit; their tenants would get a loan for food from them. He and his people, said Senator Caraway, did not ask for gifts. What they wanted was credit.

"But——" This time it was Senator La Follette, asking about the President's letter, wanting to know whether it meant there would be loans for food and for clothing and the other necessities of life.

"Implied More," He Says.

No, the letter didn't say food, replied Senator Robinson, but it implied really more than food. It implied loans for any proper purpose. And it was a promise of a sympathetic administration of the fund. Senator La Follette's insistence was not helping Senator Robinson's temper any.

"This bill really includes more than the other measure?" inquired Senator Shipstead.

"If it does not, I forfeit my reputation as a lawyer," Senator Robinson shot back.

"But does it include food?" came the prying voice of Senator Glass.

"Yes," shouted Senator Robinson, and began to wave his arms. "It includes everything that is necessary. I have said a dozen times——"

Presses Food Question.

"May I ask the senator if it does include food?" asked Senator Glass. "When did the President depart from his avowed position that to feed anybody would transform this government into a socialistic institution and put it on a dole basis?"

"O, the President hadn't changed his opposition to charity, said Senator Robinson, "but this measure was to enable the farmer to produce crops."

Then he talked about the Red Cross. A week ago no word was too harsh to apply to the Red Cross. Now, all was changed. The Red Cross had aroused itself, was aware of the situation, was actually hunting out people to relieve. Senator Copeland of New York, once the most vehement critic of the Red Cross, joined his words of praise.

"The point I am now trying to make," said Senator Robinson, "is that from one cause or another the Red Cross now is measuring up to a much higher standard of service than it was in the beginning."

Letters Tell of Relief.

He introduced letters and telegrams to show that the Red Cross relief was adequate. A short while ago the letters and telegrams were of just the opposite import. Senator Black of Alabama helped him out with a telegram. And then he concluded:

"If this congress adjourns without some fuller measure of relief than thus far has been enacted, it will brand the congress as inefficient. Of course, differences of opinion will be responsible for that failure, but I learned a long time ago that it is sometimes necessary to effect compromises, that one cannot always have his personal views reflected in legislation.

In the meantime, the Red Cross announced that it had received $7,052,977 of the $10,000,000 fund it is raising for drought relief. Chicago, it was reported, had raised $525,000 of its $940,000 quota.

Missouri Votes Relief.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 9.—(AP)—The house of the Missouri legislature today passed, 115 to 0, the senate bill for a $250,000 state relief fund to aid persons suffering from the drought and business depression. The measure was amended slightly, however, and must go back to the senate.

ARKANSAS CHILDREN GET FIVE TRUCKS OF BENTON HARBOR FOOD

Helena, Ark., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Five truck loads of food was delivered by Mayor John J. Sterling of Benton Harbor, Mich., to Red Cross relief officials here today for drought suffering school children of Phillips county.

The motor caravan paraded through lanes of cheering townspeople and deposited its cargo at the relief headquarters.

Fifteen miles out of Helena the caravan was met by a delegation of citizens headed by C. M. Young, publisher of the Helena World, through whose appeal in behalf of Phillips county school children the food trucks were sent.

In addition to Mayor Sterling, L. R. White, city editor of the Benton Harbor News-Palladium, was with the party. The News-Palladium coöperated with the Helena World in obtaining the food contributions.

Nearly $100 in pennies was in a bag donated by school children of Benton Harbor.

PRESS FOR BONUS LEGISLATION BY THIS CONGRESS

Differences of 2 Houses May Be Adjusted.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Compromise suggestions mingled today with attacks by full cash payment advocates as congress prepared for the next big hurdle in the race to avoid an extra session—veterans' relief.

Speaker Longworth and Chairman Snell of the house rules committee said they favored additional loans costing about $500,000,000 as senate administration leaders searched for a compromise.

Full payment supporters in both the house and senate voiced objections to the present situation.

However, Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, predicted some form of veterans' legislation would be enacted before the March 4 adjournment.

Senator Caraway [Dem., Ark.], author of one of the bills proposing to pay full face value of the adjusted compensation certificates, served notice he would move to discharge the committee if it has not voted on the legislation by Tuesday of next week.

Couzens Backs Caraway.

Senator Couzens of Michigan, Republican member of the committee who advocates Caraway's plan, said he would join the Arkansas senator in his move to speed up the legislation.

"I am working for some safe and sane legislation to avoid extreme proposals," Longworth said off the floor, adding he anticipated approval of a measure "which I would hope would not meet opposition from the treasury."

"I have said all along we should have reasonable legislation," said Snell, "and my position is unchanged."

The legislation was discussed today in a conference of Republican senators, and Party Leader Watson said "the general proposition" was made that some veterans' legislation should be passed at this session, but no consideration was given to its form.

Appeal Made to Smoot.

Couzens told the senate later he had frankly stated in the conference that if there was to be any "jockeying" to prevent action on the compensation bills at this session he would "not be one to help get the appropriation bills through." They must be passed to avoid an extra session.

Caraway attempted to get a promise from Chairman Smoot of the finance committee not to oppose his motion if the committee failed to act before the end of this week.

Smoot promised the committee would vote on the legislation, but said he did not want to fix a date because the committee was waiting for the house to initiate action.

Three house Democrats charged today in a joint statement that John Thomas Taylor, the American Legion legislative representative, was blocking cash payment efforts.

Urges Payments in Full.

The representatives were Rankin of Mississippi, Connery of Massachusetts, and Patman of Texas.

Representative Almon [Dem., Ala.] took a complaint against the loan proposal to the floor. He urged immediate cash payment in full on the certificates.

Representative Bacharach [Rep., N. J.] is author of the proposal favored by Snell and Longworth. Representative Connery [Dem., Mass.] attacked Secretary Mellon, who has opposed full cash payments. The treasury has not approved the Bacharach measure.

O'Neil Asked to Resign.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Moody Nicholson, commander of the Oklahoma American Legion, said today he had telegraphed Ralph T. O'Neil, Legion national commander, asking that he resign if Legion officials speaking at Boston represented him correctly in stating payment of adjusted compensation certificates was not part of the Legion program.

VETS' CLAIMS TO DISABILITY ARE 25,000 GREATER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Veterans' Administrator Hines revealed today claims for disability allowances had increased 25,000 in the fifteen days ending Jan. 31, with a total of 356,221. The administrator said that 52.43 per cent, or 186,780 claims, had been adjudicated and 169,441 were pending. The greatest number of claims were filed at Hines, Ill., which had a total July 1 of 21,785, and Louisville, Ky., which had 17,789.

RUSSIA OPENS BIG AREA IN CRIMEA AS 'JEWISH HOME'

New District Will Be Called "Freedom."

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Feb. 9.—Another large district in the Crimea has been set aside as an autonomous Jewish district by the soviet of people's commissars in Moscow. This is the fourth autonomous Jewish district legalized by Moscow. The first three were the Kalinin district in Kherson province, the Stalin district in Krivi Rog, and the October district in Zaporosha. The new district will be called Freedom.

Out in Siberia, near Biro Bijan, another autonomous Jewish district was created, but colonization there has not received support from the United States.

The Jewish communist newspaper, Emes, published in Moscow, reports that the government is having a difficult time to find families wishing to join the communal farm projects which have been organized in the autonomous Jewish districts.

Until eighteen months ago the soviets permitted each village to have its synagogue and rabbi and the traditions of Jewish family life were preserved. Then the rabbis were ousted.

The American Argojoint, a development from the joint distribution committee organized by American Jews for war relief, which has collected more than $35,000,000 for helping Russian Jews, has been negotiating with the soviet government in an effort to obtain permission for the rabbis to return to the colonies.

WISHES OF ITALY HELPED TO HALT TRIAL OF BUTLER

Rome Was Not Anxious to Aggravate Affair.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—An expressed desire on the part of the Italian government to avoid the possible international embarrassment that might follow an open airing of the Butler-Mussolini hit and run incident was responsible in part for the abandonment of the administration plan to court martial Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler.

This development became known today as the spectacular marine officer accepted the congratulations of his friends and prepared to cash in on the wide publicity accorded his criticism of Premier Mussolini and the subsequent action taken by the White House, the state department, and Secretary Adams. While Gen. Butler was represented as not having signed a contract as yet, it was said by his friends that he would embark on a speaking tour in October for some lecture bureau.

Disliked Stirring Matter Further.

According to information obtained on official authority today, Nobile Giacomo de Martino, the Italian ambassador, called upon Secretary Stimson at the state department last Thursday. His visit was ostensibly to discuss other matters and in fact was devoted for the most part to other questions. However, the ambassador took opportunity to present certain elements in the Butler case which were interpreted as meaning that he would prefer that Italo-American relations should not be imperiled through a possibly acrimonious presentation of circumstances figuring in the alleged running down of a child by Premier Mussolini.

Whether Ambassador de Martino was acting upon instructions from his premier was not disclosed. He also was careful not to present his position in the form of a suggestion or a request. But his outline of the situation was such that Secretary Stimson suggested action which led to the compromise of the case.

Compromise Is Reached.

As a result of Secretary Stimson's move, authority was immediately given Secretary Adams to effect a compromise, if possible, and on Friday an emissary of the naval secretary was sent to negotiate with Gen. Butler. He was said to have found that officer as ready to have the case closed without a court martial as was the administration. The basis of the agreement was reached and yesterday was reduced to writing and concluded.

COUNCIL HEARS CHICAGO LAWN ZONING PROTEST

A protest of citizens of Chicago Lawn against the proposed rezoning of the south side of 55th place between Central Park and Lawndale avenues for business and commercial uses was read yesterday to the city council. A number of the protest signers were in the council galleries. The rezoning ordinance was scheduled for action yesterday.

The ordinance was recommended for passage by a vote of 6 to 5 in the buildings and zoning committee. In view of the protests Ald. William R. O'Toole [14th], committee chairman, did not call up the ordinance for passage. As the property to be rezoned is in the 15th ward, which is without representation in the council due to the election of Thomas F. Byrne as sanitary trustee, the property owners' fight was carried by Alds. O. E. Northrup [19th] and William A. Rowan [10th].

The ordinance was introduced, according to the citizens, at the request of the Chicago Lawn Pure Ice company. The rezoning is desired by the company, the citizens said, to permit the erection of a manufacturing plant.

NYE COMMITTEE SIFTS CANNON'S CAMPAIGN FUNDS

Banks Called to Show Bishop's Accounts.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Another attempt to unravel politico-financial activities of Bishop James Cannon Jr., during the 1928 presidential campaign, is to be undertaken by the Nye investigating committee Wednesday.

Officials of five banks, four in Virginia and one in Washington, have been summoned before the committee, with their records relating to the bishop's accounts during the period in which he was receiving sums aggregating $65,300 from E. C. Jameson of New York, with which to finance the anti-Smith campaign in the south.

Last spring the lobby committee sought to trace the funds, but failed when the bishop told them that what happened to the money "was none of the senate's business."

Senate Situation Changed.

At the time the lobby committee took the attitude that it did not have jurisdiction to press the investigation further, but a recent senate resolution, empowering the Nye committee to extend its inquiries retroactively to include the 1928 campaign, opened the way for a further airing of the situation.

Reports filed with the clerk of the house reveal that the bishop was credited with having given $17,000 of the $65,300 to the anti-Smith Democrats on the same day that he was refunded the same amount for advances toward carrying on the campaign.

No Record of $48,000.

As to the remaining $48,000 there is no public records of its expenditure and the bishop has taken the attitude that since it was all expended, as he said, for work within one state—Virginia—congress has no authority to require an accounting.

The banks which have been asked to produce their records are: American Bank and Trust company of Richmond; First National bank and Citizens Bank and Trust company of Blackstone, Va.; the Bank of Crewe, Crewe, Va., and the Commercial National bank of Washington.

"Make Charges Public."

Sparta, Ga., Feb. 9.—(AP)—A demand that charges against Bishop James Cannon Jr., recently investigated by a church board of inquiry at Washington, "be given to the public," was made today by Dr. Rembert G. Smith, a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Dr. Smith, who some time ago published a book protesting against Bishop Cannon's political activities in 1928, made his demand in a statement in which he said:

"As the church and the public are without complete information as to the charges and the evidence, both for and against Bishop Cannon, it is not possible to form an opinion as to whether or not acquittal was justified.

"However, that matter is of such importance to the church and the nation that in justice to Bishop Cannon and his four last accusers, full information, should now be given to the public."

BILL IN NEW MEXICO PROPOSES STATE MAKE AND DISPENSE LIQUOR

Santa Fe, N. M., Feb. 9.—(AP)—State manufacture and sale of liquor is proposed in companion measures to be introduced in the New Mexico house and senate. The bills would create a New Mexico state dispensary for the manufacture of liquor with restricted sale to permit holders.

The bills are based upon a contention that there is nothing in the 18th amendment, the Volstead act, or the constitution to prohibit the state from manufacturing and selling liquors for other than beverage purposes.

In the senate the bill is sponsored by Senators A. M. Edwards and Senator George Remley, two of the state's most prominent attorneys, and Senator Charles J. Hutchison, mine operator. In the house it will be sponsored by Representative J. F. Branson, merchant of Thoreau, who evolved the idea after long studies of the federal and state constitutions.

SENATORS GIVE NEW LIFE LEASE TO FARM BOARD

Vote 100 Millions More for Loan Fund.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The federal farm board will be allowed to continue its operations without congressional interference for another year. This was the effect of the passage by the senate today of the independent offices appropriation bill carrying the final 100 million dollars of the farm board's authorized 500 million dollar revolving loan fund.

The senate rejected an amendment by Senator Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.], which would have forbidden the board to use any of the 100 millions for trading in futures on grain or cotton exchanges. The vote on the amendment was 26 to 55. Included among those voting against it were many anti-administration senators and critics of farm board policies, who made it clear that they were giving the board what it wants at this time in order that congress may not be blamed for its failure to accomplish results.

Southerners Support It.

Voting for the Black amendment were four Republicans and 22 Democrats, while against it were 40 Republicans, 14 Democrats, and one Farmer-Labor member. The bulk of the support of the amendment came from senators from southern cotton growing states. Most of the radical Republicans voted against it, although Senators Robert M. La Follette and John J. Blaine [Wis.], were two of the four Republicans voting in the affirmative. The other two were Senators James Couzens [Mich.] and Roscoe C. Patterson [Mo.].

Southern senators were particularly exercised over the use of farm board funds by cotton coöperatives in trading in futures. By permitting its funds to be used in this way it was asserted that the board is encouraging speculation.

Practices Termed Evil.

Senator George said that the farm board has been guilty of "misappropriation of public funds." In going into the futures market, he said, the board had the "false hope of recouping losses which it had sustained," and that "it has followed the same evil practices indulged in for so long by the speculative interests."

Senator Caraway protested against a further appropriation of funds for the farm board on the ground that "congress should not give them another 100 million dollars to go into the market and sell short and further beat down the price." His argument was backed up by Senators McKellar and Smith.

Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.] said he was voting against the Black amendment because he did not want to be accused of interfering with the board at this time.

"I am afraid that if we put this amendment into the bill," said Senator Norris, "and the board fails, it will be said that we have hamstrung the board."

BOUND OVER AS ROBBERS.

Frank Soderman, 30 years old, 5929 South Aberdeen avenue, and Michael Lillis, 30 years old, of 2412 South Michigan avenue, were held to the grand jury on charges of attempted burglary of a tea company store by Judge Frank M. Padden yesterday.

LINKS DRY LEAGUE IN PLOT TO BLAST HIM IN U. S. JOB

N. Y. Customs Controller Digs Up Evidence.

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—After more than a year of investigation Col. Arthur F. Foran, whose reappointment as controller of customs of the port of New York was held up at the expiration of his term, Jan. 31, 1930, because of a report that prohibition agents had found liquor in his hunting lodge at Mount Airy, Hunterdon county, N. J., has obtained affidavits stating that the raid was engineered by a politician and the Anti-Saloon league. The purpose of the raid, according to the affidavits, was to disqualify Col. Foran for reappointment.

ARTHUR F. FORAN.

Col. Foran had been recommended by United States Senators Hamilton F. Kean and David Baird Jr., who has been succeeded by Dwight W. Morrow. His nomination had been strenuously opposed by the Rev. James K. Shields, superintendent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon league.

What Affidavits Charge.

According to the affidavits in the possession of Col. Foran and his counsel, which are to be used in a legal proceeding, the colonel announces, the plot to discredit him was hatched in Newark early in January by certain political interests and the manager of a private detective agency, which was in the employ of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon league.

It was, he says, planned to get information that Col. Foran had violated the Volstead act before the President in advance of the expiration of the colonel's terms as controller of customs.

According to the affidavits private detectives visited Col. Foran's hunting lodge, ripped off the storm door, and entered the inner door by means of a pass key. The bungalow had been closed for months. The intruders had no search warrant.

Photographs of Interior.

They were accompanied by a photographer they had employed in Princeton. Photographs were taken of the exterior and interior of the bungalow and of five empty bottles which had been found outside. The door was locked and the intruders departed. They had found no liquor.

One affidavit states that on Jan. 20 the private detectives who had made the raid met at the statehouse in Trenton. The Anti-Saloon league detective, the maker of the affidavit states, said the engineers of the plot insisted that whisky must be found in the bungalow; that this private detective displayed a bottle of whisky and that a search warrant was obtained from one of the politicians in the plot for a second raid.

The next day, according to Col. Forhan's information, prohibition agents armed with the search warrant entered the bungalow and seized a bottle of whisky they found. The report was widely spread that the colonel had been found to be a violator of the law.

One of the affidavits states that the raid was made a matter of considerable ceremony. The raiders started from Lambertsville and the party consisted of two private detectives, two prohibition agents, two newspaper reporters, and a constable. The constable was taken along because the search warrant was a state and not a federal document.

Plant Whisky in Lodge.

This affidavit recites that the constable entered the bungalow through a window and that one of the private detectives, when the constable was inside, reached in through the window and placed the bottle of whisky on a table. The constable said he could find no gambling machines which, it was alleged in the search warrant, were in the place.

The maker of the affidavits swears that the Anti-Saloon league private detective called the attention of the prohibition agents to the bottle of whisky on the table, but they refused to enter the bungalow, having no federal warrant. They said they would take the bottle as evidence if the constable carried it out to them and this was done.

The recommendation for the reappointment of Col. Foran, signed by the two Republican United States senators from New Jersey at that time, still remains unacted upon by the treasury department and President Hoover.

SPANISH THUMB NOSES AT KING'S 'FREEDOM' ORDER

Goes Only Half Way, His Enemies Shout.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Feb. 9.—The long awaited electoral period, the first Spain has known in more than a decade, got off today with a start that must be judged as ominous even without the menace of a new revolt hanging over the country.

First, it developed—after the shouts of jubilation raised by the die-hards over Premier Berenguer's decree calling parliamentary election for March and presumably restoring normality, had died down—that it is not to be an open political season after all.

Only Partial Freedom Restored.

Constitutional guarantees are only being restored in part. One article of the constitution is revived against four, which are left hamstrung—those applying to illegal imprisonment, the inviolability of the home and other pertinent matters.

The republican press which, with the lifting of the censorship, was able to omit its first lusty war whoop tonight since 1923, called attention to the fact that Prime de Rivera's penal code is still in force as well as the notorious law of jurisdictions, which makes criticism of the army a court martial offense, and, of course, the constitutional provisions banning attacks on the crown.

Despite the government assurances that the liberty of congregation would be restored, the "Ateneo" club, headquarters of Spanish intellectuals—which means republicans—was kept locked up under government orders, and policemen stood in front of the place today to prevent the membership from forcing its way in.

Alba "Fires" from France.

And then Santiago Alba, former foreign minister, who has been in voluntary exile in Paris since he escaped death at the hands of Primo's soldiers in 1923, announced from France his abstention from what he terms "the crown's private electoral picnic" and his conversion to the ideas of calling a constitutional convention and a vacation for King Alfonso.

This change of face takes real significance when it is recalled that the king went to Paris last June to see Alba and got him to undertake to save the crown by democratizing the Spanish monarchy. All of the left parties, to which he looked for support, were suspicious and said they were not interested in saving the crown anyway. Alba now demands Premier Berenguer's resignation.

To cap this hue and cry the republicans today announced an enormous celebration for Wednesday, the anniversary of the republic of 1873. They will consecrate the "martyrdom" of officers shot at Jaca in December's uprising. Thousands are expected to call on imprisoned conspirators. Next Sunday a dozen theaters will be opened for republican massmeetings.

MINORITY RACES LOSING GROUND IN CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

Census Indicates Gain for National Unity.

BY EMIL MAASS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Feb. 9.—"Peaceful Czechization" of its national minorities is slowly but steadily gaining ground throughout the republic of Czecho-Slovakia.

This fact was revealed at the census, recently taken by the government throughout the country. Whereas the Poles and Ruthenians were able to keep up to the figures of 1926, the Germans and especially the Hungarians made a bad showing. In fact, the Hungarians dropped in many towns below the twenty per cent figure, which is equivalent to the loss of the minority rights. The Germans, too, lost in several towns, mainly bilingual ones. In the capital, Prague, however, they increased 36 per cent.

The Prague Nationalist newspapers describe the census as a great victory. They state that from now on no Olmuetz, Pressburg and Bruenn exist any more, for Olmice, Bratislava, and Brno [for these are the Czech names of the towns] have proved to be real Czech centers.

Fraud Is Charged.

The minority papers charge fraud. They point out that old tricks were employed to increase the number of Czechs and decrease the number of Germans and Hungarians. A short time before the census was taken the city limits of Olmice, Bratislava and Brno were extended—but only those districts added which were inhabited by 100 per cent Czechs.

Furthermore, the minority papers charged that soldiers, in fact entire regiments, were stationed in these towns during the census period and that after the census was taken the garrisons moved away again.

Question of Languages.

A dropping below a 20 per cent figure means that the city administration and the state courts are no longer obliged to accept petitions, hold trials or issue publications in the language of the national minority. It also means practically the closing of the minority public schools.

On the other hand, the state law of Czecho-Slovakia fixes the Czecho-Slovakian language as the state language. This means that any citizen of the republic has the right to demand the use of the Czecho-Slovakian language in any public office throughout the country, even in towns like Asch, inhabited solely by Germans.

STORM CENTER

$150,000 LEFT TO CHARITY BY WILL OF E. F. MEYER

Illinois charitable organizations are bequeathed $150,000 in the will of the late Edwin F. Meyer, retired capitalist, which was filed for probate yesterday with Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner. The estate is valued at $1,650,000. Mr. Meyer, who died on Dec. 12, was one of the founders of the Associated Jewish charities.

Specific bequests totaling $100,000 are made to friends and relatives, including a bequest of $25,000 to Dr. Louis E. Schmidt. A sum of $50,000 is set aside "for the purpose of assisting needy friends and relatives," and four of Mr. Meyer's servants are left $5,000 each.

One-tenth of the residuary estate is to be distributed among charitable institutions of the state and the rest is to be divided equally by Mr. Meyer's three brothers, Albert, Abraham and Carl Meyer, and his four sisters, Mrs. Levy Mayer, Mrs. Isaac H. Mayer, Mrs. Sydney Stein and Mrs. Frederick Fechheimer.

CANADA PICKS AN IRISH NOBLEMAN AS NEW GOVERNOR

Earl of Bessborough, 51, Gets the Job.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The earl of Bessborough, 51, a distinguished Irish business man and politician, was appointed governor-general of Canada today to succeed Viscount Willingdon, new viceroy of India.

A member of parliament and a lawyer, the earl of Bessborough served in Gallipoli in 1915 and was on the general staff in France during 1917 and 1918. Since then he has been active in business. He has been chairman of the Sao Paulo Brazilian railway board since 1924 and has been deputy chairman of De Beers Consolidated mines. He has also been an important figure in the Unilever group.

Appointment a Surprise.

The appointment of the earl of Bessborough came as a surprise. His name had not been mentioned among those who might receive the post.

His wife is a daughter of Baron Jean de Neuflize, French banker. They have two children, a 17 year old son and a 12 year old daughter.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 9.—Simultaneously with the announcement today of the appointment of the earl of Bessborough to be Canada's new governor general, the Canadian premier, Richard Bennett, fixed the date for the opening of parliament as March 12.

The opening already is a month overdue, awaiting the appointment and arrival of the successor to Viscount Willingdon.

Lord Bessborough's appointment is the first, under Canada's new status, to be made by the king upon the approval of the Canadian rather than the British government. It means, in effect, that now Canada appoints her own governors general.

CLEVELAND MURDER LAID TO GRAFT QUIZ

Alderman Thought Slain to Seal Lips.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Shaken to the bed rock by the mysterious killing of former Councilman William E. Potter, Cleveland citizens clamored tonight for a solution and arrest of the killers. Every available city detective was put to work on the case, with Police Chief Matowitz in personal command.

Two suspects were arrested and numerous persons were questioned, but no proven explanation of the murder had been found since Potter's body was found in an apartment here last night, with a bullet hole through his head.

Renter Unidentified.

An unidentified man who gave his name as "M. J. Marcus" had rented the rooms, and a blonde young woman had been seen there shortly before Potter was killed, police investigation developed.

There was no evidence however that Potter had known either "Marcus" or the woman. Detectives expressed the view the man and the woman had lured the former councilman there and had professional killers fire the fatal shots.

The outstanding theory on which the detectives were working was that Potter was slain to seal his lips against further testimony in Cleveland's notorious playground scandal which already has sent two prominent men to the penitentiary and which might have sent others.

Gangsters Possible.

Another theory offered was that Potter knew too much about some other money-making racket and was killed by gangsters who were afraid of him.

Woman Unconscious for Three Days; Drug Blamed

Apparently under the influence of some drug, Miss Edna Simpson, 24 years old, of 1377 East 63d street, has been unconscious at the county hospital since Saturday. Up to last night efforts to diagnose her ailment or to awaken her have been futile. According to police, Miss Simpson is believed to have taken a potion of sleep inducing powders. Hospital attendants also hold this view.

MARSHAL PETAIN OUT AS HEAD OF FRANCE'S ARMY

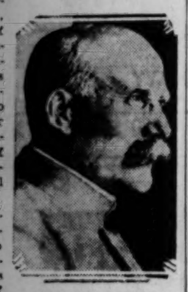
BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 9. — In the greatest shakeup in the French army since the war, Marshal Petain, the savior of Verdun, today abandoned his job as generalissimo to take over the reorganization of of the nation's aerial defenses.



MARSHAL PETAIN.
[P. & A. Photo.]

Gen. Maxime Weygand, who was Marshal Foch's chief of staff, will replace Marshal Petain as vice president of the superior council of war and inspector general of the army, while Gen. Gamelin, who won his spurs on the western front and in Syria, will succeed Gen. Weygand as chief of staff.

Held Post Since 1922.

The change, which removes France's last great war hero from the highest military position in the land, was effected by a decision of the Laval cabinet today. An official communique declared that the 75 year old marshal has been wishing for a long time to be relieved of the heavy responsibility which he has held since 1922.

In other quarters, however, it is reported that Marshall Petain fought stubbornly against what he considered forced retirement. According to this report, the change in command was decided on last fall.

At the same time, it is realized that only a man of the highest caliber is capable of bringing some measure of order to France's disorganized aviation. Aerial defense is considered of supreme importance in modern warfare.

GEN. MAXIME WEYGAND.

It is understood that Marshal Petain finally agreed to relinquish his powers on condition that he would be given a free hand on the new job.

Marshal Petain's organizing powers were proved in 1917, when he stiffened and reformed the broken remnants of the French army and built up a fighting machine which Marshal Foch drove to victory.

Enemy of Bolsheviks.

The new generalissimo, Gen. Weygand, is one of the most powerful and enigmatic figures in France. Marshal Foch had supreme confidence in him. Gen. Weygand had one chance to show his generalship and that was after the war when he was sent to reorganize the Polish army. His brilliant defense of Warsaw and sudden thrust which cut the Red armies off from their base, was termed by military critics a brilliant piece of strategy.

Gen. Weygand is greatly feared by the left parties.

Washington Courthouse, O., Feb. 9. —(AP)—Testimony probably will start tomorrow in the trial of Mal S. Daugherty, former president of the defunct Ohio State bank, who is charged with responsibility for the institution's failure.

The trial opened today. A tentative jury of ten men and two women had been seated when court adjourned, leaving only the peremptory challenges and selection of a thirteenth or alternate juror to be disposed of before the first witness is called.

Daugherty is being tried on one of 16 indictments returned by the Fayette county grand jury after an investigation of the bank's failure.

The one indictment charged abstraction of $5,350 in bank funds. The bank failed in May, 1930, with liabilities of $2,622,637.

VICE RING PREYS ON YOUNG GIRLS IN MINNEAPOLIS

Missing Students Found by Police Raiders.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—A vice ring whose victims were high school girls, was uncovered here today in a raid on a West 14th street apartment. One man was arrested and a woman and another man were being sought.

Discovery of the organization came about when a search for two girls missing since Friday led police to the apartment. The girls, 14 and 15 years old, respectively, were found, both near collapse. The man arrested, whose name police refused to reveal, was found with the two girls. Two other men, also in the apartment when three policemen made the raid, fled.

Police said the arrest revealed the operations of a band of panders and procurers, the extent of which has not been fully determined. A list of nearly 30 names and telephone numbers of girls was found in possession of the man arrested.

Questioned, some of the girls whose names appeared on the list said a woman who lived on East 15th street had introduced them to the man. Police visited her apartment this afternoon, but she had fled.

Tales of money, gifts and "loans" were gathered by Mrs. Blanche Jones policewoman, into whose hands the investigation fell today. Some of the girls said they visited the man in his apartment just "because he was kind" to them.

The two girls who were being held today are students of a junior high school. Their parents started a search for them when they failed to come home Saturday night after a picture show.

Some of the girls questioned by police said they had "reported" to the man in the apartment and had been instructed to go to other apartments in the city.

SEVEN OFFICERS ARE INDICTED IN FAILURE OF BANK

Results from Inquiry on but One Deal.

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Indictments against at least seven officials of the Bank of United States have been found by the January grand jury and will be reported to Judge William Allen of general sessions tomorrow.

Two of these indictments accuse three persons, each of violation of the penal law, a third accuses five persons and the fourth, seven.

In the indictments which have been voted, four crimes are alleged, also being encompassed by Section 305 of the penal law, which concerns the employment of moneys deposited in a bank.

The offenses charged carry a maximum penalty of seven years imprisonment, a fine of $1,000, or both.

Presentation of the indictments would have been made to Judge Allen this afternoon had it not been for the fact that it was necessary to recast them.

Hear Bank's Counsel.

Sole witness before the jury today was Isidor J. Kresel, director of the bank and its counsel, who came from a sickbed to appear and was accompanied to the jury room and homeward by his physician, who had waited for him in the anteroom. Mr. Kresel was before the jury for two hours and twenty minutes. He had asked permission to appear and signed a waiver of immunity.

According to report, the grand jury has considered thus far only the $8,000,000 deal through which the bank paid this amount, owed to itself by affiliates with its own money. During his recent public interrogation of Mr. Kresel, Mr. Steuer, special deputy attorney general conducting the investigation, declared that this transaction "might prove unpleasant for some people," but when Mr. Kresel resented it, declared he did not mean it as a threat.

Investigate Bonus Payment.

A connection between two bonuses totaling $350,000 and an agreement whereby Abe N. Adelson, head of one of the Bank of United States affiliates, took a loss of $100,000 in a stock transaction, was hinted today by Mr. Steuer at one of the open hearings into the affairs of the bank. The bonuses, it was said, were voted "for services."

At a second public hearing before Harry A. Gordon, a special deputy attorney general, Mr. Adelson was called on to repay to the bank $250,000 of this money, but the latter insisted he was entitled to the money for services rendered and refused to promise payment.

Adelson obtained the $250,000 through his corporation, but indirectly through the Bank of United States. According to Mr. Steuer it was allegedly "for services rendered" in connection with the construction of the Squibbs building at 58th street and 5th avenue, for which construction the Abenad corporation was formed.

He testified today that he personally owed to the bank $500,000—he does not consider that he owes the $250,000 he received as a commission—and that Abenad's total indebtedness to the bank was around $600,000. This makes his and the corporation's total debts $1,100,000. To this is added a debt of $422,000 as the net amount owed by the York Investment corporation, of which Adelson also is president.

U. S. Jury to Investigate Alleged Alky Syndicate

The federal grand jury will begin an investigation today of an alleged alcohol syndicate on the south side said to have purchased more than $1,000,000 worth of corn sugar from Joseph Peskin, wholesale grocery proprietor at 4446 South State street. Peskin's place was raided on Saturday night. Subpoenaes for officials of the Calumet Yeast company, 3441 East 100th street, which sold Peskin 125,631 pounds of yeast, according to federal investigators, were issued yesterday. Peskin and four employes were arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Walker on charges of conspiracy to violate the liquor laws.

FIVE INDICTED ON TALE OF TORTURE BY DISABLED VET

Held in Torment 3 Days, He Testifies.

Murphysboro, Ill., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—A story of kidnaping and "outrageous acts of intimidation that outdo all in horror the Chicago cemetery torture case," according to State's Attorney Fletcher Lewis of Jackson county, led to the indictment of five Jackson county farmers at a special week-end session of the grand jury.

Jesse Morris, 34, ex-service man seeking a compensation, told the jury that the five subsequently indicted kidnaped him, hanged him by a rope around his neck, leaving his hands and arms free, and telling him to "fight for your life"; drew a sharp knife across his throat when he became exhausted, and cut his flesh; beat him down, stripped him of his clothing, beat him, forced him to wade and roll in a manure pile; and committed other indignities on his person.

Accused of Stealing Whisky.

The torture was inflicted, Morris said, in an effort to get him to confess that he had stolen sugar and whisky from the quintet. Morris told the grand jury the men held him for three days.

A few days later, he said, one of the men came to Morris and offered him $50 to keep still. The arrest of the five men came as a result of information furnished by persons residing in that neighborhood.

Four Are Arrested.

The five men indicted were Harmon Kilgur, Milton Reeves Jr., Jess Marshall, Marion Reeves, and Lloyd Moore. Four of them had been arrested by Sheriff William Osborn late today and the arrest of the fourth man was expected.

State's Attorney Lewis said that some of the torture to which Morris was subjected "is not printable." Morris is 34 years old and lives alone in a shack in the hills of Jackson county. He served in the army during the world war and was gassed.

SNEAKS UP BEHIND PEDDLER AND KILLS HIM; IS CAPTURED

SANTO LOCASTO.

Locasto was walking in the street when his slayer ran up from behind and fired three shots, two taking effect in the neck and one in the back. A flivver squad from the Cottage Grove avenue station, with Policemen Louis Agnes and William Finn, drove up at the time and captured Scornavacche.

The police said the killing followed a quarrel over a card game in a café at 300 West 26th street. Scornavacche is a laborer, 51 years old.

MODEL EXPLAINS UNDRESSING ACT IN MAN'S OFFICE

It Was a Warm Night, She Tells Court.

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Well, now, it was confoundedly hot the evening of last May 22. In fact it was practically stifling. So what more natural than that a sensible girl should slip off her dress and be comfortable, even though in the office of a gentleman friend?

How could Mrs. Florence Sullivan Weinberg know that a bunch of private detectives and an irate wife would come busting in and draw wrong conclusions from a perfectly innocent situation? She couldn't, that's all.

So just to keep the record straight and protect her fair name and all that sort of thing, the former lingerie model left her new husband in Michigan and came east to appear in Supreme court today for the divorce suit which Mrs. Margaret S. May is bringing against A. Wilfred May, retired capitalist.

Admits Disrobing Act.

Yes, the blond beauty admitted, taking the witness stand for the defense, she was with May in offices at 295 Madison avenue on that scorching evening—but there was nothing wrong about that, is there, because a girl happens to have her dress off?

Were she and May making love? Certainly not. She defended the dress removal against the attacks of I. Gainsburg, counsel for Mrs. May.

Q.—Did you ever invite Mr. May to see you modeling? A.—Yes.

Q.—You told him you'd be in negligée? A.—O, yes.

Q.—Ever say anything endearing to him? A.—I probably said, "I like you."

Q.—Did you kiss him? A.—I don't remember. I might have. I reckon I should have.

Q.—Did you make love to him? A.—I don't think so.

Some Lingerie Details.

Counsel wanted more information about that dress business. Mrs. Weinberg explained she was wearing a "dance set" under her outer garment; a sort of combination brassiere and so forth. They got down to details of the raid.

Q.—You were reclining on the couch, weren't you? A.—Do you mean "Bivouacked?"

Q.—What? A.—It's a perfectly proper English word.

Q.—Well, we'll let that pass. When Mrs. May and the men came in did you cry? A.—I was petrified, but I think I was too upset to cry.

The trial will continue tomorrow.

MAJ. BEALS SEES R.O.T.C. MENACED BY THREE BILLS

Maj. F. L. Beals, in charge of military training in the Chicago public schools, yesterday expressed the fear that R. O. T. C. training in Chicago and the rest of the country is endangered by three bills now pending in the house of representatives.

House bill 15422, also known as the Brown bill, would withdraw federal aid and war department support of military training in all preparatory and high schools. A second bill would prevent the schools from making military training a requirement and a third would withdraw federal aid from those schools requiring such training.

INDIANA SPEEDS INCOME TAX BILL IN BOTH HOUSES

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Revenue raising occupied the attention of the senate and house here tonight.

The senate will convene tomorrow as a committee of the whole for unlimited debate on tax bills, hoping to eliminate ahead of all other business all tax proposals except those which seem popular enough to gain passage through the Democratic house and Republican senate. All bills submitted in the house have been sifted by the house ways and means committee. That committee this afternoon presented a compromise tax bill. It was advanced to second reading without debate.

The first $1,000 of individual income would be taxed one per cent annually, the second two per cent, from $3,000 to $10,000 three per cent, and above $10,000 four per cent. Unmarried persons would get $1,000 exemption, married persons, $2,000 exemption, and each dependent would warrant $200 ried persons, $2,000 exemption.

THE CRUSHING BURDEN OF TAXES.

The address by Mr. Fred Sargent at the tax conference in Chicago last week deserves the widest circulation. Mr. Sargent is president of the North Western railroad, but it was as chairman of the federal taxation committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States that he attended the conference.

Since 1890, he said, the population of the United States has doubled; its wealth has increased fivefold, and its income somewhat more rapidly than its wealth, but its taxes have increased ten-fold. Taxes are eating into the national income at an appalling rate. In 1913 we paid one dollar of tax for every fourteen of income and thought the proportion was high; now we pay a dollar in taxes for every eight dollars of income and the ratio is mounting steadily.

Mr. Sargent proposed a number of remedies. He suggested that the annual charges for the war debt might be reduced by funding the debt over several hundred years. Opinions may differ as to the precise period of liquidation, but there is much to be said at present in favor of slowing down the present rate as more rapid than the country can afford.

There should be less difference of opinion about the recommendations of Mr. Sargent to abolish many of the bureaus of government and consolidate others. These bureaus, while existing on the taxes paid by business, are engaged in hampering and restricting the activities of business. They are draining the barrel from bunghole and spigot. Mr. Sargent condemns, also, the practice of the federal government of offering cash inducements to the state governments to undertake various projects such as road building, pre-natal care of infants. Mr. Sargent referred to these offers as "bribes," and the word will stick. States are induced by these offers to undertake expenditures which they often cannot afford and from which they derive small benefit. The method was copied from England, where parliament has long been accustomed to extending aid of this sort to local governments; even there the procedure is of questionable value, small as is the territory involved.

"The tax burden should be measured to national income; we are spending in taxes beyond our means." That is a doctrine which should be impressed upon the consciousness of every citizen and especially upon every official of government.

A REPUBLIC IN SPAIN.

King Alfonso has yielded a return of constitutional government to the republican revolutionists and elections are called for the chamber of deputies March 1, for the senate March 15. Trustworthy information from Spain indicated several weeks ago that the king had been warned by the heads of some of the most influential families he must either accept without condition the calling of a responsible parliament or be driven out of the country to make way for a republic.

The suppression of the recent revolutionary flare had no real meaning for monarchical stability. Some hotheads got out of hand and were quickly put down by the troops, but the real strength of the revolution was not involved. It is the opinion of informed observers now that the king may have come around too late to save himself. If the elections do not produce a constitutional assembly the republicans will act. If such an assembly comes into being it may take decisive measures to prevent another overthrow of constitutional government. The protection may be the forced abdication of the king and the adoption of a republican form of government.

NO TRIAL FOR GENERAL BUTLER.

Gen. Smedley Butler is reprimanded by the secretary of the navy for his remarks on Mussolini and his trial is off. There have been intimations for a week that the American government was taking the Italian remonstrance entirely too seriously to please Il Duce himself. There is no evidence of it, but it is plausible. Mussolini on getting the expression of Mr. Stimson's regret was definite enough in saying that the episode was not only ended but was forgotten. The American state department in its apology satisfied all requirements in Italy. Mussolini's renown was enhanced. The Americans had done the handsome thing. Italian pride was gratified and there was nothing to be gained by going any further. There might be a good deal to lose.

Butler's indiscretion could be recognized here as such, but if he were to be cashiered for extemporaneous remarks in a private gathering of citizens it might seem that a dictator intolerant of criticism and opposition at home had been able to suppress an American officer in the United States with as much ease as he could silence an anti-Fascist in Rome. The peculiar ineligibility of Gen. Butler or of any other man in like position for the rights of free speech could have been lost to sight. Moreover, it is presumable that Mussolini did not know how far the privilege of defense might be extended. Would it be possible for the general to offer as justification or mitigation of his remarks evidence of the ferocity of Fascism, exhibits of empty castor oil bottles with testimony of escaped political prisoners from bleak islands? In the end would Butler or Fascism be on trial?

There was, probably, no danger of Fascism getting before the court martial, but it was quite apparent that the trial was without profit. The American people were likely to be irritated whatever happened. It is not known whether cooler judgment prevailed in Washington or whether another remonstrance came from Italy. Whatever moved the decision, the show is off, but it is said that Gen. Butler plans to lecture after his retirement from the service. Out of the service the sky is the limit.

THE DRY AUTOCRACY.

The drys, with their position undermined by the Wickersham commission report, are resorting again to their two favorite processes—the use of the odium theologicum to frighten opposition and the sale of indulgences to gain support. Both are familiar to prohibition conduct. One is to fix the taint of political turpitude on legislators who vote against the misrule of prohibition. The other is to tolerate rascality on the part of legislators who vote to sustain it. One attempt is to suppress independence of action upon ascertained facts. The other is to give a moral front to corruptionists who can go unmolested in their ways if they will vote dry.

Excessive enthusiasm for a discredited cause has brought many prohibitionists to a disregard of the consequences of such political procedure. They have one objective, the retention of an impossible system of government and society. Everything else is bent to this. Evidence increases that the dry control is in its final period.

Indiana has been under dry custodians and censors of the most arbitrary type who were determined to coerce everything in the state, including the Supreme court at one time. But in Indiana the other day nineteen senators arose to be counted for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, only seven short of a majority.

In Illinois the prohibitionists are trying to prevent the repeal of the search and seizure act and contend that the legislature could not get any authority from a state referendum carried for repeal by the largest proposition vote in the election. The voters asked for the repeal. The dry reply is a threat of reprisal on legislators who act on the electoral recommendation.

This era in American politics is plainly nearing its end. It will persevere to the end, but the end is in sight.

UNEQUAL REPRESENTATION.

The new Chicago postoffice is again in danger of postponement. The senate has placed a limit of $15,000,000 on annual construction on federal buildings in any one state. The postoffice department protested against the first proposal of a ten million dollar limit, pointing out that the payment for sites, now under negotiation for purchase in New York, Illinois, and Pennsylvania, may be so curtailed as to postpone much needed construction work. The raising of the limit to $15,000,000 will relieve the situation in Pennsylvania, but leaves the New York and Chicago program construction in danger. A compromise on $20,000,000 was suggested but refused.

This is another illustration of the effect of a system of representation by states in the senate. Although the states of large population contribute the largest part of the federal revenue, they are easily outvoted by senators representing a minority of the people contributing a comparatively small part of the national revenue. A limit on expenditure for federal building, appropriate to Idaho or Arkansas, is not appropriate to New York or Illinois, and to fix a limit which overrides such urgent need as, for example, Chicago has for immediate expansion of its inadequate postoffice facilities is neither just nor expedient. Chicago is the largest or at least next to the largest postal center of the country. For a generation it has not had an adequate postoffice. To postpone the present belated improvements is not economy but waste, not only to Chicago but to business throughout this region. No such mistake could be perpetrated if the representation of Illinois in congress were based strictly upon its population, much less upon its contribution to the national revenue.

Editorial of the Day

[Michigan State Journal.]

Lucky that city which owns a public utility that pays, and that continues to pay and pay and pay. For, when deficits arise, groups gather on the street corners and business becomes a matter of who can talk the loudest and the longest. Business has never yet done very well on mere rhetoric. Hard as it is to say it, a business man is usually better in that line than an editorial writer, no matter how gifted.

Detroit has a street car system with a deficit. The system came short of paying its way last year by something like $2,500,000 and this year it is expected to fall behind to the tune of about $3,000,000. In consequence the immediate managers of the system are before the more remote managers, the city government, asking for certain concessions to help them out of the hole. They want tax concessions and they want the system to be excused from doing certain paving between the tracks, as it is supposed to do.

But the tax concession and the paving concession sum up or boil down to this: that the taxpayers are requested to contribute to keep the system in operation. This means that the person who owns property shall pay for the ride or rides of the citizen who owns no taxables.

One would think that a pay as you ride system would be better, but what one might calmly think about the business of personal transportation does not have very much bearing in Detroit. The street car system there has been a political football for a longer time than most Michigan citizens of today can remember.

Most attempts at government ownership arise out of the objection to profits of owners whoever they may be. Why so many people can be made to see red in the face of a profit is difficult to see. In the long run there does not appear to be a much better regulator of business than a profit. There is vastly more sweat tempered enterprise in times of profits than there is in times of deficits. Sometimes profits may be excessive, but in the long run excessive profits are easier to be borne than excessive, persistent deficits.

FEEDING THE BABY.

MANY mothers have been urged strenuously by health departments, nurses, and other health workers to breast feed their babies. I am sure they have been pestered by the importunities of my crowd and me.

Two San Francisco physicians, Drs. Faber and Sutton, have made a study which proves that there is something to be said on the other side. This applies particularly to babies more than 3 months old. A large group of babies, 3 months old and over but less than 12 months old, who were bottle fed gained weight and grew faster than another group similar in age and in other ways except they were getting mothers' milk.

In the group of babies under 3 months old the breast fed had the advantage as compared with the bottle fed. It even seemed that breast feeding did not protect the babies against infection except at one age period and that 3 to 6 months of age. The final conclusion was that a mother at least did her baby no harm by weaning him soon after he reached 3 months of age.

But Drs. Faber and Sutton take the pains to say that the advice does not go unless the conditions are just right for bottle feeding. First, the cow's milk must be clean, fresh, and cold. Unless the milk supply is right bottle feeding is dangerous. They place especial stress on refrigeration of milk. To be fit for a baby to drink cow's milk must be promptly chilled and then kept well below 50 degrees all the time until it is to be used.

They observed their cases in San Francisco. This city has a good milk supply. The mean temperature of the climate is so low that milk does not spoil readily even when there is no refrigeration. This group of bottle fed babies were fed on milk that was always cold from cow to consumer. In addition the babies were never exposed to extremes of temperature, either hot or cold. They had cod liver oil, orange juice, and green vegetables as they were needed.

They were exposed to fresh air and to sun baths. And their food was properly prepared. Unless all these conditions can be met our San Francisco friends advise us to stick to campaigning for breast feeding. If they can be met they see no objection to having babies weaned at 3 months of age.

OXALIC ACID FOODS.

L. N. writes: 1. What is the amount of oxalic acid in oatmeal? I have had an arthritic flareup since using it heavily as a gruel.

2. Does a whole wheat cereal have the same acid content as other wheat foods?

3. Have parsley and spinach an acid ash?

REPLY.

1. I have not been able to find the percentage of oxalic acid in oatmeal. The proportion in cereals, meals, and flours is very small. Kellogg, writing of gravel and stone, says: "Cereals should be eaten sparingly." But he does not go into detail. Your experience indicates that, for you, Kellogg's opinion holds.

2. Practically the same.

3. Parsley has a very low oxalic acid content as compared with other salads. It is much lower in oxalic acid than spinach. The content of oxalic acid in spinach is not so high, but that it is allowed to subjects of oxaluria, provided they boil it twice and throw away the juice from each boiling.

WART ON TOP OF HEAD.

C. B. writes: Can you tell me the proper way to get rid of a wart on the top of my head? It is about the size of a dime and a quarter of an inch high. I have had this wart since early childhood, when I struck my head against the corner of a table. It is quite a bother.

REPLY.

Have a physician burn this off with electricity or some form of cautery or spark. The alternative is to let it alone.

CHANGE OF NAME.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a person named John James Jones signs his name James John Jones because he is known by his friends as James John Jones, but the former is his real name, will the beneficiary collect if the insured died? He has a brother named James whose second name is not John. T. M.

Yes, but some collateral evidence as to his identity may be necessary. No legal proceedings are required to make a change of name valid. Hence a marriage or other legal act performed under an adopted name is not for that reason invalid. A person adopting a new name permanently should for convenience give notice of the change to those persons to whom the information may be material. In transactions in which the old name appears we suggest continuing to use it to avoid confusion. For example, if real estate records show title in the old name, it should be used in a subsequent conveyance. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

Report is made that conditions have been remedied and the offending florist notified to discontinue further dumping. Location will be kept under observation.

DISBARRED OR EXPELLED?

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A lawyer licensed or admitted to the bar in Indiana was put out of court in Illinois. Is it the truth that he cannot practice law or defend a case in Illinois without being admitted to the bar in Illinois? H. A. K.

If by this expression you simply mean that he was physically expelled from a courtroom, this would not affect his right to practice law. If you mean that he was disbarred, this would prevent him from practicing in the state in which he was disbarred. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. —EE.

WE REPRIMAND OURSELF!

Giving Smedley Butler a slap on the wrist without even letting a court martial find out just what the row is all about has scared us stiff. We've said things about Mussolini, too, and we're not going to wait until this proud nation goes down in the dust and then turns around and takes a good poke at our snoot for starting the trouble.

WE REPRIMAND OURSELF!

We reprimand ourself because we have used Mussolini's name without permission. We didn't know Mussolini was the boss over here as well as in Italy. We don't know what we said, but we're sorry we said it. Maybe we said it at a banquet and maybe it was over the radio; and, wherever it was, we had it distinctly understood that whatever it was that we said was strictly confidential; but, just the same, we reprimand ourself for it; we hope Mussolini will forgive us, we trust Mussolini is not angry, and we will never do it again.

WE REPRIMAND OURSELF!

We reprimand ourself some more. We grovel in the dust. We rub ashes in our hair. We fine ourself five dollars. We put on a hair shirt. We beat our bosom. We slap ourself on the wrist. We kick ourself in the pants. Maybe we didn't do anything at all. But we can't take any chances. We're pretty certain we'd never done anything to make Mussolini mad, but we reprimand ourself anyhow. We can't go around feeling that Mussolini's liable to reach out any time and yank us backward by the coat collar.

WE REPRIMAND OURSELF!

We hastily and severely reprimand ourself for having made after dinner speeches without submitting an advance copy to Mussolini for his permission to make the speech. We reprimand ourself for reprimanding ourself without first asking Mussolini if we should reprimand ourself. We reprimand ourself for not calling Mussolini at once before mentioning his name or even thinking his name. We reprimand ourself for not consulting Mussolini about where we should go to spend our vacation, what sort of cigarette to smoke, what to buy at the grocery, whether we should get a new icebox, what kind of radio to get, what style pneumatic sweeper, and how many cylinders in our automobile.

WE REPRIMAND OURSELF!

All we can say in expiation of our sins, all we can do to avoid having Mussolini land on us like a bag of sand, is to say, "We didn't know! we didn't know! we didn't know!" Once again we reprimand ourself before the state department, the war department, the navy department, and the census bureau get busy. And we reprimand ourself again and again and again. We're sorry, we're desolated, we're heartbroken.

WE REPRIMAND OURSELF!

NO PROOF.

It will be said:
She wanted love
To be a thing
To hold above
The common touch,
As one might hold
A shield to guard
The richest gold.

It will be said:
She chose to mate
The warder of
The Seventh Gate,
And after, lived
Alone, aloof—
What price her love?
There is no proof!

THE NEWS from Washington (every day, every night, every hour, every minute!): That there will be no special session of congress was finally decided on today. There will be a special session of congress, as it was admitted today by leaders of both parties that it could not be avoided. There will be no special session of congress. There will be a special session of congress. There will be no special session of congress. There will be a special session of congress.

"FARM BOARD Is Nearing Crisis; Loss, 70 Millions."—W. G. N. All these noble experiments, however, are noble, none the less; oh, very noble, but just a teeny weeny expensive.

OH, PSHAW! Somebody is always taking the joy out of life. Here Smedley's court martial is called off and we can't have the fun of seeing the seven or eight admirals in their gold braid and their big swords and long ostrich plumes in their hats, and everything, sitting in state at one end of a big room with society dressed up in all its grand rags crowding the place to suffocation. Our navy has been cut down to next to nothing and our admirals having no big battleships to walk around on we never get a chance to see 'em except at a court martial, and now that's out. This country simply doesn't deserve to have admirals.

GEN. BUTLER SAYS he told that Mussolini story in the strictest confidence to the banquet guests in Philadelphia. We're losing our faith in human nature. We'll bet if Smedley in a broadcast speech over the radio told the listeners-in that what he said was not to be repeated but remain in strictest confidence somebody would go around telling it. Perhaps not. As we said before, we're simply losing faith in human nature.

LAGNIAPPE.

AND NOW that Smedley Butler, Mr. Mussolini, and the Australian earthquake are quieting down we turn for excitement to that good old reliable front pager, Alfonse Capone. Come, Alfonse, it's your turn and you've never failed us yet. Watch Alfonse, everybody; this is going to be good.

LONDON.—The Daily Telegraph's Bucharest correspondent says: "Fresh particulars received here from the Bukowina frontier indicate that the Russians have commenced the evacuation of that province. By their advance toward Nadvorna and Kaloza, which is evidently being made in great force, the Austro-German armies threaten the Russians in this quarter with the alternative of isolation or the complete evacuation of Bukowina." In Poland and East Prussia steady fighting continues along fronts extending over many miles.

LONDON.—A Geneva dispatch to the Daily Express says it is reported from Friedrichshafen that one of the newest Zeppelins, which has been missing for four days, fell into the sea off Denmark in a storm. The crew was drowned and the airship destroyed.

CHICAGO.—Norman B. Ream, Chicago and New York financier, died in New York at the age of 71. As organizer and director of many great national business enterprises Mr. Ream occupied a position of prominence among the nation's capitalists. WASHINGTON.—The congressional committee recently appointed to investigate hazing at West Point Military academy in its report sent to congress says: "Cadets Booz and Breth both were treated with great severity and were never well after they left the academy, and each died in his young manhood before the graduation of his class, but we cannot affirmatively find that their deaths were caused by the treatment." Hazing is denounced as more than criminal by the congressmen, who declared that stringent laws are necessary to end the evil.

CHICAGO.—Football and its encouragement by colleges and high schools was the subject of a heated debate at a dinner given by the Howland club in the Chicago Athletic association rooms. A. A. Stagg appeared in defense of the game and Principal O. S. Westcott of the North Division High school answered with a most severe arraignment of football. Westcott said that the game makes "brutal faces," and exhibited a picture of an "all star" team as proof. "Football is grasping, dangerous, brutal, demoralizing, and unprofitable," said Mr. Westcott. Mr. Stagg's paper introduced the subject, but was simply a straightforward argument for football as the representative type of college athletics.

He denies point blank that Senator Dawes ever made any personal representation to him or to any officer of the interior department about the maltreatment of the Poncas, and sarcastically adds that the only favors Mr. Dawes ever asked were appointments of his friends to office; and intimates that his anguish about the red man is new born.

A CIVIC INTEGRITY FUND.

Palos Park, Ill., Feb. 3.—If some man of wealth, who wishes to leave a legacy in an original way that will best bless posterity, will bequeath a fund for civic integrity, he will be a real benefactor. There are thousands of citizens in moderate circumstances who wish to see justice prevail, corruption punished, malefactors brought to trial, the connections between politics and crime broken, and officers who break their oath of office brought to bar. If there was a way in which good citizens could do their part in this without neglecting their work and paying out money which they cannot afford to spend, a great many corrupt officials would be serving time, for the amount of civic spirit that one possesses is not to be judged by his earthly possessions. The man of large wealth is often too busy, has too many connections that might embarrass him, to undertake this work. In the state, in the county, in the city are officers who undoubtedly could be removed from office through quo warranto or malfeasance in office proceedings, yet those who are wealthy enough to afford to take steps to bring it about do not do it, and those who are not cannot afford to do it. If a civic integrity fund could be endowed by some wealthy man or individuals with high ideals of public service, that would be available under proper safeguards to prevent it from being used for private, selfish, or spiteful purposes, it would be an immense service to honest government.

If the upright citizens of moderate circumstances could have the benefit of such a fund to establish civic righteousness, the officials who have been trusting on public indifference to permit them to trample on law, justice, and public rights would have cause to tremble in their boots. AN ANTI-APOLOGIST.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Secretary Stimson did not apologize for me. I venture to say that there are ninety million other citizens, besides several hundred thousand Americans of Italian descent, that the secretary did not apologize for. WEAPONS IN SWITZERLAND.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—The following is from a recent issue of the American Rifleman: "No country in Europe is freer from crime than Switzerland, and it is the only country without laws governing firearms and in which the authorities actually encourage their possession and use. There is a lesson in this for America." L. B. CROSBY.

A ROMAN PRECEDENT.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 3.—Last night, while devoting an idle hour to jolly old Suetonius' sprightly gossip about the times of Tiberius Caesar, I was surprised to bump into something like a parallel. Among others he mentioned one Cnaeus Domitius Ahenobarbus, a young Roman swell of violent temper. Suetonius says of him: "One day he ran over and killed a boy who had annoyed him by getting in the way of his chariot."

Now, it will be recalled that this fellow was no less than the grandson of Mark Antony and nephew of the great Emperor Augustus, to say nothing of being the putative father of Rome's sweet singer and casual butcher known to history as the Emperor Nero.

Nothing is said as to whether anybody was tried by court martial for mentioning the incident, and, so far as known, no miserable barbaric stain lying far beyond the far flung Roman empire was forced to apologize because of it. Nevertheless, even in a time so callous as that of Rome in the first century, the act of this scoundrel made impression enough for Suetonius to write about it about a century later, and pass it down through nineteen hundred years of time. Wherefore, may we not assume that the colorful Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler has contrived to have another Roman talked about, say at least until the year 2831!

WHITE WEASELS.

Cicero, Ill., Feb. 3.—I am much interested in Bob Becker's article on that little four footed thief, the weasel. A large part of my early life was spent hunting and trapping in the state of Michigan, and later in the state of Washington. I think that I have caught fifty of these little animals, most of them during the fall and winter months. In my experience I have seen only two white ones, and both of these in the fall before cold weather had set in. One of them I shot while hunting quail in Michigan and the other near Spokane, Wash., while hunting ducks. Both seemed considerably larger than the ordinary weasel. Do weasels really turn white in winter by nature? E. H. BARTON.

SARAH BERNHARDT'S GIRLHOOD.

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 5.—In Rochester, not far from West Branch, Ia., there is a substantial sign which tells the world that this is the "childhood home of Sarah Bernhardt." Inasmuch as neither her biography nor at least one encyclopedia mentions this, I am wondering if any of your readers can throw light on the subject. W. G. B.

Judges Seek Way to ... Political "Fixing."

BY HAL FOUST.

Three out of four tickets issued by the Chicago police for violations of traffic ordinances are ignored by motorists or are "fixed" by politicians, in eight months, 100,000 violators of traffic ordinances did not appear in court in response to tickets.

These facts were revealed yesterday at a conference in the chambers of Chief Justice Sonsteby, called by the judge to correct conditions. At the meeting were representatives of the motor clubs, the city and park police departments, the Chicago Bar association and the Association of Commerce.

"The courts have fallen into disrespect through the failure of the prosecutor and the police to follow the arrests of minor traffic violations," said Judge O'Connell, who presides in the traffic court. "Whatever corrective measure is adopted by the conference will not constitute a campaign against the motoring public but an effort to reestablish respect for the courts and our municipal government.

"Can't we call on the commissioner of police and request him to assign policemen to serve warrants on those who fail to respond to the traffic slip?" asked Robert Nau of the Association of commerce.

RESCUE LAST OF 57 FISHERMEN ADRIFT ON LAKE ERIE ICE FLOE

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 9.—(AP)—The blue clad men of the coast guard scored another victory tonight over that treacherous inland sea, Lake Erie.

After a 50 hour battle with bitter winds, blinding snow and fog, they brought ashore ten men who had faced death on grinding ice floes. They were the last of 57 saved since Saturday.

Among them were seven coast guards who were trapped by shifting ice as they went out from shore for the last boatland of marooned fishermen.

Motor Machinist's Mate Glenn Jennings who, three years ago, was acquitted for the killing of Jacob B. Hanson, secretary of the Niagara Falls Elks' lodge, was one of the crew of coast guards who rowed and slid an ice skiff out to the fishermen marooned on an ice floe in Lake Erie. The fishermen crowded about the boat. It would hold only a few; some must be left behind on the ice, and in the darkness Jennings stepped out of the boat and a fisherman took his place in the frail craft. Jennings spent the night on the ice after the returning boat had been caught by a sudden shift of ice. He was brought ashore today and recommended to headquarters at Washington for special commendation for meritorious service.

Dog Team to Rescue.

Cross Village, Mich., Feb. 9.—(AP)—A dog team today took up the trail of a fisherman, George Kruskie, lost last Friday on an ice floe in Lake Michigan after two army planes had flown over the lake and reported that he might have taken refuge in a lighthouse.

The team, driven by Harry Sullivan and Joe Schibor of this village, started out across the shifting drift ice between here and White Shoals light after the army pilots reported that a window of the lighthouse was broken. The planes, piloted by Lieuts. Harry Johnson and E. H. Underhill, equipped with skis, were unable to land at the light because of the condition of the ice.

PROTEST AGAINST BOULDER DAM ON BASIS OF SAFETY

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The Southwest Water league, at a meeting in Azusa, Cal., dispatched a resolution to Washington, D. C., demanding more thorough engineering and geological investigation of the site for Boulder Dam, before construction work should be begun.

The league, whose spokesman claims for it the participation of members from 48 cities, accepted a report turned in by Fred C. Finkle, an engineer of forty-four years practice in this section of the United States, and asks a halt in further federal appropriations toward Boulder Dam, until "safety of the dam shall have been competently passed upon."

The resolution cited Finkle's report "that said dam site had not been sufficiently explored so that any living man could tell whether a rigid dam could safely be constructed at that site by reason of unknown geological conditions," and further stated that before this could be determined, it would be "necessary to tunnel the dam site in bed rock under the Colorado river," and continued:

"Finkle is the engineer, who on Sept. 8, 1924, reported in writing that the St. Francis dam then being constructed by the city of Los Angeles was improperly designed for the foundation conditions. This dam failed on March 12, 1928, with great loss of life and property. Finkle later warned the people of the Los Angeles flood control district that the San Gabriel dam at The Forks site could not be safely constructed as a rigid concrete dam, which was later verified by the state engineering department of the state of California after the said flood control district had wastefully expended $4,000,000 prior to abandonment of the work."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Restrictions imposed by the interstate commerce commission limiting the formation of combined barge and rail routes threaten with disaster the barge lines operating on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, according to a petition filed with the commission today by the Mississippi Valley Barge Line company, the American Barge Line company and the Federal Barge lines. The first two lines are privately owned, while the third is the government barge service.

Under commission regulations, barge-rail routes held to be too circuitous, as compared with all-rail routes, cannot be established. Liberalization of the regulations is sought by the barge lines, which assert that they "face a grave emergency" by reason of the limitations imposed.

The Mississippi Valley Barge Line company, with an investment of $3,500,000 in terminals and floating equipment, is now operating at a loss of $40,000 a month, according to the petition.

Two reasons stand out as primarily responsible for this situation—the limitations on circuit routes and the refusal of the rail carriers to negotiate in respect of rates and routes in such manner as to give practical effect to the commission's decisions or the spirit or letter of the Denison barge line act, passed by congress in 1928, it is asserted.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs and colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the systems after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—(Adv.)

$423,000 IN TWO DAYS, GOAL OF RELIEF BOARD

Campaign to Aid Jobless Nearing End.

With two days remaining before completion of the $5,000,000 relief fund drive being conducted by the governor's commission on unemployment and relief, total collections in hand last night stood at $4,483,074. Provisional subscriptions valid only if the entire quota is pledged, brought the grand total to $4,576,576, leaving $423,426 to be donated or pledged today and tomorrow.

JULIUS ROSENWALD

In an attempt to devise some new method of making collections or to find means of bringing the seriousness of the situation home to wealthy individuals and business concerns, a score of prominent business men yesterday assembled at headquarters of the commission.

"The men called were of one mind that the delinquent business concerns are no more immune from giving in this grave emergency than those which have contributed," Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the drive, announced. "We are going after these concerns during the next two days and obtain the money in any way we can. Small gifts are coming to us in great volume, but the necessity now is for large gifts, and every person of means must do his part."

Joseph M. Cudahy, chairman of the individual gifts committee, yesterday announced contributions by prominent Chicagoans as follows:

Julius Rosenwald, $25,000; the Swift family, Harold H., Charles H., Edward F., G. F., and Louis F. Swift, $25,000; Vincent Bendix, $5,000; Mrs. Kersey Coats Reed, $5,000; Winston, Strawn & Shaw, $4,000; Cook, Sullivan & Ricks, $4,000; Mrs. Robert McElwee, $3,500; Miss Kate Buckingham, $1,500, and $1,000 each from Max Adler, Mrs. Robert Stuart, Mrs. Emanuel Mandel, Lewis E. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Goodman, Pam & Hurd, Edward Ryerson Jr., Sol Kline, Scott, McLeish & Falk, William H. Mitchell, Stanley Field, and Louis E. Asher.

SALLY SENDS OUT NEW APPEAL FOR JOBS FOR MEN

New Offers of Work Are Listed.

Jobs for men were scarce yesterday, despite a few which will keep the wolf from the doors of a few families for a time. Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE, who turns over to the Illinois Free Employment service at 116 North Dearborn street all jobs offered by TRIBUNE readers, reiterated her appeal for more positions for men.

Four women were offered jobs yesterday by a south side ballroom, teaching dancing in the studio. Mr. C. in the Merchandise Mart, offered $25 a week to a man who can refinish furniture. The work will be temporary. Permanent work for a chauffeur at $20 a week was offered by the T. motor company, in Stony Island avenue.

Job for Handy Man.

Mrs. J. F. M., in the 3500 block on Greenview avenue, asked for a handy man at 50 cents an hour and carfare. A. M., in the 1800 block on East Seventy-third street, asked for a girl, either white or a Negro, to wash baby clothes at 50 cents an hour.

W. C., in the 600 block on Cornelia avenue, wanted a man to wash windows at 15 cents a window. Mrs. J. G., in the same block asked for a piano tuner.

Mrs. J. R., in the 9300 block on Racine avenue, said she would pay a woman, either white or colored, 50 cents an hour for washing windows.

J. T. C., in the 6700 block on Crandon avenue, offered 50 cents an hour to a woman to do cleaning work. N. H. H., in the 5700 bloc kon Stony Island avenue, wanted a white or Negro laundress at $3.50 a day.

Apartment and Salary.

An apartment hotel in North Dearborn street offered an apartment free and a salary to a decorator and his wife or two decorators who would undertake the spring decorating of the building.

C. M., in the 300 block on North Avers, offered a painter a job, painting the ceiling of his home. A. L. S., in the 4200 block on North Mozart avenue, asked for a woman to clean windows.

PERSONAL VIOLATORS OF DRY LAW HARD TO CURB, WOODCOCK SAYS

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Amos W. W. Woodcock, federal prohibition administrator, declared here today that personal prohibition cannot be enforced perceptibly except through curbing of commercial violations of the liquor laws.

Mr. Woodcock came here to confer with officials of the Eighth prohibition district and "any one who is interested in prohibition." He expects to reach a decision on the permanent appointment of M. L. Harney, now acting as chief of the Eighth district.

"The prohibition laws," the administrator said, "cannot be enforced to reach every personal violator, but they can be enforced effectively against commercial violators. We are concentrating on the commercial violators. Through curbing his activities a reasonable number of personal violators will be reached. However, we must rely on education to stamp out personal violations."

Traffic Manager Is Found Shot to Death, Gun at Side

Lee A. Weaver, 43 years old, 7841 Cornell avenue, traffic manager for Roberts and Oake, meat packers at 45th stret and Racine avenue, was found shot to death in the basement of his home by his wife yesterday, with a gun by his side. Police said they believed Weaver had killed himself, while despondent over ill health, but relatives said they knew of no reason for suicide.

GOOD FELLOWS ADD $1,200 TO FUND FOR NEEDY

Yesterday was another eventful day for the Good Fellows. More than $1,200 arrived in gifts and pledges to be added to the fund which is maintaining 304 families, the heads of which are out of work. The total of the Good Fellow fund, raised since last October, now stands at $91,777.37.

Among yesterday's gifts were dollar bills and five dollar checks as well as the large pledges made by business concerns. Every small gift helps to swell the fund. It will take every dollar that can be raised to keep up the budgeted income for these adopted families. The investigation by the United Charities, Central Charities bureau [Catholic], Salvation Army, and Jewish Social Service bureau assures a contributor that every penny goes to a worthy family.

Jarecki to Probe Rulings on Council Race Protests

An investigation into the findings of the board of election commissioners in the protest hearing against aldermanic candidates was promised yesterday by County Judge Jarecki, replying to the Municipal Voters league charge that political expediency had influenced certain decisions. Judge Jarecki, however, made it known that he had no jurisdiction over the decisions. The board announced yesterday that the objections of Ald. Berthold A. Cronson [4th] to the nominating petitions of William G. Agar had been overruled.

"You can drive all day at 60... and your Germ-Processed won't thin out!"

HOW often have you heard, "I'll have to change oil early this time because of high speed driving"? It was quite the customary thing, until Conoco Germ-Processed Oil came along.

Now an all-day drive at a 60-mile speed brings no oil worries. You know that Germ-Processed oil won't thin out at high speeds; know, too, that it actually reduces motor operating temperatures because of the added "oiliness" produced by the Germ Process. The proof . . . at the Indianapolis and Altoona races at speeds up to 120 miles an hour and in numberless individual tests . . . is history now. Your own experience will add to the weight of the proof.

You need Conoco Germ-Processed Motor Oil in this day of high speed motors and high speed driving. You'll find it at the sign of the Conoco Red Triangle... the proper grade for your car at 35¢ a quart.

THE LONG LOOP

BY B. M. BOWER

SYNOPSIS.

Dix Larrabee, head of the Whistling Creek ranch, was swindled in an oil well frame-up by Owen Gray, neighboring rancher and banker. Everything he owned, except the ranch, was mortgaged. Dix, an orphan, keeps from his grandmother and his young brother, Chuck, the true state of affairs. Gram has her heart set on seeing Chuck a doctor. Chuck has expensive tastes and his indulgent older brother has a hard task paying his college tuition and material demands.

Mary Sedgwire tempts Dix with the idea of changing the brand of the cattle from the O T ranch to a coffeepot, symbol of Dix's own.

Pete, an Indian helper, discovers a lost valley with a geyser on the Coffeepot ranch. The passage leads to it, through what is seemingly a blank cliff wall. It is an ideal hiding for cattle.

With vague misgivings Dix begins rustling from Gray's herd, hiding the stolen cattle in the valley. A blizzard obliterates all traces of the crime. After a second foray Dix decides to call quits, but Mart and Tom continued night riding on their own. Dix's herd diminished steadily after every shipping.

Chuck and a flyer friend named Frosty arrive at the ranch. Chuck confesses to Dix that he has given up a medical career for aviation. He and Frosty plan to build secretly a speedster plane for a prize. A shed built against the crevice hiding the entrance to the valley seems to them the ideal place for their work.

Owen Gray's aunt and cousin Helen visit the O T ranch. Helen knew Chuck in school. From what Owen tells her, Helen guesses the true situation involving Dix. She and her friend, Josephine Parker, drive over to call on Larry, their nickname for Dix. When she meets Dix it's a case of love at first sight, but Dix believes she is only a girl and avoids her.

INSTALLMENT XX.

A TRANSFORMATION.

Dix unsaddled at the corral, went over to the creek and caught Coaly, but finished setting that shoe, but he did not sing "Moon dear, how near" while he did it. He did not sing anything, nor whistle.

When the shoeing was finished—and he hurried the job—Dix got a bag of shoe staples and the claw hammer and rode off down the creek to mend a bad place in the fence next the railroad; and that was a job which he did not worry at all, but stretched through the whole afternoon.

Through the lengthening shadows of the hills he rode home at supper-time, wary as a wolf slipping home at dawn from his hunting. From the top of a knoll which the trail avoided but which he forced Coaly to climb he sat for a while scanning the ranch, the trail over the shale ridge, the undulating stretch of open range beyond Antelope Creek. Never had he seen the familiar country look so still, so steeped in the serenity of empty spaces. Dix couldn't have explained just what sort of transformation he expected to see in the 20 mile stretch of range, but a person who had done what she had done to him might be expected to leave some sort of mark on nature. She hadn't. Same old hills and valleys; not even a streak of dust to show that she had traveled that brown, crooked road.

She'd gone on back to the O T hours ago, most likely, and the best thing she could do was to put her out of his mind. She was Chuck's girl, anyway. And if she wasn't he'd be in damn poor business, making love to any girl—with that O T stuff hanging over his head.

Still, it was with a sick feeling of loneliness that he rode home that evening and in spite of himself his eyes roved questioningly around the place. The yard was empty of any big blue roadster whatever, and the Ford sedan stood dumpily alongside Chuck's yellow car in the shed garage. Dix had half expected Chuck and Frosty would go back with the girls when they went home to the O T, but it was evident that they hadn't. Maybe there wasn't any real official engagement after all, in spite of those two kisses he had witnessed. Dix caught himself yielding to a faint hope, but crushed it.

The lamps were lighted in the kitchen, and Minny's phonograph was going full blast when he walked up the path. It was past suppertime and Minny was no doubt keeping something hot in the oven, waiting for him to eat before she started her dishwashing.

Within the warm, lighted room two couples swayed rhythmically to the strains of "Let me call you sweetheart," the slip-slip of their feet on Minny's waxed floor sounding like rubbed folds on the old fashioned silk Gram used to wear for dressup occasions.

Dix stood for 10 seconds motionless and was just making up his mind to sneak around behind the table and escape to his own room when Chuck and Josephine came waltzing by. Without any warning whatever Helen pulled out of her partner and caught Dix by the hand, swinging into his astonished embrace.

"Come on—dance. I know you can," she commanded him lightly.

"You don't know a darn thing about it if you say I can," Dix retorted, as both his feet slipped involuntarily into step with her.

"No?" she waited until he had guided her past the big range, past Minny sitting beside her phonograph, on to where Gram sat smiling with her rocking chair pushed back into the corner where coats and hats were piled, her toes tucked in out of the way of their treading feet. "You dance the way you ride," Helen finished as they rounded the table.

"All that rough?"

"Like nothing human."

"Sounds like a slam to me," murmured Dix, secure behind his bantering, simply because she could not see his eyes. "What went with the car?"

She asked suddenly during the momentary break while Chuck moved the chair back to the beginning of the tune. "I didn't see it anywhere around."

"It acted like it wanted a drink, so I brought it back here by the pump."

"That the only reason—'cause it wanted water?"

"You would ask that! Well, partly because I hated to see you miss your supper. The way you faded out of the picture I knew all traces of our presence must be removed before you would venture back."

"You seem to know a lot more than little girls are taught in boardin' school," Dix taunted, daring to emulate Chuck's bold badinage.

"But tell me, why did you rush off like that?"

"Somebody on the ranch has got to work," Dix began guardedly, and was silent. What was the use of stalling with himself—or her, either, for that matter? He knew—they both knew why he had left. Chuck wound the phonograph for another dance, and Dix could feel the muscles of his arm relax, wanting to press the girl's body closer. But he wouldn't do it. He tried to remember what he was in the eyes of the law, and he had to remember, too, that Chuck had first claim."

"Supper no good, you no eatum now," Minny announced shrilly, slapping a huge platter of fried trout on the table and waddling back to the stove for the potatoes and gravy. But Chuck waved her off, his eyes speculatively considering Dix and Helen.

"What we've got to have is a radio," Chuck loudly announced as the scrape of chairs subsided and Gram had begun to pour the coffee while Minny lumbered slowly down the long length of the table with the filled plates. "We could get one when we go after our plane. And then, what say we give a party folks? Regular old time cowboy dance to welcome the prodigal home. Tom and Mart here used to dish up some darn good dance music, and Dix is a wiz on the guitar. All your crowd from the O T and a bunch from town—say, whadda yuh say, girls?"

"Huh, Helen? Wanta do it?"

"Need you ask, Larry?"

"All right, then, it's settled. Whistling Creek ranch is sho' gonna tie one on the whistle." But all the while Chuck was rattling along with his party plan his eyes were studying Dix, who gravely stirred sugar into his coffee and looked neither to the right nor left.

God provided a full moon on the night Chuck chose for his party, with stars, and with frogs piping lustily along the creek bank, katydids rasping their shrill chorus under grass and stone, and a faint breeze grateful to the dancers when they stepped outside the big, empty kitchen.

Minny's stove and work table had to go into a nearby tool shed, where Minny boiled coffee in a brand new tin wash boiler and tin cups were strung on a cotton rope and hung along the walls until wanted. One hundred and ten tin cups for those expected to drink coffee that night; and that meant that everybody on speaking terms with their neighbors drove over to Whistling Creek. At sunrise next morning they drove away again—all except Frosty and Jo, who announced that they were going to stay and help Minny clean house.

So Dix had to hunt another job of mending fence that day, with a hunk of coconut cake and three deviled ham sandwiches from the party stuffed in his saddle pockets to sustain him until Helen took herself off the ranch.

Good morning!

This might be rated as a good, strong he man picture if Helen Twelvetrees, being terribly fussy about her eyelashes and profile, weren't in every crick and crevice of it. Is THIS the girl who pretty nearly made history in "The Grand Parade?" You'd never recognize her. Such self-consciousness! Such posing! Such mincing conversation! My word! I think she wears a wig and that her eyelashes are false in this picture—but don't take that for gospel. Mr. Ripley and I MIGHT some time be wrong.

The story is a "western" and there IS gold in the "them thar" hills it tells about. The mining of the gold brings on a lot of trouble that stews down to sweet peace in the end for all in the film who have it coming to them.

J. Farrell MacDonald and William Farnum are fine as a pair of feudists, both good men and true, who love each other like a pair of strange bulldogs through most of the action. William Boyd qualifies as the chap both men call "Son," and who finally effects their reconciliation. Helen Twelvetrees is awful. Other rôles, including villains, bar flies, ranch hands and a justice of the peace, are well and vigorously played.

The dialogue isn't much to brag about and the sound was pretty bad Saturday morning at the Palace—so loud it nearly blasted you out of the theater. But "The Painted Desert" has several exciting sequences, some fine scenery well photographed, and is, on the whole, fair entertainment.

"FAIR WARNING."

OLD AND YOUNG CHICAGO TO HONOR MEMORY OF LINCOLN

From reminiscent age to exuberant youth, all factions of Chicago's population will participate in this city's observance on Thursday of the 122d anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

One of the main features of the local activities will be the program of the G. A. R. to be held at 2:30 o'clock in Memorial hall of the public library building. William P. Wright, an official of the G. A. R., will give the address of welcome.

At 10 o'clock in the morning the Cubs, the younger brothers of the Boy Scouts, will make their first public appearance here when they lay a wreath on the statue of the Emancipator in Lincoln park. An honor guard of Sea Scouts will take part in the ceremony, and Scouts from all parts of the city have been invited to be present. Lincoln's birthday has been designated as Citizens' day in Boy Scout anniversary week.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Chicago Historical society of the acquisition of some valuable Lincoln relics from an old woman, a resident of Coles county, Ill. She inherited them from her great grand-mother, Sarah Bush Lincoln.

They include a cane made by Lincoln for his stepmother; a breast chain used on the oxen driven by him on the trek from Indiana to Illinois, and a try-square and compass which he used in helping his father, Thomas Lincoln, build the humble log cabin. The objects are particularly valuable, representing as they do a period of which little is known in Lincoln's life.

Mrs. Roger Hunnewell of 7016 Greenview avenue yesterday exhibited a copy of a letter written by Lincoln to her grandfather, Joshua R. Giddings, his friend and supporter, after Lincoln's first election. The letter was in answer to one quoted by Ida M. Tarbell in her "Life of Lincoln."

"My good friend," Lincoln wrote, "your very kind and acceptable letter of the 19th was duly handed me by Mr. Tuck. It is indeed most grateful to my feelings that the responsible position assigned me comes without conditions, save only such honorable ones as are fairly implied. I am not wanting in the purpose though I may fail in the strength to maintain my freedom from bad influences. Your letter comes to my aid in this point most opportunely. May the Almighty grant that the cause of truth, justice and humanity shall in no wise suffer at my hands. Mrs. L. joins me in sincere wishes for your health, happiness and long life. A. LINCOLN."

Letter Depicts Lincoln After Booth's Crime

Usher Tells of Grief of President's Wife.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—A hitherto unpublished account of the death of Abraham Lincoln, written by a member of his cabinet who was present at his bedside, has been obtained by the library of congress. This became known today.

The new account is in a letter from John P. Usher, Lincoln's secretary of the interior, to his wife, written on April 18, 1865. Lincoln was shot on the night of April 14 and died the next morning. The letter was obtained by the library from Mrs. Wesley Taylor, a descendant of Usher's.

The cabinet officer, according to the letter, as soon as he heard of the tragedy, went immediately to the house opposite Ford's theater, to which the wounded President had been carried. There in a small back room he found "Stanton, McCullough, and Mr. Welles with the surgeons, four or five in number. Ogelsby and Farnsworth of Delaware were there; John Hay and four or five others, Sumner, and Colfax with the number."

The letter continues with an account of Mrs. Lincoln's grief. "Soon," it says, "Mrs. Lincoln came in and the scene that then occurred beggars description. She implored him to speak to her and said she did not want to go to the theater that night, but that he thought he must go because people would be expecting him, as he had been so extensively advertised—which the villains had done. She called for little Tad and said she knew he would speak to him because he loved him so well and, after indulging in dreadful incoherence for some time, was finally persuaded to leave the room."

Mr. Usher declared "the deeds at Seward's were, if possible, the most dastardly of all."

Negroes Recall Lincoln; Ask Hoover for Anti-Lynch Law.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 9.—(AP)—The National Equal Rights league tonight asked President Hoover to signalize Abraham Lincoln's birthday by taking steps to end lynching so "that the race Lincoln emancipated may be vouchsafed protection of life 67 years thereafter."

The league called the President's attention to an audience he granted a delegation from the National Colored Anti-Lynching congress last Nov. 25.

Chicago Garden Show Set for Merchandise Mart Next Month

Three hundred garden club women representing the majority of 102 organizations affiliated with the Garden Club of Illinois met yesterday afternoon at the Merchandise Mart. They discussed what use will be made of approximately 100,000 square feet of floor space to be filled with garden displays in a flower show there March 21 to 27.

It is likely the larger features, such as model gardens and home plantings put on by parks systems and garden club units, will number hundreds, while the smaller individual exhibits probably will number thousands, according to John A. Servas, appointed manager of the show by the garden clubs of which Mrs. W. L. Karcher of Freeport, Ill., is president.

West parks, Lincoln park, south parks systems, the Cook county forest preserve, and the National Association of Gardeners already have signified their intentions of putting in some of the larger exhibits. Trade organizations which have indorsed the show include the Commercial Florists' association, the Potted Plant association, the Allied Florists' association, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery association, the North Shore Horticultural society, and the National Association of Gardeners.

It's No Wonder Some Can't Make Eyes Behave, Scientist Says

There is one "dominant" eye, which is usually the right eye if a person is right handed, and this eye bosses the other. The two eyes don't work all the time. They can only focus on one object at a time; everything else they see double. When persons are asleep their eyes are apt to roam around, turning outward or away from the nose. Babies' eyes have a hard time learning to work together.

Those were a few of the things Dr. Charles Sheard, director of the division of biophysical research of the Mayo Foundation for Medical Education and Research, Rochester, Minn., discussed yesterday. He addressed the twenty-third annual convention of the Illinois State Society of Optometrists in the Palmer house.

The sessions are attended by 500 men who fit glasses to eyes and who will meet again today.

Anita Stewart Plans Stage Career; Starting Saturday

Anita Stewart, who left the silent screen three years ago when she married George P. Converse, New York banker, was in Chicago long enough yesterday to impart the news that she has been studying acting in Hollywood the last few weeks and is going on the stage in a new act Saturday in New York.

THE STAGE

THE Theater Guild will fulfill the promises it has made to its Chicago subscribers by offering three plays at the Illinois theater, not the Blackstone, for a spring season beginning March 2. The first of these will be "The Lonely Way," by Arthur Schnitzler, which is now in rehearsal in New York. "Elizabeth the Queen," with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in the central rôles, may be counted on as a certainty. The third play will probably be "Green Grow the Lilacs," a drama of frontier days in the old Indian Territory, garnished plentifully with ballads of the cattle ranges.

This announcement ends the uncertainty about the Theater Guild's plans for Chicago. Its activities will be transferred from the Blackstone to the Illinois because of the change of management at the former playhouse. The Guild's contract for Chicago bookings is with the Erlanger firm, which recently relinquished its lease on the Blackstone. The Illinois, which flies the Erlanger banner, then became the logical place for the continuance of the Guild's schedule.

Incidentally, Fred Stone's engagement in "Ripples" will end at the Illinois next Saturday night. The theater will be closed for two weeks pending the arrival of "The Lonely Way." Tom Powers, who acted the novelist in "Strange Interlude" and King Magnus in Shaw's "The Apple Cart," will have one of the principal rôles in Schnitzler's comedy.

The Cort theater, which has been closed for almost a year, will become active on or about March 1. George E. Wintz, producer of "Jonesy," now at the Playhouse, has made arrangements with U. J. Herrmann, owner of the Cort, to stage a series of comedies there this spring. He has a number of plays in view, among them "Apron Strings," "Broken Dishes," "It Never Rains," and "All the King's Men." All of them have had careers, more or less recent, in New York.

For the rest of the season the Goodman theater's plays will be offered for three weeks instead of four. As a matter of fact, this arrangement started with "The Sea Gull" and has applied to "Rebound," the current bill. The decision to continue it necessitates a readjustment of season reservations. The present subscription tickets will be canceled and a new series will be issued.

"Lazzaro," a play by Luigi Pirandello, the foremost dramatist of modern Italy, will be given its American première at the Goodman theater next Tuesday night. This will be the Goodman's sixth production of the season.

George White's musical comedy production, "Flying High," will begin an engagement at the Grand Opera house Sunday, Feb. 22. Which means that Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book" revue has only two more weeks in Chicago. This entertainment may return, however, for a postscript engagement, possibly at the Apollo theater.

Chicago Is $400,000 Behind Quota for Drought Aid Fund

A total of $540,000 has been raised by the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross during the last two weeks toward the drought relief fund. This leaves $400,000 to be obtained by the committee under the chairmanship of Samuel Insull, with Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, Howard W. Fenton, and Melvin A. Traylor as vice chairmen.

As no organized campaign is being conducted at this time, the officers expressed the hope that contributions will be sent without solicitation, made payable to the American Red Cross drought relief fund, and sent to the Chicago chapter, 616 South Michigan avenue.

Among the major contributions received during the past week were: Santa Fe railroad, $25,000; Swift & Co., $20,000; Harris Trust and Savings bank, $12,000; Crane company and the United States Steel corporation Chicago subsidiaries, $10,000 each; Cyrus McCormick, Richard T. Crane, Wilson & Co., each, $5,000; Harold F. McCormick, $3,000. Many other gifts from $2,500 down to $250 were received.

Child Disease Expert Starts Clinics Today as Sachs Memorial

A six weeks' program of clinics and public lectures on tuberculosis in childhood and youth will be started today with the arrival of Prof. Franz von Groer, director of pediatrics at the University of Lemberg, Poland. Dr. von Groer's program will be followed by a spring campaign against tuberculosis conducted by the Chicago Tuberculosis institute.

Dr. von Groer was brought to this country by the college of medicine of the University of Illinois through a residency provided by the Chicago Tuberculosis institute and known as the Theodore B. Sachs memorial visiting professorship.

Gallatin Papers Tell of French at Yorktown

Yank Finds Baron's Diary About City's Capture.

VERSAILLES, France, Feb. 9.—A list of those killed and wounded in the siege of Yorktown during the revolutionary war has been discovered by Warrington Dawson. It is included in a document of Baron Gaspard de Gallatin, an officer in the Swiss guards of King Louis XVI. and aid de camp of Count de Rochambeau.

WARRINGTON DAWSON.

The record, a "journal of the siege of Yorktown" and written in the hand of the baron, gives much important information about that phase of the war. In addition to a day by day account of the fighting, it contains an itemized list of officers and men with the American, French, and English armies at the Yorktown and Gloucester engagements.

This manuscript, together with others by De Gallatin relating to the American revolution and George Washington, long had remained in the family papers of the officer, unknown to historians, until Mr. Dawson, special attaché at the American embassy here, recently came across them. He learned they were in the possession of Edmond Scherdlin, president of the Paris court of cassation, and he obtained permission to examine them.

De Gallatin was a Swiss nobleman and a cousin of Albert de Gallatin, American minister to France in 1816. He commanded a company of grenadiers which formed part of the first brigade of Rochambeau's army in the United States.

The company under De Gallatin received orders to march at the head of the main column on June 10, 1781, from Newport to Williamsburg, the document says. They arrived in the latter city Sept. 24. They found there the troops landed three days before from the fleet of Count de Grasse and troops from the Antilles brought by the Marquis de Saint Simon.

The bulk of the army from Newport arrived in Williamsburg Sept. 26, the siege of Yorktown starting the next day.

"De Gallatin summarizes the operations of the opening day," Dawson said, and "day by day he mentions each unit participating in the action, ending with a list of the killed and wounded. He goes with particular detail into the big attack on the night of Oct. 14, when French troops and Americans operating in conjunction with them captured the two main redoubts protecting Yorktown.

"De Gallatin fixes the French as having a total of 9,300 officers and men operating at Yorktown and Gloucester."

Mr. Dawson, who obtained permission to examine the records and have them photographed, has long been a special attaché of the American embassy here, despite a spinal ailment that has confined him to bed for many years.

SOME STATES' LAWS ARE DENOUNCED AS FETTERS UPON WOMEN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—One thousand laws discriminating against women were said tonight by Miss Maud Youngen, congressional chairman of the National Women's party, to be still in effect in the United States.

She made this statement in a radio address over the National Broadcasting company after Senator Shortridge, California Republican, and Senator Barkley, Kentucky Democrat, had outlined legislation passed by their parties in behalf of women.

Miss Younger said there are some states that permit the father to will away the child from the mother.

That make the father the sole guardian of the child.

Where the wife's personal possessions, including jewelry and clothing, belong to the husband.

Where the wife's earnings belong to the husband.

Where women do not have the right to serve on juries and are not eligible to various state offices.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I have been going with a young man for the last nine months. I have every reason to believe he cares for me and naturally I do not conceal from him the fact that I care for him, too.

"However, in the last few weeks there has been some subtle change in his attitude. And he has told me that, much as he would like to terminate our affair to the satisfaction of us both, he is held back by some unexplainable feeling. He goes further to say that his type would better appreciate the girl who was more distant, aloof, than the girl who left no doubt in his mind as to her accessibility, so to speak.

"I am convinced that the basis of this whole idea lies in his business worries and troubles at home. In his confused state of mind he has come to associate me with his troubles, and as a sort of outlet of his emotions he has come to believe that the biggest of all his troubles is his inability to make up his mind concerning me.

"As a remedy to the situation, I have suggested that he stay away for a time to see how he would react to a prolonged absence from me. The result has been his return, more ardent than ever, and then, suddenly, a complete return of his former state of mind.

"I have even gone to the extent of analyzing the situation with him, pointing out to him the probable causes of his mental unrest, but without success. Perhaps my method is all wrong, or perhaps it is lack of method that has caused my failure. In any case I consider that while I may be down I am not out—yet."

Case clearly stated—and I should say, to date, handled with direct modern girl precision. But I dunno about putting a faltering man on the Freudian rack. He may just not like having his emotions pried into so "authoritatively." Many men do not.

But, if the absence test worked once why not give it a second trial; or, at least, give the man the feeling that he is on vacation, so to speak, so far as you as a worry are concerned? There's nothing like letting the leash out a bit when the "animile" begins to chafe. In precarious financial moments, such as the man may be suffering, better let him nurse his ego wounds quietly and by himself. Don't insist that he expose them to you.

Trick Capelet-Jacket Ties Into Blouse Effect

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Paris fashions have given us capelets and blouse jackets and jacket blouses galore. In fact, little unexpected wraps have become an accepted, and therefore to be expected, part of the majority of our chic ensembles and the Paris couturiers have been sitting up late nights (at least it would look that way) to find something surprising along that line.

Lucile Paray turns a clever trick by inventing a capelet and blouse jacket all cut in one piece. You can see how she does it in the ensemble, sketched here. The skirt and the aforementioned trick jacket are of dark green crêpe. The skirt is perfectly simple, except for one of Lucile Paray's favorite diagonal godet panels encrusted in the front, to give it fullness.

The tunic blouse that accompanies this costume is of white crêpe de chine (of course, you know that dark green and white are one of fashion's smartest mélanges at the moment). It has a low necked Byronic collar and tie of the white crêpe de chine. The sleeves are simple and fit the forearm closely. A white tailored belt is worn at the natural waist. When the jacket is tied the snug white tunic showing below it gives the effect of a light hip yoke.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Fall in Line.

"Dear Miss Blake: My mother says my boy friend should only see me once a week. His parents think the same. He agrees. Please advise.

"GRACE."

It seems to be a satisfactory arrangement, so you may as well agree, too.

Send Flowers.

"Dear Miss Blake: My girl graduates in June. What shall I give her?

"BEANS."

Flowers would be a most appropriate remembrance.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Too Literal Acceptance.

A friend of mine asked me if I cared to go to the church she belonged to. I, of course, accepted the invitation. I had never been in the church before. I was sitting very quietly when I heard the minister say: "We shall now sing hymn 82. Let us rise."

I took my book, stood up, and started to look for hymn 82. Before I found the hymn I glanced up and noticed that nobody was standing in front of me or on either side.

I sat down and, when I finally found hymn 82, I saw that the name of the song was "Let Us Rise." Imagine my embarrassment. N. B.

Routine Habits Should Not Be Cause of Friction

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Short reading references for the expectant mother will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Naps and meals and the beginnings of orderliness should not be argued about on each occasion. They should not be fought out each time. They should become routine. This is, of course, absolutely true, and it is one of the most pertinent statements that was made in the letter quoted Sunday.

But these things, and obedience in general, cannot be attacked alone. Often when a fundamental rightness comes into the relation between a child and his parents, the specific details like tantrums, tears, sulks—clear up quite easily. A child becomes more amenable when he feels, deep down, the love and companionableness of his parents—that is, when all's right with his world.

Still, a few practical hints will help the mother who, seeing her failure, has changed her fundamental attitude. She needs to change on the surface, too, in the hour to hour treatment of her small son or daughter.

The second is, if you do, don't let your small son or daughter see that you're wrought up or concerned.

The third is, don't take too seriously a child's "No," or "I don't want to." Half the time ignore it.

The fourth is, reverse your system of scolding or fault finding, blaming and cross looks, and substitute fair weather—approval, praise, and cheerful friendly looks. Praise and approval are great lovers. Go out of your way to find a chance to use them.

Stoves Needed.

"We need a gas range and a coal heating stove and since we cannot buy them I am coming to you. If some reader has them to give I shall be grateful to receive them.

Having to struggle along without a stove to cook on and with no means of heating the house is neither a comfortable nor convenient situation.

Bright Sayings of the Children

A little 5 year old boy and I were out for a brisk walk facing the wind one cold, windy day. At the end of a few blocks I said, "Don't you want to stop and get your breath?" He said, "No, I've still got some."

the 80 per centers ..what is it they lack?

Physicians have long known the very thing they need—certain factors which renew vitality and increase resistance. You under-par people—the 80 per centers—may obtain these factors—Vitamins A and D—a pleasant, new way.

Squibb Adex Tablets supply the "building up" elements which have made cod-liver oil so good for run down conditions. They are new cod-liver oil tablets!

Physicians recommend the daily use of Squibb Adex Tablets, not only for general building-up purposes, but also to help resist colds—nose and throat troubles. Think how much this adds to efficiency!

Each Adex Tablet is guaranteed to contain as much Vitamin A and Vitamin D as one-half teaspoonful of Squibb Cod-Liver Oil. Squibb protects this high vitamin content by an exclusive process. Thus Adex Tablets are always effective!

Ask your physician about taking Squibb Adex Tablets daily to regain your energy and build resistance. You can get Squibb Adex Tablets at any reliable drug store.

Don't Poison Yourself with Excess Acid

Excess acid puts an unnecessary [illegible] on the body machine. It is a menace to health. It curdles the food we eat into insoluble lumps, forms gas in the stomach and intestines; attacks the delicate linings of the digestive organs, and often, if allowed to go uncorrected, produces constipation, ulcers, chronic indigestion and other serious disorders.

You can correct stomach distress almost at once. The surest and quickest way is Milnesia Wafers—which are pure milk of magnesia in a pleasant flavored wafer. Excess acids are immediately neutralized.

Thousands of physicians and dentists are daily recommending Milnesia Wafers in preference to the old-fashioned liquid form of milk of magnesia because they are more effective, more convenient, less expensive and much easier to take. Ask your druggist today for the home package of Milnesia at 60c, or the convenient "carry" package for the vest pocket or purse at 20c.

Bertha Baur Quits as Opera Box Chairman

BY THALIA

MRS. JACOB BAUR has indicated a "FINIS" to her ten years of energetic and successful service as chairman of the opera box committee of the Friends of Opera.

The announcement of this well-nigh cataclysmic change in the active personnel of the Friends was made at the annual meeting as the Casino yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Arthur Meeker read a letter of appreciation for Mrs. Baur's decade of unremitting labors, first as chairman of the women's committee working for the guarantors' fund, and later of the opera box committee which succeeded the earlier group.

Then there was a rising vote of thanks and the presentation of a big armload of American beauties. Mrs. Baur says she has no definite plans for next winter, but she is thinking about a trip around the world.

Her successor will be appointed at an executive meeting soon. About the only other change in the board is the election of Mrs. Francis Johnson as corresponding secretary to succeed Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson. Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick and Mrs. Arthur Meeker are again honorary and active chairmen, and the other officers are Mrs. Baur, Mrs. Edward F. Swift, Mrs. Edward Hines, and Mrs. Charles H. Swift as vice chairmen; Miss Helen Gilbert as recording secretary; Herman Waldeck, treasurer, and Miss A. M. Barkman, executive secretary. Mrs. Charles H. Swift will continue as chairman of the program committee, Mrs. Holbrook Clarke as chairman of the music students' committee, and Mrs. Arthur A. Small is chairman of the army and navy tickets committee. The F. of O., you know, sees that opera tickets are given to various music students, the blind, and army and navy people.

QUIN RYAN AND BRIDE

MR. AND MRS. QUIN A. RYAN.

Quin A. Ryan, director of radio station W-G-N, and Miss Roberta Nangle, assistant society editor of THE TRIBUNE, were married yesterday in the chapel of Our Lady of Mount Carmel convent. Only members of the immediate families were present. The ceremony was performed by Msgr. Joseph Casey, the pastor.

The bride, a daughter of John Nangle of 667 Cornelia avenue, wore a tunic blouse of eggshell satin over a black velvet skirt, with a small hat of black felt and panamalaque and a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. She was attended by a sister, Miss Eleanor Nangle. Joseph Ryan, of the faculty of the University of Notre Dame, was best man for his brother. Mrs. James Healy, aunt of the bride, and Attorney Quinn O'Brien, uncle of the groom, were among those present.

Some Lake Forest News and Some About Other Places.

Perhaps you didn't know . . . that Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McLaughlin [Corinne Brewer] are to live on Waveland road in Lake Forest when they set up housekeeping . . . that Mrs. A. Harris Whiting and her daughter, Elinor, who hasn't been well all winter, are down at the Biltmore in Phoenix until April 1, and that Ann Elizabeth Walsh is with them . . . that the Frederick T. Vanes of the Drake have gone off on their usual winter visit in Florida and that they are planning to go to Europe this spring, also as usual . . . that Mrs. George A. Ranney and Cornelia are on their way back from a few days' stay in New York . . . that the James M. Hopkinses' telephone number for their new apartment on State parkway is 1530 to match their street address . . . that the Goodman theater has installed an apparatus for deaf people [it consists of a highly sensitized microphone placed in the center of the footlights and wired back to headphones in the back row].

The Tavern makes another concession to the ladies! The board of governors has voted that they may use the club at luncheon on Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays. Decoration day, Fourth of July, and Labor day. First, they couldn't ever have lunch there, then this sacrosanctitude of the noon repast was broken for Saturdays before football games and not resumed.

The annual meeting was held last night, with the University Banjo club enlivening the proceedings. John A. Reichard, J. Russell Forgan, and Robert C. Orr are new members of the board of governors, which includes [besides them] Preston Boyden, John Wentworth, Roy D. Keehn, Ted Shaw, and Alfred MacArthur. They'll meet tomorrow to nominate officers.

Parties—Dinners—Luncheons, Teas, Art, Theater.

1,000 PRESBYTERIANS OF CENTRAL WEST DISCUSS WORLD NEEDS

Nearly 1,000 Presbyterians of Chicago and the central west met yesterday at the Presbyterian Theological seminary. Sessions continuing throughout the day under the chairmanship of the Rev. Dr. Edward P. Westphal, Philadelphia, national director of adult education of the Presbyterian church, were devoted to the subject "An Awakened Church in an Expectant World."

The Rev. Dr. Joseph A. Vance, Detroit pastor, blamed present national and international unrest on the idle rich, militarism, race prejudice, and the financial slavery of one nation so that another may enjoy luxury. He said that man will never succeed nor contribute good to the world until he learns to regard God as a personal influence.

Portraits of two distinguished Americans which have been presented to the law school of Northwestern university were unveiled yesterday at brief services held on McKinlock campus. A portrait of the late Chief Justice William Howard Taft was given by John C. Shaffer, former editor of the Chicago Post. That of Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission, was presented by Henry Barrett Chamberlin on behalf of Mrs. Loesch.

"His influence on the evolution of American law and of our American civilization," said ex-Judge Andrew A. Bruce of the late chief justice, "was immeasurably great, an influence history never can ignore. It was given to Chief Justice White and Chief Justice Taft to bring order into our industrial chaos, and, while recognizing the right and necessity of combinations of both capital and labor, to protect the fundamental principles of personal liberty and to prevent the tryanny of either capital or labor and of a thoughtless and militant majority."

"Recognized for his worth, many honors have come to Frank Loesch," Mr. Chamberlin said. "But with all his honors, there are some of us who feel that his outstanding accomplishment rests on his vigorous leadership of the Chicago crime commission. To his generalship in this undertaking is pinned the hope of the law-abiding in this community."

Food Talk.

Fish is a neglected article of food. There seems to be almost a prejudice against it in some families while others just forget about it. They'll have a can of salmon for a hurry up lunch, perhaps creamed tuna fish for a chafing dish supper, sardines for a picnic, maybe a codfish ball on some cold winter morning or shrimp salad or cocktail when the club comes. And that's the extent of the use of fish in the diets of too many American families.

Fish is not only an excellent protein food but it is also valuable for its iodine. This is especially true of fish from the sea. Because it is not consumed as often as it should be we introduce fish quite often in our menus, hoping that the suggestion will mean the inclusion of an adequate amount of iodine in the diet.

Only a week or so ago I suggested broiled finnan haddie for a luncheon. And the reaction of one of my readers was expressed in these words, "Your menu idea is good but please tell us what you are talking about when you use such words as 'finnan haddie'?"

Finnan haddie is simply smoked haddock, split open, part of the backbone is removed and the head is cut off. It gets its name from a promontory in Scotland where this preparation is particularly well made. Some persons have the erroneous idea that the fish comes from Finland and the mode of preparation is Finnish. All the best rules for preparing dressing, curing and cooking haddock are Scotch. The French think little of haddock in any form. Some of their best cooks have not a single recipe for it.

Try these finnan haddie recipes. We believe you will find it fish in a pleasant form.

MIXED VEGETABLE SALAD.

FINNAN HADDIE A LA DELMONICO.

Cayenne.
Finely chopped parsley.

Cover fish with cold water, place over slow heat and allow water to come to boiling point. Let stand on range for 25 minutes, keeping water below boiling point. Drain and rinse thoroughly. Separate fish into flakes, add cream and eggs. Season with cayenne, add butter and sprinkle with parsley.

Meta Given will answer in this department questions that are of general interest from readers. Personal replies will be made by mail where stamped, self-addressed envelope is inclosed.

DURING COLDS
Infectious Germs
Survive in Handkerchiefs
Handkerchief unsafe if used once . . . should be discarded to prevent constant self-infection

Safety Demands Kleenex
Use it once—then discard

Why Colds "hang on"

THE use of Kleenex in place of handkerchiefs may actually shorten the duration of your cold! This promise comes to us from the scientific laboratory, after a remarkable series of tests on handkerchiefs used during colds.

These tests reveal the vast numbers of disease germs discharged into a handkerchief during colds. As many as 240,000 in a handkerchief used one time! As many as 4,170,000 in a handkerchief used several times!

This means that the ordinary handkerchief carries countless germs back to the face every time it's used. Germs that should be destroyed—are destroyed when you use Kleenex.

Use Kleenex—then discard

Each tissue that touches your face is absolutely clean. Think how much more sanitary! Health authorities advise Kleenex because of its vastly greater safety. Many schools now teach its use.

Kleenex is a soft, immaculate, super-absorbent tissue, handkerchief size. So gentle, so soothing, that irritation is impossible. So inexpensive that each tissue may be used just once, then discarded forever.

You buy Kleenex in Cellophane-sealed packages. Each tissue is as completely sanitary as it looks—and its snowy whiteness is a joy to see.

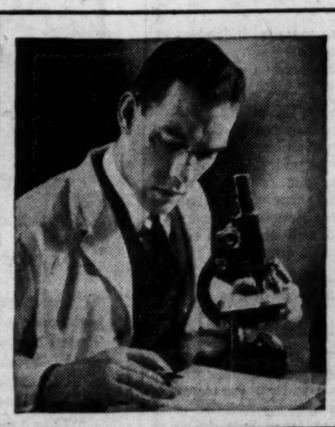
The use of Kleenex will materially reduce your laundry bill. You can use many individual Kleenex handkerchiefs for the cost of merely laundering a single linen handkerchief.

Kleenex has many other uses that make it an essential in the modern household. It is the safe and sanitary way to remove creams and cosmetics. Kleenex removes every trace of dirt and powder along with cleansing cream.

Ask for Kleenex at any drug, dry goods or department store; 25 cents, 50 cents and $1. The coupon will bring a generous sample free.

What Science says about the ordinary handkerchief

1. It may self-infect the user time after time.
2. Spread infection among others.
3. Infect clothing in which it is carried.
4. Infect clothing in laundry bags (germs survive for days).



Bacteriological Tests show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 germs per handkerchief. The types of organisms identified and included in the enumeration are the Staphylococcus albus, Staphylococcus aureus, and others known to be associated with colds.

2. That organisms representative of those known to be associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and/or soap water followed by clear water, were found not to be killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

Corns Lift Out
With Fingers—No Pain!

Thanks to a new discovery made from a Japanese product your foot troubles can be quickly ended.

Ice-Mint as this new preparation is called is said to shrivel up hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes so that they can be lifted out easily with the fingers. It's wonderful. Think of it; only a touch or two of Ice-Mint and real foot-joy is yours.

There is not one bit of pain or soreness when applying it or afterwards and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

If your feet are inclined to swell or puff, or if you have cracked or bleeding toes, it will draw the inflammation right out and quickly heal the sore and tender places. It is the real Japanese secret of fine, healthy little feet and is greatly appreciated by women who wear high heel shoes and by men who have to stand on their feet all day. Try it. Just ask in any drug store for Ice-Mint and learn for yourself what solid foot comfort really is. There is nothing better.

Call of Ocean Finds an Echo in Paintings

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

ANOTHER brilliant exhibition has been placed on view in the Knoedler gallery. Those who love the sea will find the greatest delight in seeing these superb marine paintings by Stanley W. Woodward. They are alive, fresh, and vivid. The water runs free. Here is the huge purple trough of a towering wave, there is the green backwash of a tide that breaks in white foam upon gray cliffs.

"October Moonlight" will, perhaps, stand out as being the most effective and the most beautiful of these paintings. It is a prize picture, but without knowing that fact its worth speaks clearly. Here is a startlingly real sea going back and back into wide reaches under a glinting, glimmering, silver light that picks out the tops of the waves and paints the shifting surface with a pattern of shadow. In the foreground are rocks and spray and the swiftly hurried flow of water.

"The Bowsprit" is a spirited instance, just the beak of a great boat showing, jutting over the rippled surface of midocean. There is a fascinating pitch of green water and white foam in the little picture, "Grey Cliffs." "The Conflict" is the thunder of tumultuous waters beating upon the rock defenses of the shore. There is nothing of the theatrical in this, although "The Storm" hanging near is a little forced in key.

"The Angler" is a great picture for early spring for any one who suffers the Izaak Walton itch. The river is running fast under a clear sky and the man is determined on his sport. There are trout in the feel of it, but yet, trout or not, the day and the river and the chance of a big one, the chance more than all, are alive, quivering in the awareness of this sport which makes kings of its adherents.

"The Red Barn" and "Street in Bermuda" are two paintings in which the artist has turned from the lure of water. They are picturesque and colorful, but seem little more than pleasant asides in a story that runs through chapter after chapter telling of the magic, the beauty, the wonder, and the danger of the sea.

The exhibition will continue through Feb. 28.

WOMEN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

The woolen jacket suit is one of the smartest models of the kind. A blouse of flat crêpe, that is washable, uses plaited ruffling. The jacket doesn't hide this, for it is collarless. Black wool crêpe with turquoise blue, rust red wool jersey with beige, and a cricket green monotone tweed with the blouse of a darker blending shade of wool jersey are distinctly smart selections.

The pattern, 2910, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36 and 38 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 35 inch material for the jacket and skirt, with 1½ yards of 39 inch material for the blouse.

Off-the-Face Hats Require Softening Details to Be Pretty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday we talked a bit about coiffures. But such are the current demands that you can't let many days elapse without taking up the subject of hair and hats and faces, can you?

I'm just wondering, with all the concern the pushed back hat is causing these days, if the ankles, by any chance, are being forgotten. Anyway, that general retreat of the hats to the rear of the head certainly does call for facial activity—and hair help.

Gosh, there are days when a kindly brim shadow would be welcome! In lieu of which we have, however, the task of softening the face with the hair. There are precious few women over 30 who can wear their faces completely denuded of hair on brow and cheek. The young ones can arrange their hair so you'd think they'd just had a prison shave and no one's feelings would be so terribly injured. That's the glory of youth. Once over that border line, you've got to do a bit of curtaining, as it were, to keep from looking hard as nails.

I sat across from a woman the other day who hadn't a wisp of hair showing. She was one of those "black witches," or may have been a devastating witch years ago. Black eyebrows, black eyes, lines in her forehead and the kind of purplish rouge thickly applied to her cheeks that makes one look hard and old. The hat line was harder than granite. Maybe it was very, very stylish, but as somebody said, women are never loved for being terrifically in the mode. They've still got to have a soft touch or be content with only admiration for their "smartness."

Now, you'd better study that hardness of face character well and keep miles away from it, if it's the impression of charm and sweetness you want to impart. Try out all manner of tricks of pulling waves out, here and there, a bit on the forehead, a bit over the cheeks—anyway, out in front of the ear. It's quite all right, understand, so far as style goes, to show some hair, so don't be worried about that. And materials of which hats are made may be made to lend the needed softness, too.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover gave a luncheon today for the wives of the assistants to the heads of the executive departments. Later in the afternoon Mrs. Hoover occupied a box at the concert of the Curtis Institute Symphony orchestra. Her guests there were Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr., Mrs. Stark McMullin, and Miss Susan Dyer.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of the Vice President; Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, wife of the secretary of state; Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, wife of the chief justice, and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, wife of the speaker of the house, were among the guests of honor at the Willard at the annual cabaret grill tonight of the Women's National Press club.

The dinner was followed by a program of "stunts" by the members and an orchestra of members. All the famous men and women of the day were good naturedly jibed in the clever skits, many of the women being among the guests.

The cabinet hostesses all were present except Mrs. Robert P. Lamont. Also the congresswomen were among the guests of honor, among others being Amelia Earhart Putnam, who came from New York this afternoon for the party; Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, wife of the former senator from Rhode Island, who came today.

"I was ashamed of my hands, but I had hoped no one else noticed them. Then I chanced to overhear that comment. From the woman I admired most in our club, too. 'Careless,' she had called me.

"Then I realized how my red, roughened hands spoiled the effect I wanted to make. But how to have pretty hands—with DISHES to do three times a day?

"It was a little friend of mine who works in a beauty shop, who helped me out.

"'We use LUX suds in our manicure bowls,' she told me—'because they leave the hands very soft and lovely. If I were washing dishes I'd use Lux in the DISHPAN—get a beauty treatment every time I did the dishes!'

"Now my hands are as WHITE and SMOOTH as before I was married! I never saw such a magical improvement. I'm proud of them now, thanks to Lux."

CHINA'S FUTURE AT STAKE IN 1ST PEOPLE'S PARLEY

Ruling Party Prepares for May Convention.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, Feb. 9.—All eyes of Nationalist China as well as Manchuria, Mongolia, and Tibet, are now centered on the national convention on May 5 of the Kuomintang [People's party]. This will be the first meeting representative of all China in the history of the republic founded Feb. 12, 1912, when the Manchu dynasty was overthrown. Nineteen years of civil warfare has prevented any such meeting previous to this time.

There will be no opposition party; there will be no national election. The people's conference will be the ballot box. Those of the millions of Chinese who have not joined the Kuomintang will have nothing to say. In the years to come there may be something of a democracy in China, but will then the one group now in control will perpetuate itself until challenged by an opposition most likely growing out of itself.

Plans of Convention.

The convention is expected to pave the way for the general organization of the Chinese republic along the ideas of its founders. It will not only attempt to outline a code of laws for federal and provincial rule, but will also aim to fix China's foreign policy.

The sessions will be held at Nanking. Delegates will number 520. The housing of such a number forms a problem, since living accommodations in the Nationalist capital are extremely limited.

Of the 520 delegates 450 are to be elected by the provinces, which include the three in Manchuria. Twenty-two delegates will be chosen from the municipal districts, twelve from Mongolia, and ten from Tibet. There will be seats for twenty-six delegates from Chinese residents in foreign countries, chiefly from the Straits Settlements, the Philippines, Java, and other regions where Chinese have gone as workmen or traders, in addition to representatives of students and merchants in the United States, Great Britain, and Europe. Manchuria will send 20 delegates.

Restrictions Are Severe.

There will be no particular stuffing of the convention by the war lord politicians since it is stipulated that delegates shall be elected by the following organizations: Peasant unions, labor unions, chambers of commerce and industrial groups, educational associations, universities registered with the ministry of education and vocational educational groups, and Kuomintang organizations.

In an effort to restrict the delegates to those amenable to the principles of Sun Yat-Sen, the following groups are officially declared ineligible to the convention: Those found guilty of counter revolutionary acts or those under arrest for such activities, those found guilty of corruption and other forms of malfeasance of office, those deprived of their public rights, insane persons or those who have been accused of "peculiar hobbies," and finally those who have been expelled by the Kuomintang.

There are no restrictions upon student groups, recognized as the backbone of the Kuomintang. The students probably will be the dominating forces in the convention.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Prime Minister MacDonald put a temporary quietus today on rumors that the British government is about to initiate some movement for international reconsideration of war debts and reparations.

Lieutenant Commander Kenworthy asked the house of commons "whether, in view of the present world economic situation, any proposals were under consideration by the government for summoning an international round table conference on the subject of inter-allied debts and reparations."

LIMIT PUT ON RADIO ADS BY COMMISSIONER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—A limitation on the kind and amount of advertising broadcast by radio stations were held today to be necessary by Radio Commissioner Lafount.

He said broadcasting stations were licensed to serve the public "and not for the furthering of private or selfish interests of individuals."

"Since advertising furnishes the economic support for the service a station renders and makes it possible," he added, "it must necessarily be an exception to the rule.

"However, the amount and character of advertising must be rigidly confined within limits consistent with the public service expected of the station."

Plan Community Stations.

THE EVENING BULLETIN REACHES 91% OF THE HOMES IN PHILADELPHIA'S BILLION DOLLAR MARKET

The Illusion of Average Selling Costs

And some startled executives find that their salesmen's calls on the trade . . . in towns, villages and crossroads . . . cost $5.13 each.

Philadelphia has no parallel!

The 560,855 daily circulation of The Philadelphia Bulletin, intelligently used and ably supported, will overcome any obstacle which 1931 may present.

Leader—De Def.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

A good old-fashioned red fire patriotic demonstration seemed imminent at the Chicago Stadium last night when a couple of American fellows got all stirred up and made a lot of excitement at the expense of some foreign bike riders. The only trouble was that the foreign boys wouldn't stay put after midnight and Chicago's 25th six day bike progressed toward down with five teams in a tie for first place. At midnight Freddie Spencer and Normal Hill, said American boys, were in front all by themselves. Twenty minutes later four sets of teams were keeping them company.

After the partial collapse of the all-American demonstration Richili and Grimm, Georgetti and Brocardo, De Nef and Charlier, and Letourner and Guimbretiere, all foreigners except Grimm, were sharing honors with Spencer and Hill, with Richili and Grimm holding the technical lead as a result of their 68 points.

Steal Four Laps.

Spencer and Hill threw themselves into the aforementioned patriotic frenzy in the brief interval of 25 minutes after the evening sprints and stole four laps to place themselves in the lead.

Previously the top flights had been cluttered with estimable athletes from Italy, France, and points west, and things looked pretty tough for wavers of the red, white and blue. Then Mr. Spencer of Plainfield, N. J., and Mr. Hill of San Jose, Cal., got their inspiration along about 10:30 o'clock and started their pedaling. Their first lap was innocent enough, for they carried seven other teams with them. When they went out for their second lap the teams of Buschenhagen-Kroschel and Debaets-Beckman were the only ones that could keep up with them. The third they swiped all by themselves, and in their fourth they were joined only by Letourner and Guimbretiere.

Those of the 13,000 customers who were waving Old Glory had their ardor tempered somewhat by the persistence of Letourner and Guimbretiere, who got gay in a series of jams after 11 o'clock and, along with Georgetti and Brocardo, stole two laps. The French "Red Devils" thus went into second place and in in a mileage tie with the leaders, Spencer and Hill had 53 points and Letourner and Guimbretiere 39.

Four Teams in Tie.

There was much business between 9 o'clock and 9:30 o'clock, a span that gave four teams a tie for the lead instead of the two play standoff that had existed at the beginning of the evening's entertainment.

The best riding of the stirring half hour was done by Richili and Grimm, who had started off with a two lap disadvantage. Then they pulled abreast of the Letourner-Guimbretiere and Linari-Belloni combination their previous efforts in the sprints established them as technical leaders of the race, they having more points than any team in the race at the time they pulled into the lap tie. The other team in the four way tie that was effected just before the opening of the 9:30 sprints was the Belgian pair of De Nef and Charlier.

Ritter and Lands, Debaets and Beckman, Buschenhagen and Kroschel, Georgetti and Brocardo and Spencer and Hill were in the second flight, the greatest progress of the flock having been shown by Debaets and Beckman who gained three laps from 8 o'clock to 9:30 o'clock. They had been in 13th place until after supper last evening.

No Serious Spills.

Unlike the first night of racing, the evening was remarkably free from serious spills, although there were a considerable number of bounces off the boards. On the other hand there were more jamming thrills, there being 126 laps as compared with 40 stolen before midnight on the opening night.

Five jams during the evening sprints brought further shuffling of the leading teams. Linari-Belloni and De Nef-Charlier stayed in front, but Richili and Grimm had held their lead less than 15 minutes and were cast back to form the second flight all by themselves, while Letourner and Guimbretiere here hurled back into third flight.

Results of the 9:30 sprints:

FIRST—Peden, Ritter, Horder, Spencer.
SECOND—Horan, Elder, Grimm, Beckman.
THIRD—J. Walthour, McNamara, De Nef, Peden.
FOURTH—De Nef, Brocado, Grimm, Kroschel.
FIFTH—Belloni, B. Walthour, Grimm, De Nef.
SIXTH—Belloni, Letourner, Debaets, Peden.
SEVENTH—Winter, Buschenhagen, Linari, Peden.
EIGHTH—Peden, Debaets, Grimm, Belloni.
NINTH—Rodak, Buschenhagen, Georgetti, Border.
TENTH—Peden, Georgetti, Horder, Rodak.

Hornsby Talks About Cubs and New Ball

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, Chicago Cubs baseball manager, isn't willing to predict that his team will win the National league pennant this year, but frankly says there "is nothing about which to worry seriously."

The Rajah settled down to a spring training plan today a few hours after his arrival here and said the pitching staff which he would take over to Santa Catalina island a week from tomorrow probably was better than that of last season.

Malone on Coast.

Hornsby wasn't ready to make unqualified statements concerning the new ball. "I haven't seen it yet, and of course you can't tell anything about it, until it is tried out. It undoubedly will cut down the length of the hits, but I hardly think it will materially assist the pitchers.

"It should help a curve ball hurler somewhat and might give the fast ball a little more 'hop,' but raised seams or it it is still going to be the smart pitcher that wins ball games, no matter what kind of a ball it is."

Pat Is Hopeful.

Malone also was reluctant to comment, but said he hoped he would be able to make his fast ball do a few more capers.

Hornsby is going to start his pitchers and catchers off in earnest Feb. 17, while the rest of the club will arrive three days later. The Rajah will spend a few days here before going to Santa Catalina. The first Cub player to arrive there was John (Sheriff) Blake, who reported Sunday.

Duluth Hands St. Louis Sextet 20th Defeat, 7 to 2

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Unable to fathom the five man defense of the Duluth Hornets, the St. Louis Flyers met their 20th defeat of the American Hockey league season here tonight, 7 to 2. The Flyers have won only five games.

MR. BUSH TAKES AN INVENTORY OF HIS WHITE SOX

First Baseman Still Is Missing Article.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The time is growing short, but Donie Bush, the little man who manages the White Sox, remains optimistic. He came back to town yesterday to look over the baseball situation and in the course of a talk admitted that he still thinks he'll be able to accomplish one or two things that will add strength to the 1931 edition of pale hose.

Bush also admitted that if one or two trades are not accomplished he will be more or less fearful of consequences. Without one or two experienced athletes added to his collection he will be forced to start the season with an infield at least 50 per cent diluted by green rookies, and he is inclined to think that a combination such as that might not make suitable progress when the American league procession gets under way.

Wants First Baseman.

The Sox manager's chief desire is, of course, a first baseman who can hit and who knows what it is all about. He would welcome Lew Fonseca, for whom the Indians, according to reports floating around all winter, would present to the Sox in exchange for Willie Kamm, the veteran third sacker. However, Owner Comiskey recently was credited with a statement that the deal would not be made. Another possible hitch is that Cleveland might not be willing to go through with the proposition, pending the adjustment of its salary difference with First Baseman Morgan. Just now Morgan is making threats to let the American league shift for itself.

Bush also has an outfielder of more than every day ability in mind, but the identity of the man or how he is to be obtained, if at all, is Bush's own secret. Bush wants the fellow for duty in center field, a spot which now has as candidates for regular employment Johnny Watwood, who has been around for several years, and Fred Eichrodt, a former Indian drafted from the New Orleans club. One of these two might prove just what is needed, but Bush prefers not to take a chance. He may even go into the minors for a new candidate if an intra league deal can't be consummated.

Will Start Cissell.

It is Bush's intention, even if Kamm isn't traded, to start the training grind with Bill Cissell occupying third base. However, Kamm will not be discounted entirely. He'll get his old job back if Cissell proves unable to hold it. However, Kamm will be impressed with the necessity of hustling in behalf of the team. It was failure to do this that caused him to be yanked off the post last season. At least, he was charged with that offense.

Shortstop, in the preliminary plans is to be assigned to Appling, the rookie from Atlanta. Mulleavy, purchased last season as a shortstop, but who was baffled so completely by ground balls that he had to be benched, will be given a shot at second base. He'll have Johnny Kerr, a lightning fielder, and Jefferies, a rookie, to contend with. Mulleavy gives indication of being more than an average hitter. so Bush will go to extremes with him in the fielding end if necessary. The only man available for first base is Radcliff, purchased from Selma, Ala., and Watwood, who was moved there from the outfield last season when Clancy was injured.

"But there is one thing I don't have to worry much about," remarked Bush after recounting the team's shortcomings, "I am going to have plenty of pitchers, if they don't get hurt."

Dick Hanley, Northwestern football coach, wearing a heavy coat of tan, arrived in Evanston yesterday following a lengthy sojourn on the Pacific coast, where he has been vacationing since the East-West football game.

Spring football practice will not start until the second week in March, Coach Hanley stated. At that time he expects to put candidates for the 1931 team through several weeks of drill.

200 West Side Fighters Enter Golden Gloves Meet

BY FRENCH LANE.

Every good amateur boxer on Chicago's west side will strive for Golden Gloves. If you don't believe some real fighting men — young and old — hail from that section of Chicago, just drop in at any of the numerous gymnasiums and challenge somebody to a little fisticuffs.

When entries for the west side tournament, which opens at Ashland Boulevard auditorium next Monday night, closed last night a field of 200 was assured. The mails today may swell the total entry to nearly 250. There were 246 entries in the west side tournament a year ago.

While west siders were making their eleventh hour entries, the sectional tournament at South Bend, sponsored by the News-Times, got under way last night. Boxers in the Springfield, Danville, Vincennes, and Lafayette sections were putting in final training licks for tournaments which open tonight and tomorrow night.

Two Meets Open Tonight.

The Springfield State Register and the Danville Commercial News tournaments open tonight. Each meet produced a champion last year which walloped his rival champion from New York. Johnny Emmerick, flyweight, was the Springfield boy to knock over a New Yorker and Ed Steeve, University of Illinois, won the middleweight title in the Danville meet and fought his way on through a series of victories until he had whipped New York's middleweight crown wearer.

Tomorrow night the Vincennes Sun Commercial and the Lafayette, Ind., Journal Courier preliminaries will be fought. About 50 competed in each tournament last year. The entry list in each city this year is near the 100 mark.

J. P. I. Enters Strong Team.

One of the strongest teams entered in the Chicago west side sectional meet comes from the Jewish Peoples institu Twelve boys ranging from flywei to middleweights will make up the .am. Irving Kaplan, one of Chicago's veteran amateurs, will captain the team. He has triumphed in 74 of 83 amateur bouts in which he has engaged during the last three years. He is a middleweight and has a strong teammate in George Griffin, 20 years old middleweight, who will be making his bow in tournament competition.

PURDUE STAR SEEKS GLOVE

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 9.—Final plans were completed today for the second annual Lafayette Journal and Courier sectional Golden Gloves tournament which will open in the local armory Wednesday night at 7:45 o'clock with nearly 100 entrants ready for action. Thirty fights are on tap for the first night and a crowd of 2,000 will pack the arena.

Interest in the tournament increased yesterday when Jim Purvis, half back on the 1930 Purdue football team, entered the heavyweight division. Purvis will be outweighed by most of his opponents, weighing 185 pounds, but he is a very clever boxer and packs a punch.

L. R. Harvey, another Purdue grid prospect who was ineligible last season, is the favorite to grab the Lafayette middleweight title. Harvey was the local light heavyweight champ last year, but has trained down to the middleweight class.

4 GROOMS BURN TO DEATH TRYING TO SAVE HORSES

50 Thoroughbreds Die in Oakland Stable Fire.

Oakland, Cal., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Recovery of bodies of four men burned to death here today in a fire which razed the Oakland horse show stables indicated all lost their lives because of love for the animals in their charge.

True to his promise that he would die for Carnation Lavendula, Michael McCarthy, 55, was crushed and burned to death while trying to lead the $35,000 horse from the stables.

For three years, other stablemen said, he lived, ate and slept beside the prize horse of the Carnation Farm stables of Pomona, Cal. A week ago Paul Tarter, another hostler, said McCarthy vowed he would give his life to save that of Carnation Lavendula.

Crushed by Timber.

Tarter last saw McCarthy alive as he was trying to lead his beloved horse through the smoke and flames. Their charred bodies were found side by side. Crushed by a heavy timber near a string of horses he was trying to unleash.

Friends said John J. Thomas and George Uhling, the other victims, undoubtedly gave their lives in a fruitless attempt to save their charges.

Fifty Horses Lost.

Devotion of the grooms was exhibited in a virtual mad house of screaming and panic stricken horses. More than 50 of the thoroughbreds were burned to death.

Freed horses, crazed by the flames, raced back into the inferno when blankets were removed from their heads. Others were so badly burned they were shot.

Three grooms—Joseph Fields, Jack McBride, and Charles Freeman—risked their lives to run through the stables releasing what horses they could. Mounts from the stables of Ben R. Meyer of Beverly Hills, Cal., the first to be released, began the panic among the animals by running blindly through the stables. The panic prevented the saving of many animals.

NO ILLINOIS HORSES BURNED.

All horses exhibited by Illinois owners in the Oakland Horse Show building, Oakland, Cal., last week escaped the fire which desroyed the structure early yesterday, according to information received at the headquarters of the various stables in Chicago, Oak Park, and several downstate towns. It was learned that the horses, about 50 in all, had been shipped to Los Angeles to be entered in the Los Angeles-Beverly Hills horse show immediately following the closing of the Oakland show on Saturday night.

Entries included horses of the Bridgford brothers, Joy., Ill.; Arline Martell, Oak Park, Ill.; George J. Peak & Sons, Winchester, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. William D. Radford, and Mrs. William A. Radford Jr. of Chicago.

REIFF HEADS PURPLE ATTACK WITH 16 POINTS

Minnesota Leads at Half, 15-11.

Northwestern retained possession of first place in the Big Ten basketball race by disposing of Minnesota, 35 to 26, in a spirited clash at Patten gymnasium last night. The victory was the eleventh straight win of the season for the Wildcats, six of which have been against conference opponents.

The Wildcats displayed qualities befitting their championship pace by coming from behind and playing the Gophers at their own game, which was speed and more speed. The visitors held a 15 to 11 advantage at half time, but this lead was quickly overcome by the Purple sharpshooters in a flurry of baskets early in the final session.

Northwestern owed much of its scoring success to Joe Reiff, sophomore center. The former Crane Tech star took in shots from all angles for a total of five field goals and six free throws. His ability to slip away from Bondy and Nordgaard, the two men assigned to cover him, accounted for a major portion of his points.

Gophers Score Early.

The boys from the north gave Coach Lonborg's cagers their hardest game of the season, but their failure to penetrate Northwestern's defense in the last period contributed to their downfall. On six occasions in the first half the Gophers broke past the foul lines for closein shots, each of which they made good.

Coming back for the last half, however, the Wildcats tightened up considerably and ten minutes elapsed before the visitors were able to score from the field.

During the first period the score was tied on four occasions. Northwestern opened hostilities on two free throws by Marshall and Riel. This advantage was only momentary, for Ceilusak dribbled through for two field goals in a row. Reiff tied it up with an overhand shot from the foul line.

Marshall's free throw put the Wildcats ahead, 6 to 5, but the Gophers ran their total up to 7 on a basket by Schoening, followed by Loose's free throw. Another basket by Reiff plus McCarnes' first basket of the evening gave the Wildcats a 9 to 7 advantage. Three baskets in a row, accompanied by two free throws, gave Minnesota the first half verdict by a 15 to 11 count.

Reiff Leads Scorers.

The final period was largely all Northwestern's. Reiff added to his rapidly mounting total with three free tosses shortly after the start. He then laid back under the basket and took a long pass the length of the floor from Riel, which he easily converted into a field goal, giving the Wildcats a 16 to 15 lead, which they never relinquished.

Northwestern ran the count up to 19 to 16 before the Gophers scored their first point of the period on Bondy's free throw. Marshall followed this by a masterful bit of work when he leaped into the air, knocked down Schoening's pass, and then rolled the ball the length of the floor to Reiff, who stood unguarded under the basket.

Minnesota narrowed the gap on field goals by Loose and Bondy, but with the score 26 to 21 in their favor the Wildcats started another spurt, running the count up to 35 before Loose tallied twice from midcourt and Ceilusak dribbled in for another basket as the game ended.

BILLIARDS GOES OUTDOORS AFTER TEN CENTURIES

Install Eight Tables on Florida Golf Course.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Outdoor billiards is the latest addition to sports. After more than 1,000 years billiards, which has thrived as an indoor pastime exclusively, has found its way into the open. Billiards in the open air now is being played in Miami, the first time the game ever was played outdoors. The official name is lawn billiards.

Just a few days ago eight tables were installed on the Biscayne Golf club course on the Biscayne boulevard and after the official test, it was demonstrated that billiards could be played in the open. The game is a combination of billiards and golf and skill at each style is essential.

Walk Around Table.

The outdoor billiard table, which has a playing surface 6x12 feet, is built on the order of a snooker billiard table, with six small pockets, regulation billiard table cushions and pocket billiard balls. The table is laid on a concrete base and the playing surface is made of a special composition which permits the player to walk upon it. The table is about eight inches from the ground and a miniature board walk about two feet in width surrounds it. The players use both the board walk and the table surface on which to walk. A canopy, supported by a steel frame, is placed over the table and is equipped with lights for night playing. A form of mallet is used in place of a cue.

The first and fourth holes or pockets are two cushion shots for the side, the second and fifth holes are two cushion shots for the corner, while the third and sixth holes are three cushion shots for the corner. There also are hazards, and if the ball stops in the restricted area it is necessary for the player to bank out.

Stars O. K. Table.

Ralph Greenleaf, pocket billiard headliner; Allen Hall, noted three cushion player and a golf expert, and Jake Schaefer, world's 18-2 balkline champion, as well as a star golfer, tested the table at the factory in Muskegon, Mich., a few months ago, and all agreed that outdoor billiards was an all around test of skill.

The outdoor billiard table was built by the same experts who construct the indoor tables used in world's championship competition. The outdoor table has been subjected to severe tests during the last year and it was only recently that it was placed on public exhibition.

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A. Bartelstein's Sidney Grant and E. R. Bradley's Broad Meadows won their second consecutive races today at Hialeah Park, Miami, and the Fair Grounds, New Orleans, respectively.

With Charlie Kurtsinger in the saddle, the four year old Sidney Grant easily defeated a classy field of route runners over a mile and an eighth. Hillsborough, half the Bartelstein entry, set a burning pace to the top of the stretch, where Kurtsinger sent Sidney Grant out in front to beat M. Lowenstein's Replevin by three lengths., Hillsborough was third. The entry, co-favorite with Replevin, paid $4.20 for $2.

Kurtsinger Scores Double.

The triumph aboard Sidney Grant gave Kurtsinger a double for the day as he won the sixth astride J. Perry's Protractor, the odds on choice at 30 cents on the dollar.

Broad Meadows was pushed much harder to win the mile feature at the Fair Grounds. The Bradley colt just managed to finish a head in front of B. S. Michell's Yankee Doodle with Mrs. R. Sullivan's Battling On a close third. S. W. Labrot's Fortunate Youth, well backed favorite, finished fourth.

Despite his recent brilliant performance, Broad Meadows paid $9.60 for $2 in the mutuels and stepped the mile over the slow track in 1:42 2-5.

Druggist Beats Kingsport.

Druggist, V. C. Dunn's California bred four year old son of War Cry, staged a strong finish to beat out C. Bartsch's Kingsport in the Wood F. Axton claiming handicap at Oriental Park, Havana. Setting a terrific pace, Kingsport had all the advantage in the early running of the mile and 50 yard jaunt, but couldn't withstand the stretch drive made by Druggist. Mrs. A. L. Austin's Belgian Lass finished third.

GEORGETOWN'S RUNNERS SCORE IN RELAY MEET

Newark, N. J., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Georgetown's two mile relay team flashed to a brilliant victory in the Seton hall indoor track meet tonight, leading teams from New York university, Manhattan, College of the City of New York, and Notre Dame to the tape.

Four fast quarter milers put together gave New York university a victory over three speedy college quartets in the one mile relay. Georgetown finished a close second with Notre Dame an even closer third as Alex Wilson, the Canadian racing for the South Bend school, closed a big gap in the final quarter.

Notre Dame went out for an early lead, but soon was back in third place as Arthur Briggs, running No. 2 for Georgetown, swung out in front, followed by Fred Pumphrey of New York university. The team maintained that position to the finish line, but when Wilson took possession of the Notre Dame baton he cut loose with the speed that characterized his victory in the Millrose "600" and was soon up in front battling for the lead.

Ruth Thinks Pitchers Are Yanks' Need

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Give the new Yankee manager, Joe McCarthy, a few good hurlers and he'll have the Yanks hot on the trail of an American league baseball pennant before midseason.

Take it from Babe Ruth, that's all the former champions need for a successful assault on the flag now held for the second year by the men of Mack.

The highest salaried slugger of the game arrived here today from New York aboard the steamer Shawnee. As soon as he could tear loose from the crowd of reporters and admirers he started his motor trip to St. Petersburg where he will begin his Florida pre-season training.

Mrs. Ruth, Miss Julia Ruth, and Mrs. Juanita Elias, daughter of a former Mexican president, accompanied him.

The Babe was confident of the Yankees' ability. "The Athletics have a great ball club," he said. "We all like our new boss and I believe the team will do great things under McCarthy's tutelage."

Whether the Yanks win or lose, Ruth will be in there banging away after the home run title he lost last year to Hack Wilson. Ruth won't make any loud statements about taking back the clouting crown next year, for he has great respect for the Chicago outfielder, but there was plenty of sincerity and determination in his "I shall be in there trying."

Revolt Simmers in English Ryder Cup Golf Ranks

LONDON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Professional Golfers association of Great Britain faced a revolt within its ranks today against its rule that the members of the Ryder cup squad, which goes to the United States in June to defend the international trophy, must travel together and return together.

Henry Cotton, one of the leading English pros and a member of the 1929 squad which won the cup from the United States, today wrote to the P. G. A., saying that if the rule was continued he must ask that his name be withdrawn from consideration.

"I plan to go to the United States and compete wherever I can," he wrote P. G. A. officials. "I plan to play in the American open. I should like to play for Great Britain, but must consider my own future."

Discussing his ultimatum later, Cotton said he was quite willing to abide by the other conditions.

Despite his letter, the committee in charge of the test matches picked Cotton to play in the first trial matches at Birmingham.

Loyola U. and De Paul Card 2 Cage Games

For the first time in recent years De Paul and Loyola universities will meet on a basketball court, according to the announcement yesterday of Coach Jim Kelly of De Paul. Negotiations have been completed for two games.

The first game will be played at Loyola gym on Feb. 21. The second is scheduled for Feb. 25, but the place has not yet been selected.

De Paul is bidding for recognition as one of the outstanding teams in the midwest, having won nine of its ten games. The Loyolans have won all except two games, defeats being at the hands of Butler and Kalamazoo Normal.

The De Paul five faces a hard test this week. It will battle Little Nineteen conference leaders on successive nights. On Thursday evening the unbeaten St. Viator team will appear in the De Paul gym, and on Friday De Paul will journey to Naperville to tackle North Central.

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Soldiers' field, Chicago, today was selected by the Olympic boxing committee as the site for the final trials to select a team to represent the United States in the 1932 Olympic games at Los Angeles.

The dates were fixed at about July 15-16—the same dates selected by the track committee for the final track and field trials. The Illinois Athletic club, the Chicago Athletic association, the Medinah Athletic club, the Lake Shore Athletic club, and the Midwest Athletic club, all of Chicago, agreed to conduct the tournament and turn over all net receipts to the Olympic

Report of Federal Reserve Shows It.

Leading security and commodity exchanges throughout the nation will be closed Thursday, Feb. 12, Lincoln's birthday. Banks also will be closed.

BY O. A. MATHER.

All the agitation in congress over the soldier bonus bond proposal and all the speech making and testimony of statesmen, bankers, and business men appears not to have been taken quite seriously by bankers throughout the country. In fact, while fears of bonus legislation prevailed among some holders of government securities and resulted in sharp declines in market prices, the banks were grasping the opportunity and buying United States bonds.

Along this line, the weekly report of the federal reserve board showing the position of reporting member banks of the system is unusually interesting. While those banks that make weekly reports form only a portion of the whole bank membership of the reserve system, still they include the larger banks and are representative of the system.

The report, issued yesterday, shows that these selected banks during the week ended last Wednesday increased their investments in government securities by $125,000,000. Their holdings of United States obligations now total $1,356,000,000, which is $631,000,000 more than a year ago. At the same time, the banks have increased their holdings of other securities, making an addition of $46,000,000 in the last week or so and bringing their total holdings up to $3,658,000,000, which is $551,000,000 more than a year ago.

Not Apprehensive.

Evidently, bankers generally haven't much fear of untoward events in other current market prices for government obligations or other securities. It is true, of course, that their increased investments have been influenced considerably by the smaller demands for credit both for speculative and commercial purposes. Thus the reserve board statement shows that bank loans on securities declined $70,000,000 during the week under review and that other loans receded $9,000,000. Loans on securities now total $7,303,000,000, which is $389,000,000 below a year ago. Other loans aggregate $8,365,000,000, which is $573,000,000 below a year ago.

Furthermore, the steady growth in deposits, coupled with abnormally low interest rates, also has been a factor in influencing the banks to increase their investments. Total deposits of the reporting banks now stand at $20,082,000,000, an increase of $1,011,000,000 a year ago.

Definite gains in industrial activity now are beginning to appear, the American Bankers' Association Journal says in its monthly review.

"Steel production increased from 35 per cent of capacity at the end of December to 50 per cent at the start of February," the review continues. "Automobile output is being expanded conservatively and some authorities believe the forecasts of 4,000,000 vehicles in 1931 are too low. The building program is not expected to exceed 1930, but will be better balanced.

Now Speeding Up.

"A number of industries are now speeding up after taking their price cuts, such as shoes, rubber tires, and the textiles. Others are steadily strengthening their position through adherence to curtailment, such as copper, mining, petroleum, sugar, and paper. In financial circles there is a distinctly better feeling, based on the moderate rise in the stock market, the ease of interest rates, further liquidation of loans, and evidence that rural bank failures have passed the epidemic stage. Bond prices have made a marked recovery. Savings deposits have enjoyed a notable increase during recent months. Year-end statements of the finance companies show that installment credit has weathered the storm in excellent fashion. Resources of the federal reserve system are practically untouched, whereas following the 1921 depression the member banks were borrowing more than $2,000,000,000."

Discusses Demands for Currency Reorganization

BY SCRUTATOR.

It seems inevitable that every depression of major importance should bring with it the interesting demand that currencies should be reformed or reorganized for the benefit of some particular class or group of people.

The usual form of this demand is that money be made less valuable than it is; that those who owe money should be favored by being granted a currency which, in relation to what it will buy, shall not be so important. So little have ideas changed that we see now something like the old free silver agitation of Bryan's time being dusted off and put into circulation on an international scale.

Silver is still money and practically the only money for credit medium to about 800 million orientals, although India's currency is officially on a gold basis. With us and with most other western nations silver is only a commodity, and one of the most depressed of all commodities. A recent report is that sterling silver collar buttons are selling in certain 5 and 10 cent stores for a nickel each.

Fluctuations in Silver.

Fluctuations in silver prices have been extreme. Back in 1913 the average price in New York was slightly under 55 cents an ounce. In 1918 England purchased 200 million ounces at $1 an ounce to pay debts in its Indian possessions. A peak was reached in 1920, when sales of the metal were made at $1.32 an ounce. Since then the trend has been steadily downward to the lowest quotations on record—in New York last week the price was 26½ cents. As late as two years ago silver was near the 1913 level, or twice as high.

It is being argued that the silverites in Asia are barred from being customers of our exporters because their money is halved in value, and that it would be good business for us and for the other gold nations to stabilize their metal at a much higher level. The trick in that one is that international trade is nearly always a swapping of commodities. A wide variation in metal values does make trouble when debts or interest payments are to be made, as in Mexico's recent announcement that it would not pay interest on gold bonds until the silver level became more favorable.

If the silver question is important in our foreign commodity trade, it is in a mysterious and roundabout way. China, Indo-China, and two other small countries alone are on a strictly silver standard. They took in the first ten months of 1929 only 3 per cent of our exports. The fall of their trade in the first ten months of 1930 was almost the same as the fall in our total exports to all countries, an average about one-fourth smaller.

Views on Demonetization.

Nevertheless, there are well informed thinkers who believe that the demonetization of silver was an economic crime and that something drastic should be done about it. One suggestion is that the gold using nations set themselves up as silver merchants and buy up all offered at less than 50 cents an ounce and sell it out when the price rises above 55 cents. That view may be correct, but it is a negation of most of the conclusions reached about the valid worth of a single gold standard over a course of many decades.

Silver will continue to be produced even at the low prices prevailing. It is a byproduct of copper, lead, and other mining operations for the most part. It is a durable metal and disappears slowly. However, the producers of it do not seem to be a force large enough to press action on their behalf. The output of silver in value has been estimated in the Guaranty Survey to be only 3 per cent that of the output of corn. Probably nothing is going to be done about it; the interest in the discussion is based on the fact that an old idea has been resurrected.

GRAIN ELEVATORS AT KANSAS CITY FILLED TO BRIM

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 9.—(AP)—A total of 26,511,492 bushels of grain bulged the public elevators of Kansas City today, setting a new storage record here. The new record surpasses that of 26,465,053 bushels established Aug. 14, 1930. Grain men said it was due to purchases of wheat by the federal farm board and a restricted outlet. Wheat accounts for 24,750,000 bushels of the stored grain. Of this 15,000,000 bushels are in government holdings.

Chicago Stocks Push Ahead in Vigorous Trading Day

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stocks of all description sailed forward vigorously on the Chicago exchange yesterday under the stimulus of a fresh buying current and helped along by the hurried covering movement of the professional traders. The trading was the most active on the exchange this year.

The outstanding performers of the day were Insull Utility, U. S. Radio, and Cord Corporation. About 30,000 shares of the latter issue changed hands as the price was marked up to a top quotation just short of 10. Interest in the stock was stimulated by the spectacular rise in the shares of its affiliate, Auburn, on the big board. Cord holds a substantial block of Auburn stock.

Short Covering Operations.

Short covering was directly responsible for the 2⅝ points advance in Insull Utility. The issue has harbored a sizable short interest for some time and the rising tide of prices here and in New York was used effectively by the issue's sponsors in bringing in many of the shorts at higher prices.

Friends of U. S. Radio took advantage of the general advance to push their favorite forward to 29⅝, representing a net gain of 2¼ for the day. Fresh interest was aroused by the publication of a semi-official earnings report placing share profits for the first five months of the fiscal year in excess of $4.25 a share.

Elsewhere in the list substantial improvement was made by Marshall Field, Noblitt Sparks, and Commonwealth Edison. Field and Noblitt each scored a gain of two points. Lesser gains were made by other active issues, including Middle West, United Gas, Cities Service, and Borg Warner.

The uniformity of the advance was marred in one or two spots. Standard Dredging was a conspicuous weak spot dropping two points to 4 on news that directors have failed to act on the regular quarterly dividend on common due March 1.

Make Exchange Offer.

Marks Brothers preference shares were bid up to 11 on the announcement of an exchange offer by the Paramount Publix corporation. The latter company will give one share of its capital stock for four shares of Marks. One of the terms of the offer is that 44,000 of the 45,000 Marks shares outstanding must be turned in by Feb. 28.

Directors of the Bulova Watch company yesterday placed the common stock on a $1.50 annual basis against $3 previously by the declaration of a quarterly disbursement of 37½ cents. Earnings for the final quarter of 1930 were reported as equivalent to $1.93 a share on the common stock. Profits for the nine months ended Dec. 31 were given at $3.85 a share on common.

The annual report of the Bastian Blessing company shows net profits for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30 of $287,892, equivalent to $2.50 a share on the 115,000 shares of common stock outstanding. In 1929 the company reported a profit of $698,325 or $5.99 a share. The balance sheet at the close of the year showed quick assets of $1,535,690 and current liabilities of $168,266 as compared with $1,764,513 and $316,124, respectively, at the end of the preceding year.

New York, Feb. 9.—Speculative Wall street shook itself together today and put on a bull market that was the talk of the town. A burst of buying orders touched off in the late trading sent prices kiting from 2 to 18 points a share and ran up the largest turnover since last Dec. 17—about 4,100,000 shares.

Spectacular short squeezes occurred in several spots.

Improved Sentiment.

RETAIL CLOTHING BUSINESS SEEN ON THE UPGRADE

Business is on the upturn in the retail clothing industry, Bertram Leopold of Altoona, Pa., president of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers, told members of the association yesterday. The eighteenth annual business conference of the association opened in the Hotel Sherman and will continue through Thursday.

"It is our distinct belief that business is already beginning to show some definite improvement," he said. "We have been on the bottom and are now beginning slowly but surely to move forward and upward."

For general business wear, according to stylists of the association, the two button, single breasted jacket with notch lapels, fitted a trifle less closely than 1930's correct style, will be in best demand. New felt hats will have brims one-eighth of an inch wider than the present brims.

PLANS $100,000 SUBSTATION ON NEAR NORTH SIDE

Commonwealth Edison Buys Wendell St. Site.

BY AL CHASE.

Transfer of title to the 98x109 parcel at 352-360 Wendell street by John H. McGill to the Commonwealth Edison company yesterday disclosed plans for the erection of a $100,000 substation for the buyer. It has been designed by H. V. von Holst and will be a one story structure, the equivalent in height to a story building of the average commercial type.

It will be of red brick with granite base and Indiana limestone trim. Completion is set for July 1. The old flats now on the property are being wrecked. Ward T. Huston & Co. were brokers in the site purchase.

The International Union of Operating Engineers, local No. 399, yesterday sold its former quarters, a one story hall building, 25x117, at 4643 South Halsted street, to Thomas Fitzgerald for an indicated $10,000. Title was transferred to the new owner by Henry J. Hoffman, George Flood, and Walter Evers of the union. Mr. Fitzgerald will operate the building as a dance hall, it is stated. The engineers' union moved a year ago to new quarters at 841 West Washington street.

Mortgage Banker President Talks.

Louis K. Boysen, vice president of the First Union Trust and Savings bank and president of the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association, addressed the Landis Award Employers' association yesterday noon at the Hotel La Salle.

"During the last two years Chicago real estate, in common with other forms of security, has suffered a severe deflation," he said. "While I feel that 1931 may show some improvement, I'm more of the opinion that real estate values will stabilize at present levels rather than show an early increase. With labor costs at the high point in Chicago and deflated income returns on improved real estate, there'll be little private construction in our city until the vacancies disappear.

"To those of us who have mortgages on existing buildings in Chicago it's a favorable viewpoint to remember that we'll have little new space for the next year or two and rents on existing buildings may begin to show an increase."

Leases Montrose Corner.

The Cities Service Oil company has purchased the southwest corner of Montrose and Greenview avenues, 75x 105, from Benjamin T. Olsen and Fred W. Bucher for an undisclosed consideration. S. Charles Iversen & Co. were brokers. The property is to be improved with an oil station.

Nathan H. Roth, president of the Peacock Press, has leased space on the second floor at 159 North Michigan avenue, from the Chicago Realty Trust, and will operate the Petrushka club, the assets of which he has purchased. Mark Levy & Brother also report leasing the store at 163 North Michigan avenue to Rubin Greenberg and Louis Gelfand for a fur shop.

The Eureka Water Heater company has leased the first floor and basement, totaling 8,500 square feet, in Thomas S. Hammond's building at 11 West Illinois street, to be used for their headquarters, for five years at a reported term rental of $15,000. The lessee has been in the Northwestern university building at Lake and Dearborn, to be wrecked. McMenemy & Martin, brokers, report the Hammond building 100 per cent rented. S. M. Polkey was broker in yesterday's transaction.

JANUARY SALES OF 33 CHAINS DIP FROM YEAR AGO

January sales of 33 chain store companies aggregated $143,173,094, as compared with $146,351,767, a decrease of 2.1 per cent. Thirty-two companies which reported for three years show sales for January of $142,049,955, against $145,398,133 in 1930, a decrease of 2.3 per cent, but 1931 sales showed an increase of $13,637,405, or 10.6 per cent over 1929 results, when such companies reported sales of $128,412,550, according to a compilation by Merrill, Lynch & Co.

Chain store sales reported yesterday failed to maintain the improvement shown last week although a few groups bettered their January, 1930, marks last month. Those reporting include:

Pierce-Arrow Motor Car.

Can you give me some information on the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company 6 per cent preferred stock.—J. T. McC.

Control of Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company was acquired by Studebaker corporation late in 1928. Studebaker owns all the outstanding 230,125 shares of class B stock and 129,014 of the total of 197,250 outstanding class A shares of Pierce-Arrow. On Sept. 30, 1930, there were 75,000 preferred shares [par $100] outstanding. Through the A and B shares that it owns Studebaker has an interest of 89.62 per cent in Pierce-Arrow earnings, after dividends on the preferred are provided for.

In 1927 and 1928 Pierce-Arrow operated at a loss. In 1929 net profit was $2,566,112, equal to $34.21 per share on the preferred and $10.73 per share on the class A stock.

In the first nine months of 1930 net profit was $1,308,748, or 3.88 times preferred dividends, against $2,456,673 in the corresponding period of 1929.

On Sept. 30, 1930, Pierce-Arrow's current assets were $6,990,383 and current liabilities were $1,492,626, leaving a working capital of $5,497,757, against $4,796,453 a year before. Surplus was $4,277,761.

Preferred dividends are regularly paid. This stock deserves a fairly good rating. It is callable as a whole or in part on any dividend date at 105.

United Iron Works.

I am the owner of 100 shares of common stock of United Iron Works, Inc., Kansas City, Mo. Kindly inform me whether this stock is worthless, as no dividends have been paid on same for at least eight years.—S. M. R..

In September, 1929, Judge John S. Farrington was appointed receiver for United Iron Works, Inc. As a result of depressed condition in the oil, lead, zinc, and coal mining industries, from which the company derived its chief business, operations had been unprofitable for two years. The company had outstanding $991,500 of first mortgage 7s which were in default. There was also $204,000 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred on which no dividends had been paid since January, 1921.

Some of the company's property has been disposed of, and in December, 1930, announcement was made that the receiver was winding up the affairs of the company and that in the due course of time bondholders would receive a portion of the funds realized.

Not enough information is available to say how much, if anything, will be left for stockholders after the bondholders' claims have been taken care of. There have been no published quotations on the common since August, 1929, when it was quoted over the counter at 25 cents bid, 50 cents asked per share.

FINANCIAL NOTES

P. W. Chapman & Co., Inc., have underwritten an additional issue of $1,750,000 of Appalachian Gas corporation convertible 6 per cent debentures, initial series, due March 1, 1945. Proceeds will be used in connection with the acquisition of additional natural gas properties in Ohio.

H. F. Wilcox Oil and Gas company stockholders have approved a decrease and reclassification of the company's 2,400,000 shares of authorized capital stock into 1,150,000 shares of common no par stock, and 50,000 shares of convertible preferred of $100 par value.

The Interstate commerce commission has authorized the St. Louis Southwestern Railway company to issue $9,000,000 of promissory notes up to July 1, 1932.

Claude Neon Lights reports that consolidated sales by it and associated companies for 1930 amounted to $15,349,497, against $15,778,893 in 1929. Reports so far received for 1931 indicate that sales this year will show an increase over the corresponding periods of either 1929 or 1930, the report said.

UP LEAP STOCKS IN A BIG, BOLD BULLISH SPREE

tion of the market, as revealed in the failure of the attempted bear drive last week, the improved sentiment growing out of the feeling that an extra session of congress will be avoided and that the threat of an enormous issue of bonus bonds is diminishing were contributing factors of great moment. Also the favorable decision in the Vacuum-Standard of New York oil merger case helped some—particularly the oils.

The action of some of the more closely-held stocks was such as to suggest something approximating a real corner. This was particularly true of Auburn Auto, which the street has come to look upon lately as a dangerous "bear trap." It gave one of the wildest exhibitions of its "return engagement," shooting up 18¾ points.

Other Star Performers.

Industrial Rayon was another big time performer, rising 12½. W. C. Durant, one time member of the so-called "big ten," was credited with providing the fireworks for this particular volatile. Worthington Pump, Case Threshing Machine, Eastman Kodak, and Vanadium, all favorite targets for bear selling during the greater part of the last year, were bid up sharply and all found eager takers among the shorts. Net gains—after a wave or two of profit taking had cut them down—ranged generally from 2 to 6 points for the group.

Gains Well Distributed.

Gains of 2 to 5 points were numerous and distributed pretty generally to every section of the list. Among them were to be counted American European Securities, Bethlehem Steel, Cerro de Pasco Copper, Loew's, Inc., International Business Machine, Hudson and Manhattan preferred, General Asphalt, Crucible Steel, North American, Minneapolis-Honeywell, Omnibus preferred, Safeway Stores, United States Freight, United States Industrial Alcohol, and Peoples Gas.

All the market leaders were strutting their plumes and the finish found most of them at new peaks for the movement. United States Steel common, with an unfilled tonnage report due at noon tomorrow, was in a buoyant frame all day and the finish found it up to 143⅝, a net advance of 2 points. American Can scored a like gain, and Consolidated Gas, General Electric, Public Service of New Jersey, and Johns-Manville hitched up 1½ to 3 points or more.

Motor shares were more prominent than they have been for months, and General Motors was the kingpin of the lot. It went to a new high of 47¾, up 2¾ points. Chrysler, Hupp, Hudson, and Mack Truck each rose a point or more, and Nash added another ⅝ to the gain it has been accumulating for the last week or so.

Top yesterday, $9.25; average, $8.15.

A substantial advance in the wholesale market for fresh pork, coupled with broad eastern outlet, reversed the trend of the hog market soon after a weaker opening yesterday.

Losses were quickly recovered and some sales late were as much as 5@10c above the close of last week. The extreme top moved up 10c at $8.00, while the general average at $7.35 compared with $7.25 Saturday and with $7.40 last Friday.

Pork loins advanced to the highest point since January 12, which increased the buying power of smaller packers and city butchers. Only 4,000 hogs were left at the close.

Today's Hogs Bid $8.00.

Bids of $8.00 for today's delivery were made on the "to arrive" market yesterday, but there were no sellers at that figure. April and May light weights were offered at $9.00 and bid $8.60, while March light weights were bid $8.30. March and April mediums were offered at $8.75 and March heavy at $7.25.

Buyers enjoyed the advantage on the cattle market yesterday and erased the gains recorded during the middle of last week. Prevailing quotations are about in line with the low spot early last week and sales of some classes of steers established new low levels.

The highest sale of the day, $11.00 for 1,451 lb. steers, equaled the lowest Monday top since last July. Only two Monday tops have been lower since August, 1926. Few steers on sale yesterday were good enough to sell above $10.00, the bulk going at $7.50@9.50, against $10.75@$13.85 on the corresponding day in 1930 and $10.50@12.50 two years ago. Cows and heifers sold slowly at weak to 25c lower prices. Calves were scarce and strong. Stockers and feeders met narrow demand.

Lambs Recover Losses.

Lambs recovered 25@40c of the recent sharp loss when supplies fell short yesterday, bringing the extreme top to $9.25, highest since January 30. Numerous sales were made at $9.00 and above, with 100 lb. averages selling upwards to $8.85 in mid-session. Aged sheep were firm and yearlings stronger. Feeding lambs sold steady.

All markets reported smaller sheep receipts yesterday, the total at the twenty points at 73,000 being 24,000 head, or 25 per cent, smaller than a week ago and 38,000 head, or 34 per cent, smaller than a year ago.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged as far as spot prices were concerned today, while shipment duty frees were a little easier. Selling by trade interests against purchases of duty frees in the spot market was responsible for the easier trend in raw futures. Prices weakened and closed with net losses of 1@2 points. Approximate sales were 12,400 tons. Prices follow:

SHORT COVERING BOOSTS PRICES OF WHEAT, CORN

Strength in Stock Market Influences Sentiment.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Short covering operations yesterday in the grain markets lifted wheat and corn around 2c from Monday's finish to the best figures on wheat since Jan. 15, the July touching 69⅛c at the extreme, and the highest with one exception since Dec. 18, while May corn at 68⅝c was the highest since Jan. 22. Strength in the stock market in New York had considerable influence on sentiment, and gave buyers more confidence.

Bearish news on wheat, such as further rainfall over parts of the belt, and a liberal increase in supplies on ocean passage as well as a gain of 934,000 bu in the visible supply had no effect on the market. Final trades were at net gains of 2@2¼c on the new crop months, with July 69⅜@69½c, and September 69 to 69⅛c. Old crop futures were ¼c higher, with March, 79⅜c, and May, 82⅜c.

Winnipeg Leads Advance.

Continued dry weather in the Canadian northwest brought in some buying of the October delivery by the country, but the upturn of 2@2¼c in that market was due to some extent to short covering. July there went to 3½c under Chicago at one time, compared with 11½c under about two weeks ago. Prices in the Canadian market were the highest since Dec. 9, with the May showing around 14c above the low point of the season. Liverpool finished ¼@1d higher, with March showing the most strength, due to a sharp reduction in supplies of cash grain. A private cable reported Argentine wheat movement hampered by unsettled weather, and damage in India had not been repaired. About 40 per cent of the world's shipments of 14,927,000 bu during the week went to non-European countries, including 1,644,000 bu from North America.

Buenos Aires wheat showed strength and gained 1⅝@1½c for the day. Considerable financial distress prevails in rural districts in Argentina due to low prices, the return to farmers being about equal to expenses.

Corn in Strong Close.

Corn market was inclined to lag early, but gathered strength as the day progressed. A wave of short covering swept over the market later in sympathy with the strength in wheat. Part of the Luying was credited to a leading local professional. Closing trades were at net gains of 1⅞@1¾c with March showing the least advance, finishing at 66c, while May was 68⅜ to 68⅛c; July 69⅛ to 69⅜c, and September 67¼c.

A decrease of 34,000 bu in the visible supply was somewhat of a surprise to corn traders in view of the recent slow shipping demand. Total stocks are 16,723,000 bu compared with 17,174,000 bu last year, it being the first time since last September that the visible has been smaller than the corresponding time a year ago. Buenos Aires closed 1c higher, and at the best prices in about a month.

Oats were bought by commission houses who absorbed offerings by local traders and with the strength in other grains prices moved up and closed around the top with May at 34⅝c. The decrease in the visible was more than expected, and the cash market was firmer.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—COFFEE—Futures were very quiet today, with fluctuations narrow and somewhat irregular. No. 7 contracts closed net 2 lower to 1 higher. Sales, 2,000 bags. COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Cottonseed oil was moderately active today, with the trading consisting largely of exchanging. Commission house longs were selling March and replacing with purchases of July and September, with local operators taking the other end. The tone, as a rule, was steady to firm, reflecting the generally encouraging action of other markets. Closing prices were 24@25 points higher, the latter on February. Sales were 5,250 bls. Prime crude, 6.25c; prime summer yellow, spot, 7.25c; March, 7.42c; May, 7.55c; July, 7.68c; September, 7.77c.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

While foreign buyers are slow in following advances in Manitoba wheats, there is a fair inquiry under the market all the time and sales in all positions yesterday were finally estimated at 500,000 bu.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Sentiment was generally expressed by grain traders at the close as more friendly to the buying side, especially on corn, where operators bought "offers," while in wheat the buying was largely of "bids." Traders who covered wheat during the day said they were tired of selling short and covering at a loss and expressed themselves more friendly to the buying side on price recessions.

Decreased foreign stocks of wheat and the unfavorable crop returns in Australia and the Argentine, due to extensive damage in both countries from continuous rains, with quantity and quality reduced, is attracting attention. This is creating a better call for good Canadian wheat and is seen in the strength in the Winnipeg market. Reports from Montreal say that a large number of boats are already under charter for wheat that has been sold abroad to go out at the opening of navigation.

Chicago wheat traders who read the Buenos Aires cable, referring to selling of Argentina wheat through the country's diplomats in foreign markets, took it as considerable of a joke. One large operator said diplomats might be good politicians but he considered them poor wheat salesmen.

PROVISION MARKET STRONG

Fair buying of lard and bellies, with a western packer absorbing a liberal part of the offerings, combined with a strong hog market, and an advance in corn, also the light offerings, were responsible of a net advance yesterday of 10@15c on lard, 15c and 20@22½c on bellies. Liverpool was unchanged to 6d lower on lard. Export clearances of lard for the week were 13,549,000 lbs against 12,572,000 lbs last year. Of bacon they were 2,877,000 lbs against 4,572,000 lbs last year. A litle export business was reported in lard and meats. Hog receipts were less than a week and a year ago. Prices follow:
